CAPONE SPEEDS TO ATLANTA

ASSEMBLY ENDS EXTRA SESSIONS; LOCAL BILLS DIE

Teacher Bond Issue Among Losers.

BY PARKE BROWN.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Springfield, Ill., May 3.—[Special.]—After six months of deliberation, conversation and inaction, the Illinois general assembly tonight closed its doors on all three of its special sessions and went home.

There was a chorus of sighs of relief from everybody concerned when the leaders of the two houses agreed late in the afternoon that nothing was to be gained by further weekly visits to the capital, and, after some prolonged farewell remarks, the necessary resolutions for sine die adjournment were passed in one, two, three order.

Many Lame Ducks About.

It was conceded that the situation was hopeless. With a lame duck governor on the second floor, with the lame duck legislators scattered through both chambers, and with a lack of organization behind any definite program it was agreed that it was time to "fold up" and quit.

The certainty of this outcome became evident early in the day and, except for some straggling efforts in behalf of this or that bill, the proceedings flattened out into a monotone with none of the color or the life of the usual windup of a regular session.

Only one thrill of surprise came to the spectators — who, incidentally, were few for such an occasion—and that arrived when the Chicago teachers' bill, the one to authorize the Chicago school board to issue bonds to meet its pay rolls, went down to defeat with a thud.

Teachers' Bill Beaten.

The principal reason the senate was back here today was a ruling by Lieut. Gov. Fred E. Sterling, its presiding officer, that last week's procedure of granting unanimous consent to permit senators to record themselves in advance on the teachers' bill was at least irregular. But that procedure had shown a total of 34 votes—a full two-thirds—for the bond bill and it was believed that something like a similar showing would be made today.

But, sensing the impending permanent adjournment representatives of the school instructors insisted that their bill be called up at once. It was called up and went down to the tune of 13 to 0, with many senators silent in their seats or strolling about the room disinterestedly. The attitude was thought to reflect the resentment of some of the non-voters against being brought back to the capital.

That one incident was the only live story in the last installment of the six month's serial. There were the customary final compliments between leaders in both houses, but in the corridors the universal expression heard was that it was a good thing the extraordinary sessions were about to end.

First Called Nov. 5.

The first of them convened on Nov. 5 to consider the recommendations of Gov. Emmerson's commission which had been working since July on the problem of straightening out the financial problems of the local governments of Cook county. The second one met on Jan. 19 in response to demands for governmental retrenchment. The third came into existence on Feb. 1 to meet the problem of relief for unemployment.

The first session, after prolonged controversy, passed the Kelly bill, replacing the old taxing machinery of Cook county with a single assessor. It also passed the state income tax bill. And it enacted the "hen pheasant law" which gave to this session a name by which it has been known ever since. The second session was, as legislators say, sterile. The third one passed the $20,000,000 relief plan program.

And the total appropriations for the three sessions were $269,500. There may be a slight balance unexpended, so perhaps the three didn't cost more than a quarter of a million.

Five Chicago Bills Shelved.

But there have been none of the "retrenchment" bills enacted to counterbalance this expense. The house was fighting over them to finish but, under the conditions existing, even the most heated debaters admitted there was no chance of cutting salaries.

During its earlier proceedings the lower house shelved five of the so-called "Chicago bills" and slaughtered another one.

One of these measures thus sidetracked was the principal one sponsored by J. L. Jacobs, the new Cook county assessor, which would have given him sweeping powers in getting at evidence of the possession of personal property.

House O. K.'s Wrecked Economy Bill

SAVES ONLY 37 MILLION; VOTES VETERANS AID

Cuts Salaries of U. S. Employes.

BY ARTHUR SEARS HENNING.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., May 3.—[Special.]—The legislative battle over economy that has raged in the house for the last week ended tonight in a signal victory for the federal bureaucracy over the taxpayers.

In a series of roll call votes the house ratified amendents knocking more than 160 millions of proposed savings out of the 200 million dollar omnibus economy bill. Thus scaled down to less than 37 millions to be clipped from the four billion dollar annual cost of the federal government, the measure was given final approval as an amendment to the 20 million dollar legislative appropriation bill, which was passed by a vote of 316 to 67.

By wrecking the economy program bureaucracy also disrupted the program for balancing the budget in the fiscal year beginning July 1 next. In order to meet next year's deficit, estimated at one billion 240 millions, congress set out to raise taxes slightly more than one billion and reduce expenditures about 200 millions.

Budget Fails to Balance.

As a result of the fate of the economy bill the budget will fall of balancing by 160 millions. Still further increases of taxes are therefore in prospect if the budget is to be balanced.

By limiting government pay reduction to 11 per cent of salaries in excess of $2,500 the house knocked out 55 millions of the 67 millions it was proposed to save on pay roll cost. The house also rejected savings on veterans' benefits estimated at more than 48 millions and turned down the proposed consolidation of the war and navy departments which the economy committee promised would save from 50 to 100 millions.

Carries These Economies.

As the bill goes to the senate it carries the following proposed economies aggregating $37,514,500:

11 per cent cuts above $2,500	$12,000,000
Abolition of automatic pay increase	2,100,000
Enforced retirement of superannuated employés	3,000,000
Abolition of overtime pay	5,800,000
Reduced travel allowances	3,000,000
Reduction of government printing allowances	4,000,000
Reorganization of shipping board	2,500,000
Restriction of soldier transfers	3,368,000
Suspension of plans for central heating plant	750,000
Department interchange of supplies and personnel	300,000
Fees for government services	725,000
Transfer of personnel classification to civil service commission	70,000
Transfer of radio division of commerce department to radio commission	100,000
Transfer of water commission to international boundary commission	25,000

Nonpartisan Program.

The fiasco of the much advertised nonpartisan program of radical retrenchment is the result of a bipartisan revolt against both the Hoover leadership and the Democratic leadership of the house. The President produced a bill to save somewhat more than 100 millions, which a majority of the Republicans declined to support. The Democratic house leadership essayed to put him in a hole on the economy issue by doubling the amount only to find itself repudiated in the end by a majority of the Democrats.

Amendment by Britten.

With the galleries packed as they have been day and night for a week by federal jobholders, the fighting waxed hottest over the pay cut proposals. As the bill emerged from the committee of the whole house in which there had been no record votes it provided for an 11 per cent cut of salaries with an exemption of $2,500, and this provision was attacked in vain.

The economy committee originally proposed an exemption of $1,000 and upon the $2,500 exemption, which had been adopted as an amendment by Representative Fred A. Britten [Rep., Ill.], Chairman John McDuffie [Dem., Ala.] demanded a record vote. The roll was called and resulted in 238 votes for and 154 against the Britten amendment. Members from Illinois

BRITISH PREMIER WILL GO UNDER KNIFE TOMORROW

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, May 3.—Prime Minister MacDonald announced today that he will undergo a second eye operation Thursday. Four doctors will attend him. They are Sir Thomas Horder, physician; Duke Elder, oculist, and John Herbert Parsons and William Lister, surgeons.

It was announced after the examination of the premier's eyes yesterday that the condition of the left eye, which was operated on a few weeks ago, was perfect, but that the right eye had deteriorated and that an operation was necessary. The operation is not urgent, but after consultation it was decided to have it done immediately so MacDonald will be able to go to the Lausanne reparations conference in June.

The premier will preside tomorrow at the weekly meeting of the cabinet. Later he will have an audience with the king. Doctors report that his general health is excellent. During his absence Stanley Baldwin, president of the council, will be acting premier.

Report Wilbur Tells Governor to Free Massie

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

HONOLULU, May 3.—Gov. Lawrence M. Judd, in a radiophone conversation with Secretary of the Interior Ray L. Wilbur today, is understood to have discussed the subject of a pardon for the four defendants convicted of manslaughter in the Fortescue-Massie murder trial. The governor declined to discuss the conversation, but it is rumored that Secretary Wilbur told Gov. Judd to pardon the quartet or resign.

HONOLULU, T. H., May 3.—[U. P.]—A Hawaiian-American juror held up the verdict in Honolulu's "honor murder" case for five hours in a single handed and vain effort to gain acquittal for the defendants. It was learned today that George McIntyre, the Hawaiian-American, gave in to the manslaughter verdict only then after he had forced the insertion of a leniency recommendation.

The first ballot, it was learned, brought a division of votes along racial lines, six of the seven Caucasions voting along with McIntyre for acquittal.

Five Demanded Conviction.

The other five jurors demanded conviction for second degree murder, arguing that while Lieut. Thomas H. Massie might have been temporarily insane when he fired the shot that killed Joseph Kahahawai, asserted confessed attacker of his wife, the evidence showed conspiracy to kidnap the Hawaiian and assault with a deadly weapon.

Prosecutor John C. Kelley's hints that some other than Massie might have held the gun when Kahahawai was killed apparently led one juror to suggest that E. J. Lord, one of the two seamen involved with Massie and his mother-in-law, Mrs. Granville Fortescue, in the slaying, be convicted and the others freed.

Finally the seven holding for acquittal wavered. Willie Beyer, potato chip "king" of Honolulu, was the last to go over to the manslaughter verdict save for McIntyre.

Effort May Prove Futile.

McIntyre's effort to gain leniency will be of no avail, according to some lawyers, as under territorial law Judge Charles S. Davis has no choice but to exact the maximum sentence of 10 years in Oahu prison. The prison board then could lighten the sentence by granting parole at any time after three months.

CARLTON COON OF ORCHESTRA FAME IS DEAD

Carlton Allyn Coon, co-director with Joe L. Sanders of the Coon-Sanders orchestra, died early this morning in Henrotin Memorial hospital of poisoning which developed from a jaw infection. He entered the hospital nearly two weeks ago.

At the bedside when he died were his wife, Ella, their children, John, 19 years old, and Nanette, 17, and his mother, Mrs. Claude Johnson. Two other children, Virginia, 11 years old, and Carlton Jr., 10, are in Kansas City. Sanders, his partner, was broadcasting from the College Inn. Informed of Coon's death, he hurried to the hospital.

Mr. Coon was widely known as an orchestra leader, especially to radio audiences. He appeared in Kansas City, Mo., before coming to Chicago and had remained here during most of his orchestral career.

He was 38 years old and a native of Oklahoma. Mr. Coon was the son of a musician, studied snare drumming as a boy at school, and continued his study of music along with the liberal arts at the University of Kansas. There also he met his wife. He worked on the Kansas City Star until 1917, when he enlisted in the army. While on furlough he met his future business associate, Sanders.

They organized their orchestra. They were the original Kansas City "Nighthawks" over the radio. Subsequently they came to Chicago, appearing at the Congress hotel and the Blackhawk restaurant and broadcasting over W-G-N.

Mr. Coon's body will lie in state between 2:30 and 6 o'clock today in the chapel at 3409 West Madison street. The body will be taken to Kansas City for burial tomorrow.

FALL WILL END HIS PRISON TERM WITHIN FIVE DAYS

Washington, D. C., May 3.—(AP)—Barring unforeseen delays, Albert Bacon Fall, one time secretary of the interior, will be freed from prison within five days.

Justice department officials said today that, with time for good behavior, May 8 is the date for the expiration of the year's sentence imposed upon Fall for accepting a bribe while a member of President Harding's cabinet. So far as is known at the department, the 71 year old man has been a model prisoner.

Fall was fined $100,000. That still is unpaid, but justice department authorities said today his sentence contained neither "direction nor implication" that he be kept in prison until he had raised the money or took a pauper's oath.

Roosevelt 1st in California, Smith Second

BULLETIN.

San Francisco, Cal., May 3.—(AP)—Returns from 3,140 precincts out of 10,271 in California's presidential primary tonight gave for the Democratic preference: Roosevelt, 51,858; Smith, 49,253; Garner, 44,391.

San Francisco, May 3.—(AP)—Complete returns from 1,691 out of 10,271 precincts tonight put Gov. Franklin D. Roosevelt of New York in the lead in the three cornered presidential primary fight for California's 44 votes in the Democratic national convention. The figures: Roosevelt, 27,423; Alfred E. Smith, 26,485; John N. Garner, 25,575.

The Republican "confidence vote" in California's presidential primary for President Hoover, in 1,691 precincts out of 10,271 in the state totaled 87,922, exceeding the total Democratic vote of 79,483 in those precincts. Mr. Hoover takes the 47 California delegates, having now 720 delegates in all, 142 votes more than a majority of the Republican convention.

Garner in Lead at First.

In the earlier returns in the Democratic primaries here in California Speaker Garner led both his opponents. His greatest strength was in Los Angeles county, where incomplete returns showed him gathering about as many votes as Roosevelt and Smith together. Incomplete returns from 1,503 in Los Angeles county gave the speaker 51,893, Roosevelt 25,038, and Smith 24,991. Here William Gibbs McAdoo, former secretary of the treasury, campaigned for Garner.

Smith was far in the lead in San Francisco, with 300 complete precincts out of 1,089 giving him 8,415 as against 4,904 for Roosevelt and 3,017 for Garner.

Norbeck Ahead in South Dakota.

Sioux Falls, S. D., May 3.—(AP)—Probable victory for Senator Peter Norbeck and Gov. Warren E. Green on the Republican ticket was indicated tonight as both continued to pile up leads in unofficial returns from today's primary election, but the Democratic contests developed close races and uncertain outcomes.

Decision as to the presidential choice of the Republican party's 11 delegates from this state also was in doubt, with returns too meager to forecast the final outcome, although the "regular" slate, announced as favorable to President Hoover, held a slight lead.

Green held a lead of more than 12,000 votes over Carl Gunderson, former governor, in early returns.

U. S. G. Cherry, Sioux Falls attorney, clung to a slight lead over Lewis W. Bicknell, Webster lawyer, who displayed unexpected strength in the triangular fight for the Democratic senatorial nomination.

Alabama for Roosevelt.

Montgomery, Ala., May 3.—(AP)—Gov. Franklin D. Roosevelt pulled ahead tonight on scattered returns from Alabama's Democratic primary, and seemed assured of the state's 24 votes at the national convention.

Returns from 209 of the state's 2,126 ballot boxes, representing 44 of the 67 counties, showed the Roosevelt ticket for delegates at large leading by nearly 4 to 1.

Labor Man Leads for Mayor.

St. Paul, Minn., May 3.—(AP)—William Mahoney, labor-indorsed candidate, apparently defeated Gerhard Bundlie, incumbent, for mayor of St. Paul in today's city election on the basis of returns tonight. Mahoney held a lead of 2,200 votes in returns from 150 of the 237 precincts in the city, which gave him 25,280 and Bundlie 23,086.

Mayor Bundlie has been in office for the last two years.

Los Angeles Mayor Winning.

PRISON DOORS CLOSE TONIGHT ON GANG CHIEF

He's Philosophical as Trip Starts.

BY CHESLY MANLY.

Danville, Ill., Aboard Dixie Flyer Carrying Capone, May 4 [Wednesday].—Al Capone sat in a Pullman drawing room handcuffed to a nondescript auto thief early today after leaving Chicago in a blaze of photographers' flashlights and surging crowds.

His destination is the federal penitentiary at Atlanta, Ga., where he will arrive at 6:55 o'clock tonight, and his outlook is eleven years' imprisonment. He successfully dissembled whatever gloom he feels about this prospect and spoke philosophically about "making the best of it."

From Chicago to within a short distance of Danville, when he was put to bed in the same upper berth with and shackled to his fellow prisoner, Capone smoked cigars and chatted with the guards in drawing room A, car 48. He removed his black top coat and the coat of his dark blue suit and settled down to solid comfort, talking more freely than on any of his appearances at the Chicago federal building.

Poses for Cameras on Train.

He posed willingly for the photographers who rode on the train to the Englewood station and then he received reporters.

"What do I think about it all?" Capone said. "Well, I'm on my way to do eleven years. I've got to do it, that's all. I'm not sore at anybody but I hope Chicago will be better off and the public clamor will be satisfied."

Chicago will not be better off, however, until prohibition is repealed and the booze racket becomes legitimate, in the gang chief's opinion.

"Personally, I'd rather be in a legitimate racket," he said. "It don't cost so much. There's too much overhead in my business, paying off all the time and replacing trucks and breweries. They ought to make it legitimate, and if they don't they'll find that sending me away won't help Chicago much."

It'll Be Hot at Atlanta.

The talk turned to Capone's experience in the eastern state penitentiary at Philadelphia, where he served a year for gun toting, and of the work he'll have to do in Atlanta.

"I don't know much about Atlanta," he said, "but I've heard Leavenworth's not a bad spot. For one thing, it'll be hot at Atlanta, but it don't make much difference where they take me. I thought I was going to Leavenworth until I heard it over the radio tonight." The gangster had a $16 radio set in his cell at the county jail.

Capone told of "financing" a workshop "for the boys" in Philadelphia and giving them a chance to earn some money for the commissary. He said he put them to work making wood carvings, beaded bags, humidors, and such knick-knacks. They were sold for a good profit and the boys had something to do.

Capone will not have to worry about something to do at Atlanta, where there is a factory that makes mail bags for the postoffice department and a prison farm.

In Good Trim, He Says.

He said he could stand the work and was not afraid of it, for he's in good physical trim. The rowing machines and pulleys of the county jail took ten pounds from his paunchy bulk and left him at 255.

Only one stop was made by the train between Englewood and Danville. This was at Coaler, two miles south of Watseka, where coal and water were taken aboard. Here the only excitement of the trip so far occurred. Railway detectives reported the finding of three hoboes on the engine and the occupants of the Capone car scurried to the door. The hoboes, having no machine guns or other murderous weapons, convinced the detectives they were not planning to free Capone. Nevertheless, they were denied the hospitality of the train.

There are eight cars, including three Pullmans, in the train. The Capone car is second from the rear and Capone's drawing room is in front. Vito Morici, the automobile thief who is shackled to Capone, is a small man, and that is fortunate for the gigantic Capone, who is in himself a pretty fair upper-berth full. They took off the leg irons and Al put on his glove silk blue pajamas and climbed up first. Then Morici got up. He seemed timorous and found it difficult to keep from getting too close to Capone or to the edge.

CHICAGO RID OF HIM.

Chicago's farewell to its most notorious gangster was not without ceremony. Sheriff William D. Meyering, at the county jail, bade him good-by and good luck; United States Marshal Henry C. W. Laubenheimer accompanied him in an automobile to the train, and in an adjoining compartment to Atlanta, and more than a dozen photographers flashlighted him a hundred times at the jail and at the Dearborn station.

Memories to Carry South.

Those memories, and the shouts of a crowd outside the jail—"You got a bum break, Al"—will go with Capone to the grim old prison in the scuth where, it has been indicated, the one time ruler of the alcohol kingdom of Cook county will be made to sweat over steaming tubs in the laundry.

There was a late change in the plans for the gangster's going away. When the certified copy of the United States Supreme court's order refusing to review Capone's case was received yesterday the intention was to take him to the prison at Leavenworth, Kas. But after the Circuit Court of Appeals had issued a mandate for his commitment on the original sentence the department of justice notified Marshal Laubenheimer to send him to Atlanta.

Elaborate Departure Program.

Arrangements were swiftly made. A schedule for the departure was prepared. Capone packed an extra shirt and a pair of socks in a grip. The police and the federal authorities coöperated with the sheriff and his assistants in plans to make doubly sure that no one should shoot the gangster and no one kidnap him.

At 9:15 p. m.—the train was to leave at 11:30 daylight time—all was in readiness at the jail. There was a tense air of expectancy, with prisoners waiting inside to see the farewell, with the crowd of onlookers, perhaps 300, standing outside, and with squads of policemen watching them intently.

Schedule Like Clockwork.

From that time forward the schedule, moving with regularity, went this way:

9:20—Marshal Laubenheimer was in communication by telephone with Warden David Moneypenny at the jail.

9:30—The marshal arrived. He handed to the jail clerk a paper, which instructed the sheriff to deliver "the bodies of one Alphonse Capone and one Vito Morici."

9:40—Warden Moneypenny and the marshal went to cell D-5 and led out the prisoners to be transported; Capone to Atlanta and Morici to Florida, where he is to be tried in the federal courts for transporting a stolen car.

Twenty Guards on Alert.

9:50—Sheriff Meyering, the warden, and the marshal led the two prisoners into the delivery yard of the jail. About them crowded prohibition agents, deputy marshals, and twelve alert detectives from the Chicago police force, headed by Deputy Detective Chief Walter Storms—a total force of twenty.

9:51—Photographers started snapping flashlights at the smiling Capone, who made no effort to cover up his face with the long scar on it.

9:53—Remark by Capone: "You'd think Mussolini was passin' through."

9:56—The handcuffed prisoners were placed carefully in the rear seat of the marshal's automobile. Capone sat in the middle, Morici on one side and Secret Service Agent Robert C. Clark on the other. Marshal Laubenheimer and Deputy Marshal William G. Thompson sat on the collapsible seats. In front were Deputy Marshal James Nordsieck and Deputy Detective Chief Storms.

The Procession Starts.

10:01—The leading car of guards moved out. In it were Chief Deputy Marshal Joseph O'Neil, Prohibition Agent Eliot Ness, who gathered the evidence against Capone, and two more dry agents.

10:02—The second, or Capone car, and three others moved out. In the third were Deputy Marshal Eric Glasser and three more agents. In the last two were squads of Chicago police, armed and ready for any action necessary.

The dash to the station was made by way of California boulevard to Ogden avenue, then to Jackson boulevard, and thence to Clark street. At

A cynic remarked that Mr. Gallagher had not missed much.

Jackson boulevard and Clark street there was a pause for a stoplight and Capone had an opportunity to look at the federal building, the scene of his greatest defeat.

Crowd Gathers at Station.

Sirens on the police and government cars let the people of the loop know that something unusual was in progress. And when the procession drew up in front of the old Dearborn station, where the Dixie Flyer of the Chicago and Eastern Illinois railroad awaited the travelers, there was another congregation of cameramen and curiosity seekers.

Capone and Morici stepped out of their car. With Clark on one side and Marshal Laubenheimer on the other, with deputies walking before and police walking behind, the prisoners moved through the crowd into the train shed. Tugging at his manacles, Capone cursed Morici.

"Damn it, come on," he said; "let's get out of this."

He had requested the marshal to prevent, if possible, the sight of his handcuffs to the populace.

Harry Hochstein on Hand.

By 10:30 the Pullman car was reached. As Capone passed along the walk to the car he was greeted in the language of the eyes by old friends who came to see him off. There was Harry Hochstein, now on trial with Capone's old friend, Daniel Serritella, for playing false with the scales of Chicago's grocers and butchers. There were two young Capones, brothers of Al.

They did not speak and in a minute or two Capone and Morici had been whisked into compartment A of the car and all was ready for the departure. The remainder of the car was filled with the guarding detail and the reporters and photographers going along to witness Capone's arrival in Atlanta.

Promptly at 11:30 the train pulled out. Capone was gone for a minimum of six and a half years behind bars. This is taking into account the allowance for good behavior.

In the guard detail that went to Atlanta were Marshal Laubenheimer, Thompson, Nordsiek, Clark, Glasser, O'Neil, and two railroad detectives. The presence of Clark was regarded as unusual. The business of the secret service is to protect the life of the President and the purity of the currency—nothing else.

He'll Get No Favors.

From Atlanta it was reported that no unusual favors will be granted Capone. He is to be treated like all the other 3,084 prisoners held there in an institution built for 1,874 at most.

It is assumed that Capone will be taken inside the prison walls on the car in which he is making the trip. There is a spur track for just such deliveries.

As he does not arrive in Atlanta until 6:30 p. m. today it is probable that he will be put to sleep in a cell and will go through the admission formalities tomorrow. For a week or two, if the usual custom is followed, Capone will undergo a series of examinations by psychiatrists, who are to determine what his mental and physical traits are and to assign him to suitable work when these are determined.

In the prison, the authorities were quoted as saying, the gangster will have to obey the rules, behave himself, and work.

The penitentiary lies in the outskirts of Atlanta and covers more than 35 acres. It is an industrial plant as well as a place of confinement and there is a variety of work.

His La[illegible] Day in Jail.

Then Capone's family appeared at the jail. They were his mother, Mrs. Theresa Capone; his wife, Mae; his son, Albert, 12 years old; his younger brother, Matthew, and his sister, Mrs. Mafalda Maritote. They remained with the gangster for more than an hour and then left without speaking to interviewers. The women folk were visibly downcast, but dry eyed.

Capone packed his personal belongings early in the morning, according to the guards, and made a farewell gift of a set of hair brushes to a cellmate, Robert Ryan, a vote fraud prisoner.

Prisoner Since Oct. 24.

Capone was placed in his county jail cell on Oct. 24, the date of his sentence by Federal Judge James H. Wilkerson. Besides the eleven year prison term, by far the highest ever imposed on an income tax case, Judge Wilkerson fined the gangster $50,000 and the costs of the prosecution.

Had he gone to the penitentiary pending the outcome of his appeal, which he could have done, six months of his sentence would now have passed. No credit is received for his jail service. But Capone continued hopeful, if his statements were sincere, and at no time moved to go voluntarily to a penitentiary where there is hard labor.

Another Inducement to Stay.

Another possible inducement for the time in jail here was an opportunity to direct his booze, gambling and other rackets through visitors. For some weeks after Capone entered the jail there were persistent rumors that his henchmen were getting in to see him at will. For this reason deputy United States marshals were stationed to guard him.

The life in the "recuperation" cell, as Capone's jail quarters were called, will seem comparatively easy after the gang chief starts penitentiary life. One of his henchmen, Sam Guzik, lost 65 pounds in a few months after he went to Leavenworth to serve a year for income tax dodging. Capone weighs 255 pounds, so he may rival the Guzik reducing record.

Must Serve Year in Jail.

When he finishes his prison term he still must serve a year in a county jail. Federal investigators do not contend that the Capone crime organization will be broken up, but they believe that the corruption and lawlessness sponsored by Capone will not be possible again.

Capone's era in Chicago, say the federal experts, is over. It began eleven years ago, the same period as the sentence, when he came from Brooklyn as a roustabout for Johnny Torrio. From this position he rose to be Chicago's No. 1 public enemy.

RIVERS RUN WILD IN BRITAIN; TOWNS ARE ISOLATED

LONDON, May 3.—[U.P.]—Rivers, swollen by four days of heavy rain, flooded many parts of the British isles today, isolating thousands of residents. Four schoolboys were drowned when a stone bridge collapsed.

A cloudburst at Bath flooded the streets, inundated houses and stores, and marooned motorists. Other towns which were flooded included Aylesbury, Tring, Evesham, Shipston-on-Stour, Ettington, and Halford. The river Avon was at flood height and invaded part of the famous town of Stratford-on-Avon, Shakespeare's birthplace.

Many villages in Scotland and Wales were flooded. Tons of water rushed into the villages of Oakthorpe and Donisthorpe when a canal burst its banks.

TAKES MORE THAN PANTS TO MAKE SUIT OR CONVICT SUSPECT

Peoria, Ill., May 3.—(AP)—It took just eleven minutes and one wise crack to acquit Jasper Blotto on a liquor charge in federal court today.

The jury was selected in one minute. Prosecution evidence was presented in ten minutes. The evidence included a pair of trousers found at a liquor still and identified as belonging to Blotto, by papers in the pockets.

Defense Attorney John Dougherty asked Judge Charles F. Briggle for a directed verdict of not guilty. The judge deliberated over whether the pants were sufficient evidence to connect Blotto with the still.

"You know, your honor," Attorney Dougherty said, "it takes more than a pair of pants to make a suit."

The judged smiled, nodded, and Blotto was dismissed.

TINY REPUBLIC GETS FIRST MOVIE PALACE—COWSHED

ANDORRA [Republic of Andorra], May 3.—[U.P.]—The modernizing of Andorra, the tiniest republic in the world, advanced another step today when half of the 5,000 population tried to crowd into the country's first moving picture palace, a cowshed remodeled to hold 500 spectators.

The films were accompanied by several acts of vaudeville which dumbfounded the mountaineers. The Spanish bishop of Urgel, one of the two co-princes of the republic, has announced that he may disapprove of the first theater and order the faithful to stay away.

The principal objection to the movies came from the Andorran women who disliked the actions of several heroines. The film was a Spanish homemade comedy reeking with love and intrigue. The parliament of Andorra sat during two sessions to consider the problem before allowing the moving picture show to be staged. Now under pressure from the women they may reverse their decision. The next step in the modernizing will be the creation of an airmail line linking Andorra, the old capital, with Barcelona.

Jarnell Obeys Robbers, and It's Lucky He Does

Three robbers entered the Wisconsin Lime and Cement company yards at 544 West 59th street yesterday and took $75 from Edward Jarnell, the superintendent. They ordered Jarnell to stay in the washroom for an hour and departed. In fifteen minutes the washroom door was opened. It was one of the bandits. "I just wanted to see if you were still there," he said and walked out.

SCHOOLS START WORK TODAY TO TRIM 25 MILLION

Board Ready to Act on Kelly Plan.

BY OSCAR HEWITT.

The D. F. Kelly tax warrant committee has asked the school board to cut its 1931 and 1932 tax levies at least $24,962,725 for the two years. If the board meets that request this year it will have to trim expenditures accordingly. A banker said yesterday that the slash must be even larger if the board is to reëstablish credit which will permit the sale of tax anticipation warrants. He added that it is impossible to sell warrants on the board's present $90,180,000 budget.

President Lewis E. Myers and Trustee William D. McJunkin said yesterday they will urge the trustees at committee meetings today to start trimming at once.

"The Sooner the Better."

"It would be silly for us to slide further into debt," said Mr. Myers. "If we do not start to cut expenses it will be years before the schools can possibly get out of debt."

"The sooner the better," commented Trustee McJunkin. "We cannot get money to pay the employés unless we cut the budget. In 1916 we gave the pupils an education at $45.96 per pupil. What do we give them now that justifies $112.60 per pupil?"

President Myers and Trustee McJunkin voted against the 90 million dollar budget, as did Trustee Robert F. Carr, a Cermak appointee. Two new trustees, Orville J. Taylor and Ernest Buehler, appointed by Mayor Cermak last Friday, are expected to favor economy. That places five of the eleven trustess for retrenchment. In addition Trustee H. Wallace Caldwell, who voted for the budget, has announced there must be a drastic curtailment of expense.

Expect Favorable Action.

Mrs. W. S. Hefferan, a Cermak appointee, who voted for the big budget, has said she favors a cut in certain expenses but not in the instructional departments. Altogether it appears that a favorable start will be made today.

The Kelly committee supplied a starting point. The board has levied $85,263,807 in taxes for 1931. The Kelly committee suggests that amount be cut to $67,260,000. The board's tax levy for 1932 totals $75,398,918, while the Kelly committee suggests $68,440,000. The Kelly committee wants the board to trim $18,003,807 from its 1931 levy and $6,958,918 from its 1932 tax levy.

The 1931 tax levy has been spent, or approximately so, although the taxes have not been assessed, and about two-fifths of the 1932 taxes have been expended. To save the $24,962,000 in the remaining three-fifths of this school year necessarily means exceedingly drastic cuts.

Of the $24,962,000 the Kelly committee would trim $17,686,743 from building, $6,403,443 from educational fund expense, $753,626 from free text books, $97,186 from playgrounds, and $24,946 from pensions.

Fund—
Building	$11,173,636	$6,514,707
Educational	6,080,442	323,006
Text book	642,267	111,359
Playground	97,587	*401
Pensions	12,587	11,359
Bonds and interest	*1,112	*1,112
Totals	$18,003,807	$6,958,918

*Increase in levy.

Even if the board trims its 1932 levy only $6,958,000, it still will be unable to sell tax warrants and get cash, according to a banker informed on that subject. Less than 40 per cent, or about $30,000,000 of the board's 1931 tax levy of $76,157,190—now in collection—has been paid by the taxpayers Unless there is a sharp reduction in taxes, the experts assert that payments for 1932 will not be larger.

HOUSE BILL FORBIDS CONGRESSMEN TO PUT THEIR KIN ON PAY ROLL

Washington, D. C., May 3.—[U. P.]—A second blow at the widespread employment of relatives by senators and congressmen was struck today when Representative J. R. Mitchell, Dem., Tenn., introduced a bill to prohibit the practice.

Mr. Mitchell accompanied this action with a statement declaring the public never would believe that the appointment of a near relative was on merit alone. He said the secrecy surrounding the practice was "prima facie evidence of fraud, crookedness, and corruption of the rankest kind."

Mitchell said that even a congressman cannot find out who is on the pay roll of other members.

"Let us begin by having the clerk of the house keep his books open so all the taxpayers and their representatives can know who is eating up their substance here on Capitol Hill," he said.

Mr. Mitchell challenged congressmen to take the stump and say they would appoint relatives to clerkships if elected.

Last week the house voted down two to one an attempt by Representative Mouser [Rep., O.] to amend the economy bill to prevent employment of relatives.

DIVORCE GRANTED TO MRS. CUSHING ON CRUELTY PLEA

Mrs. Alice J. Cushing, 20 years old, 30 Pine avenue, La Grange, was granted a divorce yesterday by Superior Judge Joseph Sabath from Francis J. Cushing, son of John F. Cushing, president of the Great Lakes Dredge and Dock company.

She charged cruelty, and was awarded a $600 settlement in lieu of alimony, and $250 attorney's fees. Mrs. Cushing testified yesterday that her husband had struck her on two occasions.

In her bill she charged that her parents-in-law, with whom young Cushing now lives at 900 Edgemere court, Evanston, gave them a 13-room house as a wedding present, but provided no servants. As a result, she asserted, she was a slave to her household duties, and Sunday dinner invitations at the elder Cushings' home were only an excuse for lectures to her on the proper duties of a housewife.

U. S. TROOPS IN SHANGHAI REPEL JAPANESE RAID

Nipponese Beat Chinese in Foreign Area.

BY JOHN POWELL.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

SHANGHAI, May 4 [Wednesday.]—A detachment of the American 31st infantry under Maj. Leonard Townsend Gerow is again patrolling the banks of Soochow creek following a Japanese raid on Chinese residents of the international settlement last night. American soldiers forced the Japanese raiding party to retire.

The trouble began when some sixty Japanese marines crossed the Wuchang road bridge, climbed over a steel gate, and began clubbing and stabbing Chinese pedestrians. About twenty were seriously wounded.

Chinese Shops Wrecked.

A small detachment of municipal police arrived and demanded to know the reason for the Japanese action. The Japanese ignored the police, fixed bayonets, and began deploying along adjacent streets, wrecking Chinese shops. They also seized a Chinese municipal policeman and two other Chinese and started dragging them toward the Japanese side of the creek.

The municipal police appealed to the 31st infantry, whose duty it is to guard this sector. Maj. Gerow, with a detachment, arrived on the double quick in time to prevent the Japanese from dragging the three Chinese across the bridge.

Maj. Gerow demanded an explanation from the Japanese. The Japanese commander, Lieut. Katsumo, replied heatedly that the Chinese for the last two nights have been throwing stones across the creek at Japanese sentries. Maj. Gerow then requested that the Japanese hand their three prisoners over to the municipal authorities for trial. This was done after a heated argument.

Threaten to Return.

Lieut. Katsumo tried to compel the municipal police to give a written guarantee that the Chinese would throw no more stones. The police refused. As the Japanese withdrew Lieut. Katsumo threatened to return in force if the stoning was repeated and exact vengeance "no matter who interfered."

The municipal police believe the Japanese raid was in retaliation for an incident in Chapel Monday night when a number of Chinese shot and killed a Japanese marine sentry. When another marine gave chase the Chinese kidnaped him. His whereabouts is still unknown.

The Japanese ordered 400 marines ashore and they spent yesterday searching Chapel for the kidnaped marine. Many Chinese were arrested, but the search was futile.

Chinese Fight Peace Pact.

The political situation is becoming critical here due to agitation against the signing of an armistice agreement with the Japanese. Opponents of the agreement have announced their intention of staging a huge demonstration today and, in event the Nanking government signs the agreement, to drive the ministers out of office.

Quo Tai-chi, head of the Chinese delegation in the negotiations, is in bed nursing a serious gash across his forehead where he was cut when a Chinese student hit him with a dinner plate. The attack on Quo was made by hundreds of students, who invaded his home and beat him in protest against the agreement.

A Chinese government spokesman said it has been determined to sign the agreement and possibly to hold a formal conference with the Japanese tomorrow. Today's meeting was postponed following the attacks on Quo.

Factions Battle at Canton.

Gen. Chen Chi-tang's Cantonese troops apparently won a complete victory over Cantonese marines near the Bocoatigris forts, near Canton, yesterday. As a result of this victory a number of wealthy residents, including families of Cantonese naval officers, have hurried to Hongkong.

The trouble began when Gen. Chen, the Cantonese military commander, moved to reorganize the Cantonese navy and air corps. A Cantonese government committee ratified his action and dismissed Feng Chu-wen, finance commissioner, a member of the opposing Sun Fo faction. Au Fong-po, Gen. Chen's man, was appointed to replace Feng.

Gen. Chen announced his intention to disarm all marines. When he started to carry out his intention the navy withdrew from Canton, steaming toward Macao and Hainan island. It is reported that several gunboats anchored in the river fired on Canton, causing a panic. The amount of damage caused is unknown.

Report Gen. Ma Raids Catholics.

ROME, May 3.—(AP)—A telegram from Shanghai to the headquarters of the society for the propagation of the faith today said Gen. Ma Chan-shan, Chinese leader in northern Manchuria, had levied heavy tribute on the apostolic vicarate at Chengtu. Apostolic Vicar French and Bishop James Rouchouse escaped capture by Ma's troops, the message said, but Assistant Vicar Coudere was made prisoner and arraigned before a military tribunal.

BOY, 10, ON WAY FROM SCHOOL, IS KILLED BY TRUCK

Franklin Keeler, 10 years old, 9556 Charles street, a schoolboy, was instantly killed yesterday afternoon when he was run down by a milk truck in front of 9521 Prospect avenue. The boy was returning from school when the accident occurred. The driver, H. S. Kuchner, 1000 West 76th street, was held.

This death and one other increased the Cook county motor fatality toll to 370 since Jan. 1. The other victim:

Earle Linderman, 13 years old, 4421 Haddon avenue. Died early this morning in St. Anne's hospital of injuries suffered last week when he was hit by a truck at Division street and Cicero avenue. The driver was Wilfred Dagenais, 3812 South Canal street.

Nick Braga, 28 years old, and his wife, Florence, 21 years old, both of 3367 Neva avenue, were critically injured yesterday when their car crashed into a steel support of a railroad viaduct at Jackson boulevard and Kenton avenue. Their 3 year old son, John, who was sitting in his mother's lap, escaped unhurt. The injured were taken to the Frances Willard hospital.

Fred Georgia, 51 years old, president of a bakery company in Oklahoma City, and C. L. Wilkins, 27 years old, 710 Bittersweet place, were critically injured early this morning when the automobile in which they were riding collided with a street car at Ogden and Grand avenues. Both were taken to the Mother Cabrini hospital.

Policeman Frank Krizek of Berwyn suffered a fractured ankle when his motorcycle was struck by an automobile while he was pursuing a speeder at Ogden and Grove avenues in the suburb. He was taken to the Berwyn hospital.

The body of a woman who was killed by an automobile in Warren boulevard at Damen avenue April 25 was identified at the county morgue last night as that of Mrs. Johanna Holtman, 55 years old, of 1902 Washington boulevard, a widow.

Robbers Kidnap Wrong Man and Get Only $5

Two bandits who planned to kidnap a messenger employed by the bus terminal at Wabash avenue and Roosevelt road picked out the wrong victim yesterday afternoon and held him until 10 o'clock last night. He is Lawrence Leavitt, 21 years old, 2741 North California avenue. Leavitt was kidnaped as he emerged from the terminal carrying a satchel. He was blindfolded and taken somewhere on the south side, where he was asked about the bus depot receipts. Then the bandits opened his satchel and found only cushions which he sells for a living. They robbed him of $5.

JILTED AFTER 28 MONTHS, WOMAN SAYS; ASKS BALM

After an engagement lasting 28 months Charles C. Wright, 2011 Van Buren street, a department manager of the Western Electric company, informed Mrs. Alta Rapoport, 29 years old, 4058 Superior street, that he would not marry her, according to a breach of promise suit filed in the Circuit court yesterday by Mrs. Rapoport. She asked $50,000 damages.

Through her attorney, Charles C. Roe, she explained that Wright, who is 60 years old, met her during the summer of 1929 while she was working in his department. A few days after Christmas the same year, following an ardent courtship, he asked her to be his wife, the bill asserted. During the period of the courtship, the attorney said, Wright furnished the money with which Mrs. Rapoport won her divorce and the custody of her 6 year old son, Richard.

Wright increased Mrs. Rapoport's salary from $16 to $40 a week, bought her clothes, and paid the rent for her apartment until Jan. 10, 1932, when a quarrel occurred, the attorney said. On that day, the suit charges, Wright pushed Mrs. Rapoport against the wall of her apartment and injured her.

A. REYNOLDS QUITS AS HEAD OF LOOP BANK

Goes to California Because of Deafness.

BY O. A. MATHER.

Arthur Reynolds ended his career as a Chicago banker yesterday when he resigned as chairman of the board and as a director of the Continental Illinois Bank and Trust company. He also is retiring as chairman of the Continental Illinois company, the bank's investment subsidiary, and of the Continental Chicago corporation, an investment trust originally formed by the interested connected with the bank.

Mr. Reynolds announced his retirement from the Chicago banking field following a meeting of the Continental Illinois banks directors, at which his resignation was presented and accepted. George M. Reynolds, older brother of Arthur, was elected chairman of the board. He has been chairman of the executive committee. Stanley Field, who has been chairman of the advisory committee, was elected chairman of the executive committee.

Future Plans Indefinite.

Arthur Reynolds announced that he will go to California to live, after going to Europe for a month or so. He said he will not retire from business affairs, but as yet has made no definite plans for future activities. He plans to live in Los Angeles, where his son, Arthur Reynolds Jr., now lives, while his daughter lives in Altadena, which is nearby.

Mr. Reynolds said that his resignation from the bank and removal to California are dictated primarily by physical considerations. He took occasion to deny rumors that have floated in La Salle street for several months that disagreement among the directors would result in his retirement.

"I am leaving the bank because of impaired hearing," he said. "As my associates in the bank and friends know, my hearing has become progressively more difficult in the last two or three years. The dampness of the climate here affects my ears, while the California climate is favorable.

Calls Rumors False.

"There is nothing to be read between the lines about my resignation. I know there have been rumors about my possible retirement, but they are untrue. I resigned in spite of the fact that the directors urged me to stay. I hate to leave Chicago and I wouldn't give up my work here with the bank except for my physical impairment. I had to choose between physical well being and staying here.

"I don't intend to retire entirely from business affairs. Although I don't know what I'll do in the future as yet I don't intend to be idle."

Mr. Reynolds was born in Panora, Ia., and began his banking career there, just as his brother, George, did.

Brothers' Careers Similar.

He followed the latter as president of the Des Moines National bank after George M. Reynolds came to Chicago to become cashier of the old Continental National bank. After the elder Reynolds became president of the merged Continental and Commercial banks Arthur Reynolds came to Chicago as a vice president in January, 1915. He became president when George Reynolds was made chairman.

During the last twelve years the present Continental Illinois Bank and Trust company has resulted from two mergers. First, it absorbed the old Fort Dearborn National and State banks and later it joined with the former Illinois Merchants Bank and Trust company, which itself was the result of a three way merger. Arthur Reynolds was made chairman of the Continental Illinois bank and George M. Reynolds became chairman of the executive committee.

Upon the retirement of Eugene M. Stevens as president, which position he had retained in the merger, James R. Leavell was elected president. Stanly Field was elected chairman of the advisory committee a few months ago. He had been a director and one of the largest stockholders of the old Illinois Merchants bank and was regarded as representing the Marshall Field estate.

DEMOCRATS GAIN IN NO. INDIANA PRIMARY VOTING

Ballot Total Near Record; One Killed.

Lake county, considered the Republican stronghold of northern Indiana, cast a big Democratic vote in its dual primary election yesterday. The election proved to be one of the most hectic in the county's history, resulting in one fatal shooting and many arrests.

Counting of the returns moved slowly last night and no accurate estimate of the votes was attempted. Political observers believed, however, that there were at least 60,000 votes and that half of them were Democratic.

Democrats Win Hobart.

The town of Hobart, for instance, which two years ago reported only seven Democratic ballots, yesterday cast 841 Democratic ballots against 717 for the Republicans.

Contests for congress held the main interest. In the Democratic race Frank R. Martin led Ora L. Wildermuth by 443 to 251 in scanty early returns. Oliver Starr held a slim lead over Mayor R. O. Johnson of Gary, 156 to 149, in the Republican contest.

For prosecuting attorney, the incumbent, Robert G. Estill, was leading John F. Cody, 1,022 to 696. They are Democrats. W. O. Thomas had 364 votes to August A. Bremer's 215 in the Republican race. Judge Martin J. Smith was running away from Daniel Block, 556 to 97, for the Republican nomination for Criminal court judge, and on the Democratic side William J. Murray was leading James A. Patterson, 668 to 499.

Sheriff Holley Far Ahead.

Sheriff Roy Holley, Democrat, led Everett Engelhart, 1,152 to 197, for renomination. F. M. Galloway and W. B. Bailey, Republicans, were running close. For county commissioner in the Gary district, Commissioner Charles Baron was forging far ahead of his opponent, Samuel Brownstein, 1,086 to 219.

Congressional Results.

Indianapolis, May 3.—(AP)—Congressional candidates leading for nomination by Republicans and Democrats from each of the state's 12 districts, on incomplete tabulation of the vote tonight, were as follows:

REPUBLICAN.

RAPE VICTIMS TO VIEW GIRL'S 3 ASSAILANTS

Youths Held for Showup Following Confessions.

Three young men who have confessed attacking Miss Rose Aumuller, 22, of 5032 North Major avenue, last Sunday morning, were held at the detective bureau last night for a showup before all recent victims of rape.

The prisoners, who were arrested by policemen from the Irving Park station, are:

Accepts Ride in Auto.

Miss Aumuller, who lives with her mother and brothers, had been to a dance Saturday night. She was on her way home early Sunday morning and was waiting for a bus at Central and Belmont avenues when the three youths came along in an automobile. They asked her if she wanted to ride with them.

After some hesitation and when they told her a bus would not come along for an hour, she accepted their invitation, she told Capt. Ira McDowell.

Instead of taking her home, however, they drove past it and out Higgins road. There Thomas De Michael and Christopher attacked her, tearing her clothing. Carmen De Michael, who recently was released from a hospital, did not molest her but watched his companions, Miss Aumuller said. They left her bruised and bleeding, to get home as best she could.

Remembers License Number.

The girl had noted the license number of the automobile, and although she was unable to go to the police station to make a complaint her brothers notified Capt. McDowell. Sergts. Ignatius Brandt and Edwin O'Malley learned the name of the owner of the automobile and arrested the three.

None of the three expressed any regret or sympathy for the girl after admitting the attack, according to Sergt. Brandt. The police had difficulty in restraining the girl's brothers from attacking the prisoners in the police station.

SENATORS VOTE 7 TO 4 AGAINST 4 PER CENT BEER

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

SENATOR J. H. METCALFE. [Acme Photo.]

Beer would promote temperance, reducing the evil effects of prohibition, said a minority of four.

With these divergent views, the senators reported out the bill authored by Senator Hiram Bingham [Rep., Conn.] to amend the Volstead act and permit the manufacture and sale of 4 per cent beer.

The minority report was signed by Senator Jesse H. Metcalf [Rep., R. I.], chairman of the subcommittee which heard the testimony, and by Senators W. Warren Barbour [Rep., N. J.], Robert M. La Follette [radical Rep., Wis.], and Robert J. Bulkley [Dem., O.]

Turn to Hard Liquor.

"The minority believes," the report stated, "that the consumption of malt beverages with a light alcoholic content has decreased, but that the use of hard liquors has more than offset this decline. The use of hard liquors would be greatly decreased if people were given an opportunity to purchase wholesome beer, 4 per cent of alcohol by volume. This bill will promote the cause of real temperance. At this time the young people of the country are drinking dangerous, habit forming hard liquors. The present generation of young people is not fundamentally different from young people of any other generation, as there is a strong tendency in all youth to try out whatever has a suggestion of being unusual or exciting.

"They have thus been led to the use of hard liquors, much of which would be curtailed by the legalization of wholesome beer. The wholesale crime and drunkenness which have grown out of the 18th amendment and the Volstead act hace wrought terrible havoc in the dignity of law and the respect for its existence. A real moral crisis exists and the minority believes the wisdom of congress may best be evidenced in the situation by meeting it with this bill. It will promote temperance, decrease crime, and generally contribute to the public welfare."

Shows Increased Consumption.

The report showed that the pre-prohibition consumption of malt liquors in 1918 was estimated in excess of 1,500,000,000 gallons; wine, 51,500,000 gallons; distilled spirits, 93,800,000 gallons. Consumption for 1930 was estimated at between 500,000,000 to 1,500,000,000 gallons of malt liquors; from 75,000,000 to 150,000,000 gallons of wine, and from 200,000,000 to 400,000,000 gallons of distilled spirits.

The seven dry committee members which disapproved the beer bill were: Senators Charles L. McNary [Rep., Ore.], Henry D. Hatfield [Rep., W. Va.], Phillips Lee Goldsborough [Rep., Md.], Morris Sheppard [Dem., Tex.], Bronson Cutting [radical Rep., N. M.], Edward P. Costigan [radical Dem., Colo.], and Ellison D. Smith [Dem. S. C.].

The majority members denied that drinking and drunkenness had increased since prohibition; they refused to give weight to scientific testimony that 4 per cent beer was a nonintoxicating and healthful beverage; they declared that the claims that the restoration of the beer industry would give employment to thousands of jobless were much exaggerated; they said that a renewed brewing industry would not materially assist agriculture; they asserted that the peak revenue from beer in pre-prohibition days had been only 66 millions.

With the Bingham beer bill out, and senate wets preparing a move for a vote upon it, the move to bring the O'Connor-Hull 2.75 per cent bill to a vote in the house continued to progress. The bill was refused a favorable report in the ways and means committee and a petition to discharge the committee and bring the bill to the house floor was started circulating. Representative John J. O'Connor [Dem., N. Y.], co-sponsor of the bill with Representative William E. Hull [Rep., Ill], announced today that 132 of the necessary 145 signatures had already been attached to the petition. He predicted that the remaining 13 names would be added within the next few days.

DRY INFORMER SENT TO JAIL FOR DRIVING AUTO WHILE DRUNK

St. Paul, Minn., May 3.—[U. P.]—Leroy Munson, 30, prohibition department informer, today pleaded guilty to charges of driving while drunk without repeating a previous defense that he became intoxicated while in "government service."

Munson, who claimed he was paid $5 for every "spot" he uncovered, refused to reveal in court his connection with the northwest prohibition headquarters.

Judge Clayton Parks sentenced Munson to 10 days in the workhouse, Munson was arrested Friday night. At the police station he said he had been visiting too many "spots" in search of evidence for dry agents. Robert D. Ford, head of the northwest prohibition enforcement district, said he had no record of Munson's employment by his office.

Other prohibition officials, however, including Clarence Williams, deputy administrator, and Roy Widing, agent with whom Munson said he worked, admitted Munson was employed by the department.

Munson said that both he and Widing had visited half a dozen "spots" before they separated. Munson was arrested shortly afterwards.

"We had moonshine and spiked beer, gin, alcohol, and some more moonshine," Munson said. "I paid for mine with my own money."

ENLIST YOUTH OR WE'LL LOSE OUT, W. C. T. U. WARNED

Young Voters Objective of New Drive.

A band of white ribbon wearers, attending the annual Cook county institute of the W. C. T. U., cried out yesterday for young people to carry on the fight for prohibition.

Speakers at the meeting, held in the Garrick building, voiced the fear that "unless we build up our young people we are going to lose out on our W. C. T. U." Literature concerned chiefly with the vote of the young people on the prohibition question was distributed at the meeting by child ushers.

Need More Branches.

"Where are our young people in Cook county?" asked Mrs. W. L. Ferguson, state president of the W. C. T. U., speaking at the all day session. "We need young people's branches of the W. C. T. U. On my speaking tour of the state I learned that unless we build up our young people we are going to lose out on our W. C. T. U. We must keep building up.

"In the campaign for new members, new unions and young people's branches, Cook county doesn't want to fall down. We have drifted in the last few years and now it is time to hear the call to get to work."

Arthur M. Barnhart, attorney and unsuccessful candidate for the senatorial nomination in the Second district, spoke at the afternoon session. He, too, was concerned by the uncertainty of the young people's stand on prohibition.

Again, the Children.

"What about the group of young people in this country?" he began. "I am informed by the Crusaders that the young people are drinkers because there is a law against drinking. If young people are going to get themselves into such a crazy state of mind that they want to violate the law, then these Crusaders ought to go home and treat their own children.

"Personally, I don't believe the young people are drinkers. Prohibition has restrained the young people. Liquor is hard to get."

The literature distributed at the meeting was on the subject: "How will they vote in 1932?" and read in part:

"Young people themselves say: 'We don't care for liquor—in itself! We don't understand what all this prohibition fuss is about. We cannot compare the present with a past we do not know, but we are told that conditions are worse today. We want to know the truth.'

"Will you leave the young people of your states to the wets to be educated. Tear away the smoke screen of discussion. Sell prohibition to the youth of the land."

PLAN REPEAL WEEK

Repeal week will be celebrated in Chicago beginning May 16, according to plans announced yesterday by the Woman's Organization for National Prohibition Reform. Meeting at their headquarters at 709 North Michigan avenue a board of strategy stated that the main objective in the local drive will be to secure new members for the Illinois division.

Mrs. George Brennan was chairman of the gathering at which the various chairmen made their reports. Mrs. Vincent Healy announced that she and her co-chairmen, are arranging to open many registration booths to sign up new members. These will be concentrated in the loop district. Registration places in outlying districts will include two in charge of Mrs. Stephen Luby in 63d and 79th streets; one at 53d, one on 57th in charge of Mrs. Herman Landauer; one or more in Evanston with Mrs. W. A. Sauer and Mrs. K. V. R. Nicol in charge, and one in Oak Park in charge of Mrs. William Frank Dunn.

Mrs. William H. Mitchell reported that three radio stations already have pledged to coöperate. Mrs. Valentine Bartlett sketched plans for canvassing lobbies of theaters. Others who spoke were Mrs. Mark Trude, Mrs. Leslie Wheeler, and Mrs. Stanley Field, chairman of Lake county.

Observance of the week will be officially opened, Mrs. Mitchell added, by a Columbia network broadcast on Sunday evening, May 15, by Mrs. Charles H. Sabin of New York.

DRYS OF C. A. C. PROTEST ATTACK ON PROHIBITION

A protest against the anti-prohibition resolution issued by the executive committee of the Chicago Association of Commerce March 11 was placed before George W. Rossetter, president of the association, yesterday by a group of members headed by Harry E. Kelly, former president of the Union League club. The delegation, which said it represented more than 50 members, asked Mr. Rossetter to repudiate the resolution on the ground that it embroiled the association in a highly controversial subject and contained statements that were "debatable and actually erroneous."

HARRY E. KELLY. [Moffett Photo.]

"I resent the executive committee's resolution as a scandalous defamation of the youth of the country," said Mr. Kelly. "It charges that prohibition has been particularly harmful to the youth of our land. Some of us who lived in the era of the despicable American saloon have our own experiences to guide us in determining whether the youth of the land were better off in the days of the open saloon than they are now under prohibition, and we have no trouble in determining that they are better off now.

"The country never possessed better boys and girls than now; no other country where intoxicating beverages flow without legal restraint possesses any better youth than those in the United States today.

"There is no 'complete breakdown of public and private morals.' Whatever breakdown some wet propagandists are alleging is not any more to be ascribed to the 18th amendment than it is to the invention and use of the automobile."

In the group with Mr. Kelly were John Nuveen, Graham Taylor, Dr. W. A. Evans, C. V. Gregory, Frank F. Harris, and William A. Dyche.

CHILD DROWNS IN POOT OF WATER.

Morris, Ill., May 3.—[Special.]—Irvin Svendsen, 4, was drowned yesterday afternoon when he fell into 14 inches of water in a tank in the yard of his home.

MR. MAYOR, TAKE NOTICE! GREEN JAILS GUN TOTER

Municipal Judge Thomas A. Green yesterday sentenced William Costello, 23 years old, 5129 West 31st street, to six months in the House of Correction and fined him $100 for carrying a concealed weapon.

Last week Judge Green dismissed a similar charge of gun carrying against "Golf Bag" Sam Hunt, a Capone gangster, on the ruling that the police did not have the right to search Hunt, who had been arrested twice previously while armed. In sentencing Costello yesterday Judge Green called attention to his decision in the Hunt case and said the circumstances were different in the two arrests.

"I hope our mayor will discover that I have sentenced at least one gun carrier," said Judge Green from the bench, referring to the rebuke administered to him by Mayor Cermak for freeing Hunt.

MISS TASHMAN: Thanks! Hattie Carnegie is responsible for my gown and the Hellmann's Slenderizing Diet Plan is partly responsible for my figure.

INTERVIEWER: Diet Plan, did you say?

MISS TASHMAN: I know! I have an appetite, too. And the very word "diet" used to make me shiver. But this diet plan is absolutely different. It allows you to eat almost everything that you want to eat.

All you do is substitute two delicious-tasting salads covered with Hellmann's Mayonnaise every day for too many thick cream soups and fattening foods. Then weigh yourself every week for two months or so and the results will really amaze you.

A diet plan that keeps you gloriously slender and yet lets you eat almost everything you want! How marvelous! Two crisp, nutritious, inexpensive salads every day instead of heavy, rich, fattening foods. And you can actually regain much of the slenderness, alertness, and glorious health that you may envy so in others!

Why not start The Hellmann Plan at once?

Remember to insist on Hellmann's. The quality, double-whipped mayonnaise. It contains breakfast eggs, special salad oils, vinegar and spices. Certain mayonnaise makers have recently introduced cheap, inferior fillers into their products in a frantic effort to lower prices. But this we refused to do. Hellmann's Mayonnaise remains a quality mayonnaise, absolutely unchanged, absolutely uncheapened.

So don't gamble. Always get Hellmann's. Its delicate, creamy deliciousness will be a revelation.

When you see gorgeous Lilyan Tashman in the new Paramount picture, "The Wiser Sex", you can see for yourself what this plan does for her. Stick to it yourself for 60 days. Weigh yourself regularly. And then you will agree that here at last is the sensible way to slenderize. Hellmann's Mayonnaise, at all grocers.

Witness Tells of Running Short Weight Inquiry.

George Mulford and William Mulford, robbery, sentenced to one to twenty years years in the penitentiary by Judge George Fred Rush.

BY JOHN BOETTIGER.

The Secret Six was disclosed yesterday as having paid the expenses of the investigation of short weighting conducted by the state's attorney during the régime of Dan Serritella as city sealer under the former city administration.

Serritella, a Capone henchman, and Harry Hochstein, who was chief deputy sealer under Serritella, are on trial before a jury in Judge James J. Kelly's court, charged with conspiring to allow merchants to short weight patrons.

Edward G. Wright, 12047 Harvard avenue, an agent for the Secret Six, testified that with funds supplied by that organization he had set up an office in the Transportation building and had hired and sent out women investigators to make purchases in grocery stores and meat markets.

Purchases Are Reweighed.

The purchases were reweighed under Wright's direction, he testified, and computations made as to how much the women investigators had been cheated, if at all, on each purchase.

Wright at first denied that he knew how much money the Secret Six put into the inquiry, but when Defense Attorney Michael Ahern cross-examined him closely, the witness computed an amount between $4,000 and $5,000.

Under questioning by Assistant State's Attorney Harold Keele, Wright testified he had been assigned to the Serritella investigation by Don L. Cooken, assistant to Alex Jamie, director of the Secret Six. Four other men from the organization also were assigned to the work, Wright said.

From the defense and some other quarters it had been intimated that the Better Business bureau had paid for the investigation, but Wright testified that he had never been employed by the bureau, and knew none of its officers.

Quizzed on Secret Six.

Wright was cross-examined by Attorney Ahern on the identity of the members of the Secret Six.

Q.—Who are the members of the Secret Six? A.—I don't know all of them.

Q.—Well, who do you know? A.—Mr. Jamie is the director. Robert I. Randolph is a member.

Q.—Who are the others? A.—I don't know.

Mr. Ahern then inquired closely into the qualifications of the women employed by Wright to make purchases.

Questioned as to one of the women, Wright said she had been recommended by a colored man named King, who works at the board of trade.

Q.—[By Mr. Ahern]—Who is this King? A.—Well, he is a member of an association which works with the Secret Six.

Q.—What's the name of the organization. A.—It hasn't any name.

Purposes of Secret Six.

On redirect examination Mr. Keele asked the witness what the purposes of the Secret Six were.

"To investigate and prosecute crimes of murder, kidnaping, rackets and graft," he replied.

Ahern Asks More Questions.

Mr. Ahern hopped in with more questions.

Q.—Is the Secret Six sworn to obey the constitution? A.—I don't know.

MR. KEELE—I object to Mr. Ahern's making a speech.

JUDGE KELLY—Well, do you want to make one now?

A general laugh went up and the witness was excused.

Earlier in the day two of the women investigators had been placed on the stand. They identified packages they had purchased and told in each case where they had made the purchase, what was the price per pound, the total price charged, what the article had weighed when taken to the investigation headquarters, what the price should have been, and how much the overcharge was. The overcharges quoted in yesterday's testimony ranged from 2 cents to 26 cents on each article.

REGAINS CHILD FOR A DAY

EPSTEIN GIVES UP BABY JOAN TO MOTHER'S SISTER

Drama of Adopted Girl Ends Happily.

BY VIRGINIA GARDNER.

A drama involving a 14 months old girl baby, Joan; her unmarried mother, Miss Agnes McConnell, and a young bachelor who had played the good Samaritan and then became so attached to Joan that he adopted her, had a happy solution yesterday in the court of Circuit Judge Thomas J. Lynch.

SAMUEL E. EPSTEIN.

The hearing was on a writ of habeas corpus obtained by Miss McConnell to force her baby's foster father, Samuel E. Epstein, to bring the baby into court, and was continued from last Saturday.

"You are not opposed to this mother's efforts to get her baby back, are you?" the court inquired of Mr. Epstein, who is assistant city prosecutor.

Judge for the Mother.

"On the contrary, nothing would make me happier than to see the baby returned to her if she is a fit person to rear the child," replied Mr. Epstein.

"I'm all for the mother who will fight to keep her child," said the judge. "I see no reason why she shouldn't have her baby even if she has made a misstep."

Attorneys for both sides then told the court that Mr. Epstein would agree to relinquish his legal hold on the child if she were adopted and reared by the mother's sister and her husband, Charles Kable.

On learning that such an arrangement would satisfy all concerned, Judge Lynch continued the hearing on the writ until today, when it is expected it will be dismissed. Attorneys Harry Becker and Samuel Rubenstein, representing Epstein, and Chester E. Lewis and Joseph A. Kolb, the mother's counsel, said Kable would go before County Judge Edmund K. Jarecki today with a petition to readopt Joan. When that is approved Judge Lynch will be asked to dismiss the writ.

Fails to Reply.

Miss McConnell, on the witness stand, was asked by Judge Lynch why she had begun the habeas corpus proceedings. She did not reply.

JUDGE LYNCH—Did you want your baby back? A.—Yes.

JUDGE LYNCH—What made you change your mind and decide you were willing to have your brother-in-law take it? A.—I feel they can give it a better home than I can.

FIND THE BANDIT WHO WAS SHOT BY 17 YEAR OLD GIRL

Charles Harrington, 16 years old, 6637 South Damen avenue, yesterday admitted to police that he was the bandit shot by 17 year old Marie MacLaughlin late Monday when he and a companion tried to rob the restaurant the girl and her mother operate at 9137 South Western avenue.

Harrington, who was wounded in the abdomen, was found by the police in his home. He was being nursed, after a fashion, by his robber companion, Alex Johnson, 19 years old, 5004 West Superior street.

After Miss MacLaughlin had identified both youths, Harrington was sent to the Bridewell hospital.

Stephen A. Malato Is Sued for Separate Maintenance

Stephen A. Malato, assistant corporation counsel, yesterday was sued for separate maintenance by Mrs. Dora Malato, 53 years old, 3631 Morse avenue, who charged cruelty in a bill filed in the Circuit court. Mrs. Malato's bill alleged that her husband had refused to abide by an agreement entered into in 1929 through which she would receive $225 a month for life for the support of herself and daughter Emily, 22 years old. The couple were married in October, 1907, and separated on Jan. 12, 1926.

YONKERS TEACHER VANISHES HERE.

Thief Loots Bishop's Auto of Articles Valued at $300

A thief broke the lock on the automobile of Dr. George Craig Stewart, Episcopal bishop of Chicago, as it was parked yesterday in front of the diocesan headquarters at 664 Rush street, and stole a traveling bag containing clothing and other articles valued at $300. Included in the loot were a special frock coat and two vests which, Bishop Stewart pointed out to police, would look out of place on any one but a bishop; two sermons, and a prayer book which he valued highly. The prayer book was a present from his predecessor, the late Bishop Sheldon M. Griswold.

The decree was granted last Friday by Circuit Judge Daniel P. Trude on grounds of cruelty. Mrs. Fish was awarded a cash settlement of $500 and alimony at the rate of $200 a month for two years.

2 FLYERS CLING TO STORY CLARKE TOOK OWN LIFE

Hold Lancaster; Free Mrs. Keith-Miller.

Miami, Fla., May 3.—(AP)—His adventurous flying career halted by a charge of first degree murder, Capt. W. N. Lancaster sat calmly in his jail cell today while a grand jury delved into the mysterious death ten days ago of the youthful fiancé of his flying partner, Mrs. J. M. Keith-Miller.

MRS. J. M. KEITH-MILLER. [Assoc. Press Photo.]

State's Attorney M. Vernon Hawthorne has asked the grand jury to indict Lancaster for the shooting of Haden Clarke, 26 year old writer, with whom he shared a room at the home of Mrs. Keith-Miller, noted Australian flyer.

Hawthorne last night obtained Lancaster's arrest on a warrant charging murder after he said the British aviator had confessed forging two notes supposedly left by Clarke before his death.

Lancaster maintains Clarke committed suicide, and that to protect Mrs. Keith-Miller he wrote the notes and signed Clarke's name to them. A handwriting expert declared the notes were not written by Clarke.

Woman Is Exonerated.

Mrs. Keith-Miller has been exonerated by Hawthorne of all knowledge of the shooting, but the prosecutor said he might call her as a witness.

The vicissitudes of flying and a series of aerial misfortunes preceded the tragedy, it was shown by the stories told by Mrs. Keith-Miller and Capt. Lancaster.

Some months ago they came to Miami. Low finances caused them to solicit Clarke's aid in writing a history of Mrs. Keith-Miller's life. While engaged in the task, Mrs. Keith-Miller and Clarke fell in love and wrote Capt. Lancaster, who was then in St. Louis, of their decision to marry.

Hurried to Miami.

He telegraphed congratulations and on April 20 came here hurriedly by airplane. Lancaster told Hawthorne he visited that night with Clarke in his room before they retired. During the night, he said, he was awakened by a shot and found Clarke unconscious with a bullet wound in the temple.

It was then he wrote the suicide notes, he said, with the hope he could revive Clarke and induce him to sign them. When Clarke died without regaining consciousness, Lancaster said he signed them himself.

Lancaster and Mrs. Keith-Miller were imprisoned several days and released while Hawthorne investigated the shooting.

She has stoutly protested her love for Clarke since his death and says she believes he took his own life.

CASSIUS RETURNS FROM HIS GRAVE TO SHARE ESTATE

It's a Surprise to Court, Widow and Son.

The coroner's records show that Cassius Shrefler is dead—that his body was taken from Lake Michigan last May 30, and that although the body had been in the water for some weeks, his son, Raymond, 10 years old, was able to make the identification because of a deformity in one of his father's legs.

Mrs. Lulu Winkler Shrefler, 912 Wilcox street, buried the body as that of her husband. Recently she filed the death certificate and burial record in the Probate court, claiming for the boy, Raymond, a share in the estate of Jesse Shrefler, Cassius' father. Jesse died last year, and left no will to govern disposition of his $15,000 estate. Under the laws of heirship, the grandson would have received a third of this.

Relatives Spring a Surprise.

Yesterday Cassius' sister, Mrs. Stacy Keast of Davenport, Ia., and the second wife of the elder Shrefler, Mrs. Isabelle Shefler, appeared before Oscar S. Caplan, assistant to Probate Judge Horner. They took the witness stand and swore that Cassius is still alive, working as an electrician in Davenport. Attorney M. G. Kaufman, who represented Mrs. Keast, added that he talked to Cassius only last Sunday.

"That's all very well," said Mr. Caplan, "but why doesn't he come in here himself and establish his heirship?"

His Reticence Explained.

"This is the situation," explained Attorney Kaufman. "Cassius left his wife three years ago. She has a warrant in the hands of authorities charging him with abandonment. If he steps across the state line, he'll be grabbed on that warrant."

Mr. Caplan entered an order legally "resurrecting" Cassius Shefler, and providing that he share equally with his sister and his step-mother in his father's estate.

Edison's Youngest Son Granted First Patent

West Orange, N. J., May 3.—[U.P.]—Theodore M. Edison, following in the footsteps of his famous inventor father, has been granted patent rights on a device for the elimination of vibration in machinery. Engineers said the new device could be attached to any machine from a phonograph to a large dynamo. It is the first independent patent for Edison's youngest son, though he has several others developed under his father. He is continuing the researches of the elder Edison for a rubber substitute.

"Yes," said the artist, "I show the drops going up because they might as well if a man wears a Scotch Mist Topcoat. If they hit his coat they bounce off. He can't get wet through any more than a duck can. The up-going drops in my drawing are to indicate that a Scotch Mist is waterproof."

Sure, a Scotch Mist is rainproof! But it is also a smart-looking, stylishly cut and beautifully tailored cheviot that doesn't seem even a distant relation to the rubberized raincoat. It's a handsome, Spring-to-Fall utility coat for all coat occasions.

REVEAL $500,000 BANK ACCOUNT AT PASCHEN'S TRIAL

Christian P. Paschen, city building commissioner during the last Republican administration, accused of income tax evasion, went on trial yesterday before Federal Judge John P. Barnes. He is the tenth of a group of gangsters and politicians to face such a charge. All of the nine preceding him have either pleaded guilty or have been found guilty by juries.

WM. J. FROELICH.

With the swift procedure typical of a federal court all the preliminaries were disposed of yesterday. Judge Barnes personally questioned the veniremen and the jury was chosen in less than three hours. Assistant Attorney General William J. Froelich stated the government's case against Paschen and Attorney Cassius Poust made an opening statement for Paschen.

Two Witnesses Testify.

The complete testimony of one witness and the partial story of a second had been heard before court adjourned.

Froelich was comparatively brief in his recital of the charges. For the year 1927, he said, Paschen reported no taxable income and paid no tax. For the year 1928 the defendant reported a tax of $818 and paid that amount. Actually, Froelich charged, the evidence will show that in 1927 Paschen had a net income of $232,418.08, upon which he should have paid a tax of $43,001.43.

In 1928, Froelich continued, Paschen had a net income of $326,250.47, upon which he owed $71,313.60. Pointing out the inadequacy of his return for 1927, Froelich said Paschen omitted all reference to the sale of 600 shares of Union Carbon and Carbide corporation stock, which he purchased in 1921 and sold in March, 1927. The purchase price was $31,000. Paschen sold it for $72,000.

Opens Savings Account.

The same year, Froelich continued, Paschen opened a savings account in the Foreman State National bank, since absorbed by the First National bank. He made a few deposits in it for a week, then transferred it to a checking account opened in the fictitious name of "A. B. Anderson."

From May, 1927, the month the "Anderson" account was opened, until it was closed in 1929, many deposits were made, the majority of them very large, the prosecutor said, reading sums of $5,000, of $19,000, of $23,000, and of $37,496, all in currency.

"None of these deposits was recorded on the defendant's books, and no tax was reported or paid on any part of the $500,000 deposited in this fictitious bank account," Froelich declared.

"The evidence will show that during the years involved in the indictment Paschen was building commissioner of the city of Chicago. While building commissioner, certain city contracts were performed by this defendant under other names, among them Commercial Building and Cleaning company, L. Kuhn & Co., and Commonwealth Cleaning company. All checks and payments received by the defendant from the city of Chicago under these assumed names were cashed and the proceeds deposited in the bank account under the name 'A. B. Anderson.'"

Defense Resembles Others.

Poust's defense for Paschen was that the defendant handled a great deal of money during the years in question, that he lost much money, that he negotiated many short term loans in the conduct of his contracting business and his large farm near Antioch, and that his political ventures were costly.

Assistant United States Attorney Dwight H. Green called as the first witness Charles W. Arndt, internal revenue agent, who identified the tax returns made by Paschen. Arndt was followed by Edward P. Russell of the Russell-Brewster company, stock brokers at 122 West Adams street.

Paschen was a client of his concern, said the broker, identifying ledger sheets of the account. At the close of court Green and Poust were arguing over four letters which Green sought to introduce—letters presumed to show Paschen's accounts, his gains and losses, in the stock market. Mr. Russell will continue on the stand this morning.

FLEE PRISON

JAMES O'CONNOR. HAROLD WITT.

Harold Witt and James O'Connor, both sentenced from Chicago for robbery, escaped yesterday from Stateville penitentiary by hiding in desks they had built in the prison. The desks, with the prisoners inside the crates, were loaded on a truck to be taken to the old prison at Joliet. On the way the prisoners broke out of the desks and fled.

Witt was serving a life term on the habitual criminal act. He was last convicted in Cook county in 1927, following his identification as one of five men who took $17,000 from the Bryn Mawr State bank in 1924. O'Connor was sentenced by Judge Harry B. Miller in January, 1928, to serve from one year to life for robbery of George Condos, owner of a restaurant at 6334 South Austin avenue, in 1927.

Prison authorities said they were sure other convicts aided in the escape.

More than twenty guards in automobiles and motorcycles who began searching the countryside found two suits of convict clothing near Lockport, a mile from the prison.

ESSKAYE CHIEF FACES CELL AS AIDS HESITATE

Georgia Sheriff Says "Prisoner or $2,000."

A split developed last night in the inner councils of Esskaye, Inc., the "prosperity" movement launched here by Edward Young Clarke, former imperial kleagle of the Ku Klux Klan.

The division of sentiment arose on the question whether the Esskaye brethren in Chicago should pay the $2,000 fine imposed on Kleagle Clarke at Jesup, Ga., for committing fraud and larceny in introducing Esskaye prosperity in that state two years ago, or permit the kleagle to spend the next two years on a Georgia chain gang.

Sheriff Makes Demand.

The alternatives were presented squarely to Esskaye yesterday by L. W. Rogers, sheriff at Jesup, who confirmed reports that the Georgia Supreme court had denied the kleagle's appeal, and who instructed the kleagle's bondsmen to produce him in court next Monday to avoid forfeiture of his bond and issuance of a capias for his arrest.

The kleagle telegraphed his attorney, Thomas Scott of Atlanta, to hasten here for a conference. He then decided to take council with his "cabinet," and called an evening meeting at the Morrison hotel.

The cabinet, it appeared, includes everybody on the Esskaye payroll at 100 North La Salle street from the switchboard girl to the press agent. About thirty cabinet members filed into a mezzanine parlor at the Morrison to commiserate Kleagle Clarke.

"Attorney General" Talks.

The meeting was closed. However, Leonard J. Grossman, once alderman of the Fifth ward, later organizer of the "National League Against Usury," and now "Attorney General of the Esskaye Temple of Justice," brought out news of the split.

"The cabinet is divided," he exclaimed. "Some think it would be a glorious thing for Esskaye to permit our gallant leader to submit himself to martyrdom that the cause may grow. They believe it would make him another Gandhi.

"Others believe it would be wiser to accept the persecution of the Georgia courts and pay the fine in order that Esskaye may not be deprived of the genius of our intrepid colonel."

Many members of the cabinet have a financial stake in Kleagle Clarke's future, according to Gordon Smith of the Better Business bureau, who has been investigating Esskaye for the last six weeks.

Each person joining the Esskaye inner council is required to purchase a $100 "unit," in Esskaye Founders, Inc., Mr. Smith said, with the promise of a half cent bonus on each regular member taken in, up to 1,000,000 members. Clarke, according to the better business bureau, is understood to be president and sole holder of the 24 shares of stock in Esskaye Founders, which was incorporated in New York and incorporated for profit.

Regular members, paying a $10 fee, are listed on the books of an associate company, Esskaye Movement, Inc., incorporated in Delaware and incorporated not for profit, according to the business bureau.

1,900 DAIRYMEN THREATEN STRIKE IF PRICE IS CUT

Woodstock Meeting Rejects Dealers' Demands.

There will be no reduction in the retail price of milk in Chicago if the decrease is to be shouldered by the farmer-producers. This was indicated last night when representatives of 1,900 McHenry county dairymen met at Woodstock and authorized the Pure Milk association, their bargaining agency, to oppose the demands of Chicago dealers for a cut in raw milk.

"We will go on strike before we consent to the Chicago dealers' demands," said a spokesman. "To accept their cut would bankrupt 25 to 30 per cent of our members."

Aldermen Reopen Price Quiz.

The McHenry county meeting was one of several developments in the local milk situation during the day. In the afternoon an aldermanic subcommittee headed by Ald. David L. Sutton reopened an inquiry to learn "why the dealers have not reduced milk to ten cents a quart." Last night representatives of the dealers met with officials of the Dairy Workers' union to negotiate a proposed salary cut.

The reduction in the price of raw milk demanded by the dealers is 25 cents per 100 pounds. With this cut they could lower the retail price of milk from 12 to 11 cents per quart and from 8 to 7 cents per pint, they said.

18,000 Farmers Affected.

Some 18,000 farmers in twenty-six counties in Illinois, Indiana, and Wisconsin would be affected by a reduction. The McHenry county farmers comprise the largest unit. All of the 18,000 are members of the Pure Milk association. The stand of the McHenry county group last night expresses the sentiment of all the members, D. N. Geyer, manager, says.

Probabilities are that the difference between the producers and the distributors will be submitted to arbitration. Officials of both organizations will meet today in the Hotel La Salle.

The conference between dealers and the dairy workers at the La Salle yesterday was harmonious. The workers, numbering 2,000, are expected to accept a reduction in pay from $44 to $40 a week. The drivers accepted a $5 reduction, plus a cut in commissions, last week. They will now receive $45 a week.

Vote Friday on Pay Cut.

The dairy workers will meet Friday to vote on the proposed wage cut. At the same time Ald. Sutton's subcommittee will meet. The alderman pointed out last night that the producers have taken two price cuts, amounting to 30 per cent, and that the drivers have accepted a 14 per cent reduction, but the dealers have not reduced the retail price of milk.

The dealers assert that the wage decrease for the drivers has enabled them to reduce retail prices a half cent a bottle. The other half cent should be borne by the farmers, they declared.

MARCONI WINS KELVIN MEDAL OF ENGINEERING

[Copyright: 1932: By the New York Times.]

LONDON, May 3.—Guglielmo Marconi today received the coveted Kelvin medal, one of the highest prized honors of the engineering profession.

The presentation was made by Lord Rutherford, British physicist, in the presence of the Italian ambassador and hundreds of persons distinguished in all branches of engineering and science. Describing Marconi as a "pioneer in the conquest of nature," Lord Rutherford recalled the skepticism he faced in the earliest days of the wireless and said that his success within twenty years was a "magnificent achievement."

The medal is awarded triennially in memory of Lord Kelvin, British scientist, as a marked distinction for engineering work. American as well as British engineering societies contributed to the medal fund. One of the earliest recipients was Elihu Thomson, American, whose researches led directly to Marconi's discoveries.

SUES FOR $250,000

HELEN KANE.

New York, May 3.—(AP)—Helen Kane, singer who became known as the "Boopa-Doop Girl," filed suit in Supreme court today asking $250,000 damages and a permanent injunction to prevent the Paramount Publix corporation, Max Fleischer, cartoonist, and the Fleischer studios from producing and showing the "Betty Boop" animated cartoons.

HOOPESTON OWES NOTHING AND HAS CASH IN TREASURY

Hoopeston, Ill., May 3.—[U. P.]—Hoopeston, a city of 6,000, whose mayor gets 50 cents a year salary and whose aldermen receive 25 cents a year, leads the way for Illinois cities seeking to trim expenses.

Its budget for the ensuing year was studied with pride by the aldermen today.

The city's financial statement was one to be proud of, as Mayor E. H. Richcreek and the eight aldermen gathered for their annual budget meeting. It showed the city's bonded indebtedness was nothing at all and that $25,000 was loaned out to citizens at interest. There was money in the treasury after all bills were paid.

But the aldermen improved even on that. They voted to frame their salary vouchers instead of cashing them. They voted to reduce salaries of other city employés still further, to reduce the wheel tax from $3 to $1.50 and the cigaret license from $50 to $25.

To Cut Taxes 33 1-3 Per Cent.

Freeburg, Ill., May 3.—[U. P.]—The city of Freeburg, with $35,000 in the treasury, has more money than its officials know what to do with and they plan to reduce taxes 33 1-3 per cent.

Mayor Frank Heiligstein called a meeting of the city council today, told the councilmen that $10,000 is left over from taxes collected last year, and $25,000 from this year.

"We don't need so much money," he said. "Everything is much cheaper and we can get along on less. We haven't spent a cent of this year's taxes and we won't have to for a long time yet."

M'KEE MARSHALL FIGHTS REMOVAL IN DETROIT CASE

McKee Marshall, who was arrested at the request of the Detroit authorities on Monday immediately after he had been released from the Joliet penitentiary, denied yesterday in his cell at the Joliet police station that he had ever been a bucket shop operator in Detroit.

He asserted that his only connection with the charges in Detroit grew out of the fact that a man named Prinz, to whom he had loaned money, was in that line there. Marshall said that he had never been a partner and knew nothing of the conduct of the Prinz business.

It is expected that he will be brought to Chicago in a few days. He and his attorney, Simon Herr, will fight against extradition from Illinois. Marshall was sent to Joliet in 1922 for embezzlement.

Naval Treaties Must Stand! U. S. Tells Arms Conference

BY JAY ALLEN.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

GENEVA, May 3.—Senator Claude A. Swanson today again rushed to the defense of the American navy—aircraft carriers this time—against the French and most of the small powers.

The senator declared emphatically that only four powers had aircraft carriers and that the tonnages are taken care of in the London and Washington naval treaties, which must be allowed to stand.

"The American delegation could not envisage modification of the actual strengths before 1936," he said.

France Seeks To Reopen Pact.

The French also spoke up in the person of Charles Dumont, former naval minister. He reminded Senator Swanson of article 23 of the London treaty, in which the possibility of such a general conference as this was foreseen and which would permit modification.

Dumont insisted that all technical matters discussed at the Washington and London conferences ought to be reopened here. The French, he said, would respect the signature of the Washington treaty, but the London treaty makers themselves foresaw the possibility of a general treaty to replace it.

Swanson Attacks Submarines.

Senator Swanson argued that aside from the American indisposition to remake the treaties, aircraft carriers are interesting from an economist's viewpoint because they are useful in scouting and make up for cruisers. Moreover, he said, bombing on the high seas is effective against submarines, which the United States regards as highly offensive weapons.

If the fleets were not protected by their own bombing planes, they would be subject to bombing by aircraft from land bases, the senator argued. He intimated that if aircraft carriers are abolished Japan would attain a parity in naval strength which she now does not have.

After a long discussion, the battleships commission decided to send copies of all its speeches to the steering committee to digest.

Russia Makes Reservations.

The Russians struck a note of reality in their statement concerning factors to be taken into account in reduction of armaments to the "lowest point consistent with national safety." They made it clear that their disarmament, if any, is conditional on Japan's.

Russia will take into account, they said, "the existence of neighboring states which have violated international obligations designed to safeguard peace, have engaged in hostilities without declaring war and have sent armed naval and military forces into foreign territory on the pretext of defending their citizens or interests, and which, consequently, do not afford guarantees for observance of the proposed convention for the reduction of armaments."

BLOSSOM QUEEN IS WELCOMED BY CHICAGO MAYOR

Mayor Cermak's official welcome to Chicago was extended yesterday to southwestern Michigan's blossom queen, Margery Crampton of Grand Rapids, and her bevy of beauties. The twenty-six pretty delegates paid their respects to the executive just before returning to the twin cities—Benton Harbor and St. Joseph—where the annual blossom festival is in progress this week. Queen Margery, on behalf of the fête, invited Mayor Cermak to attend the grand parade of the blossoms on Saturday afternoon. They also reported enthusiastically to his honor on their entertainment in Chicago the last two days. Yesterday's program included a tour of Mandel Brothers' department store during the morning and a lunch there at noon.

TAX PAYMENTS ON PERSONALTY KEEP ROLLING IN

Although the penalty date for 1930 personal property taxes was passed on Monday, the collections at the office of County Treasurer McDonough yesterday continued to be largely from such bills. The day's receipts aggregated $1,092,437. A total of $750,014 was paid on personal property taxes. Many of the payments arrived by mail. All such letters mailed on Monday were accepted without the application of the 1 per cent penalty which now is due.

Checks for all county employés and all county pensioners will be distributed on Thursday and Friday, Assistant Controller M. J. O'Connor said yesterday. The pay will be for the whole month of January. The employés still will be three months behind in their salaries.

Aviation Notes

Three planes of the 33d Aviation division, Illinois National Guard, piloted by Capt. S. G. Bovey, Lieut. W. V. Newhall and Lieut. J. K. Fogle, yesterday afternoon flew in formation over the grave of Lieut. Henry Sandusky, Army Air Corps Reserve pilot who died Saturday when he and Lieut. Charles H. Fargo crashed in their plane rather than abandon it over a thickly populated district of the city.

Duncan Hodges, manager of Pal Waukee airport, has gone to Philadelphia to accept delivery of the first autogiro to be owned in Chicago. The autogiro, a Pitcairn powered by a 160 horsepower Kinner motor, will be used as a demonstrator at Pal Waukee, which has been made the local sales agency.

Harold Wescoat, president of the Royale Air Line. The line will be operated from June 1 to Sept. 5, covering the 60 mile distance in 35 minutes, compared to a rail trip of a day and a half from Duluth. Husbands are OPEN-MINDED

OF COURSE, you want an electric refrigerator because you know how convenient it will be—how it will save time, and work and worry—and how it will enable you to give your family better food—more of it—a bigger variety—and at less cost.

Naturally men don't know about such things, because they are occupied with different problems. But they are open-minded. And when the proposition is explained to them, they see the wisdom of such a sound investment.

Explain it to your husband this way. Remind him that a Kelvinator actually pays for itself—that for as little as 25 cents a day you can put a Kelvinator in your kitchen and enjoy the benefits and economies of the finest electric refrigeration.

Explain to him that you can save money by quantity buying; that you can save food by using "made-dishes"; and that the delicious frozen desserts, salads and delicacies you can make in a Kelvinator represent another source of saving.

Tell him Kelvinator has been building electric refrigeration for 18 years and that Kelvinator's fully automatic 4-Zones of Cold, the Frost Chest, unequalled ice capacity, World's Record Fast Freezing Speed, the Kold-Keeper, the Kelvin Crisper and automatic electric lights are some of the exclusive features that make a Kelvinator so satisfactory and so economical to own.

You will find he's open-minded. When he learns how inexpensive a Kelvinator really is—how easy it is to buy—how much money it will actually save—and how much it will mean to you, and to the whole family—he will gladly tell you to "go get your Kelvinator".

Why not pick out the Model you want now? Any of the Kelvinator dealers listed below will gladly show you the different Models—there are 17 of them, a size and type for every home and every pocketbook—and explain the many reasons why a Kelvinator is such a safe, sound and satisfactory investment.

HOUSE SLASHES ONLY 37 MILLION OFF U. S. BUDGET

Economy Bill Wrecked; Votes Veterans Aid.

ILLINOIS.

For—De Priest, W. E. Hull, Karch, Keller, Kelly, Beam, Schuetz, Britten, Reid, Buckbee, Adkins, Allen, Chiperfield, Hall, Major, Arnold, Parsons, Yates.

Against—M. D. Hull, Chindblom, Holaday, Rainey.

Not voting—Sabath, Igoe, Johnson, Kuns.

Then Mr. McDuffie moved to substitute for this provision a 10 per cent pay cut without exemption of all salaries above $2,000 with the proviso that no salaries should be reduced below $2,000.

Under the terms of this plan the $10,000 salary of senators and congressmen would have been reduced to $9,000.

How Central States Voted.

The McDuffie proposal was rejected on a roll call, 167 to 231, the central states lining up as follows:

ILLINOIS.

Against—Jacobsen, Ramseyer.

Offers President's Plan.

Then Representative C. William Ramseyer [Rep., Ia.] sought to procure the substitution of the President's plan which the White House had estimated would save 82 millions in pay roll cost if applied to all employés. Mr. Ramseyer, however, proposed to exempt employés compensated at more than $2,000 annually. Per diem employés would be placed on a five days a week basis and annual salaried employés would be required to take a 30 days' furlough without pay. But the house voted down this proposal, 146 to 250.

The result was to ratify the 11 per cent cut with the Britten $2,500 exemption. This will operate to reduce the salaries of senators and congressmen to $9,175.

The proposed army and navy consolidation was rejected, 187 to 211, the central states members dividing as follows:

ILLINOIS.

For—Adkins, Allen, Beam, Britten, Chindblom, Chiperfield, De Priest, W. E. Hull, Keller, Kelly, Schuetz, Yates, Hall.

Against—Arnold, Holaday, M. D. Hull, Karch, Kuns, Major, Parsons, Rainey, Reid.

Not voting—Buckbee, Dieterich, Johnson, Igoe, Sabath.

INDIANA.

For—Kopp, Haugen, Cole, Ramseyer, Swanson.

Against—Jacobsen, Robinson, Dowell, Thurston, Campbell, Gilchrist.

Thumbs Down on Proposal.

The economy committee had sought to suspend the Saturday half holiday in order to save nine millions, but by a vote of 132 to 267 the house turned thumbs down on the proposal.

Another suggested saving was knocked out when the house voted 183 to 209 against the committee plan to allow intradepartmental transfers of not to exceed 15 per cent of any appropriation to another appropriation.

The army and navy transports and the Panama canal government ships on which senators and congressmen junket at public expense were saved from the economy ax on a roll call which disclosed 98 members for and 298 against the committee proposal to abolish these services and turn the business over to commercial ships at an estimated saving of two million dollars.

Vote Aid to Veterans.

The hardest wallop of all was reserved for the section of the bill proposing limitation of benefits to world war veterans which the committee had estimated would save $48,714,000. These economies were knocked out by a vote of 42 to 203.

The provision eliminated proposed to withdraw benefits from veterans with incomes of $1,500 or more if single and $3,500 or more if married, to reduce to $20 a month payments to veterans in institutions who are without dependents, to impose restrictions on emergency officers' returned pay, to repeal per diem allowances, to limit retroactive benefits, and to restrict revival of government insurance.

It was Representative Alfred L. Bulwinkle [Dem., N. C.], himself a veteran, an overseas major, who moved to strike out all of title 10 of the bill, providing for economies in veterans' benefits, with the exception of the section providing for a joint congressional committee to survey veterans' legislation and administration and "report a national policy with respect to such veterans and their dependents."

"Those of us who are service men would rather wait for the results of cool, calm deliberation," Mr. Bulwinkle said.

"What the country expects of this congress," objected Representative Robert G. Simmons [Rep., Neb.], "is immediate economies. The amendment of the gentleman from North Carolina is a subterfuge. All that the taxpayers will get out of it is an investigation and the privilege of continuing to pay tax bills to the federal government. What will be the result? This joint investigating committee will report to the short session next winter, and everybody knows there then will be no chance of action before March 4."

The Bulwinkle motion was carried, 211 to 119.

Douglas Recapitulates Results.

Consideration of the bill in committee of the whole house having been concluded, Congressman Lewis W. Douglas [Dem., Ariz.] recapitulated the results.

"The ways and means committee," he said, "found that it would be necessary to effect economies to the extent of 200 millions in order to balance the budget. The economy committee undertook this task and brought in a bill that would bring about 200 millions of savings. But what the house has now done has made it impossible to balance the budget. Of the 200 millions of economies only $42,314,000 has been left in the bill."

"The budget has been unbalanced for three years," shouted Representative F. H. La Guardia [Rep., N. Y.], "and it is a physical impossibility to balance it in one year."

The preceding general debate on the veterans' provisions was for the most part orderly, but at times acrimonious. Particularly bitter was a verbal exchange between Representative John E. Rankin [Dem., Miss.], chairman of the veterans' committee, on the one hand, and Representatives John McDuffie [Dem., Ala.] and Douglas of the economy committee on the other.

Representative Rankin, at the outset of his remarks, flayed the economy group for its failure to consult members of the veterans' committee in connection with the veterans' provisions of the retrenchment bill.

"I am sorry," interposed Representative McDuffie, "that we neglected to call upon the genius of the distinguished soldier from Mississippi."

"I refuse to yield for any more of his mock comedy," Rankin told the chair, and then ironically inquired of the house:

"Who among us set up the gentleman from Alabama as an economic genius? I'll put my record up against his at any time."

Shakes His Head in Anger.

Whereupon Representative Douglas, coming to the support of his colleague on the economy committee, inquired no less ironically:

"Is the gentleman from Mississippi an economic genius?"

Rankin did not answer directly; he shook his head in anger and shouted, "The gentleman from Arizona is responsible for the inclusion of this title in the bill."

"Yes," replied Douglas, himself a veteran, cited by Gen. Pershing during the Argonne offensive and by the Belgian government during the Lys-Escault offensive. "I am. I admit it and I'm proud of it.'

And for the last thirty minutes of the general debate period he told his colleagues why he was proud of it.

"Were the ex-service men aware of conditions as they really are," he said, "they are patriotic and courageous enough to rise up and say, 'This must stop!'"

"I ask you," he appealed, "to consider this proposition honestly, courageously and without prejudice. Bear in mind that this section deprives no man of anything justly his. Bear in mind that it will save the government 300 million dollars in ten years' time."

"This is no time to set ourselves up individually," he continued. "This is a crisis. We must stand by our guns. And the question is, have you the courage to stand up under fire?

"Every philosopher has told us that a democratic government stood in danger of control by powerful organized minorities. I tell you gentlemen that that time has almost come in the United States. It is your duty to stand against these minorities."

ROB STORE OWNER OF $1,536.

Three men threatened William Solomon, owner of a clothing shop at 9229 Commercial avenue, with revolvers yesterday until he showed them where he had hidden $1,536 in a cigar box. He was tied up and thrust into the basement of the shop before the robbers left with the money.

Vote on Federal Pay Slashes

Washington, D. C., May 3.—(AP)—Of the half dozen votes which preceded house passage of the economy bill tonight, members considered most significant that by which the chamber reaffirmed its previous decision to raise exemptions under the 11 per cent federal pay cut plan from $1,000 to $2,500. The roll call follows:

KINGFISH LONG ONLY CRAWFISH, SAYS BROTHER

"Huey for Huey and No One Else," He Charges.

New Orleans, La., May 3.—[Special.]—"He may be called the Kingfish by many outside of Louisiana and by a few of his satellites in this state, but Huey P. Long to the majority of right thinking people is nothing more than a crawfish." This was by way of introduction to a statement issued today by Julius T. Long, leading Louisiana lawyer and brother of Huey.

The statement continues:

"Huey's one man revolt against the Democratic party and Democratic leadership is amusing to me, because I know him as few know him. In the course of his life he has backed up on about every sound principle he enunciated.

Neither "Heart Nor Brains."

"Any person can quote scriptures and rant and rave about the hardships of the common people. It takes a man with a heart and with brains to plan ways to aid the common people. Huey hasn't either. I want to assure the American people that Huey Long cares as little for the interests of the common people as any man in public life. He stands for nothing which will not, in his opinion, benefit him either politically or financially.

"Soon after he took the oath as senator I called attention to the fact that Huey has the support and backing of some of the strongest power trust and special interests in the United States. All he wants is to root out any other man who has a chance to obtain political preferment and have himself substituted for what it tickles him to be called the 'Kingfish.'

"His record as governor of Louisiana will not disclose one single instance where he stood for a thing indicating he did so from an unselfish viewpoint. When Huey went in with the New Orleans ring, which he had denounced and fought, I and a lot of other Democrats left him and will never again support him for public office. He is out of the Democratic party and he belongs out of it. With him it is a case of rule or ruin, and now I believe he has met his match.

"The American people will soon learn that he has nothing to offer them except bluster and braggadocio. Huey Long is for Huey Long and no one else. Party, people, and friends mean nothing to him."

KINGFISH LONG HITS BACK AT ROBINSON IN SENATE BATTLE

Washington, D. C., May 3.—[Special.]—Senator Huey [Call Me Kingfish] Long [Dem., La.] continued today in his effort to do what he set out to do last week, that is, show up Senator Joe T. Robinson of Arkansas, Democratic senate leader, as one of these so-called tools of big business.

The Kingfish began by stating that he expected the Democratic caucus, now that it knew just where he stood, to give him some committee assignments in place of those which he had tossed defiantly back at Senator Robinson. His old assignments were parceled out to other members earlier today, after the Democratic steering committee had accepted his resignations.

Senator Long was grieved that Senator Robinson was not on the senate floor to hear him speak. It was rumored that he was playing golf.

"However," said Long, "I feel that I owe it to the senator from Arkansas to reciprocate the very kind compliments he paid my sundry qualifications the other day."

That was sarcasm, of course, for Senator Robinson's "compliment" had not been kind at all.

"I reciprocate," the Louisiana senator went on, "by stating that I know him to be a man of great standing in our section of the country. I send to the desk an extract and ask the clerk to read it."

The clerk read. The extract was from a legal directory listing 46 corporations for which Senator Robinson and his law partners are counsel.

DONNELLEY CASE CITED TO SENATE AS UNJUST TAX

Washington, D. C., May 3.—[Special.]—The Reuben H. Donnelley estate of Chicago was cited in a brief filed with the senate finance committee today as an example of the injustice of the government assessing inheritance taxes on the basis of the high security quotations of 1929. The brief was presented by James H. Winston, and a group of Chicago lawyers.

"The general effect of the existing law may be visualized by a brief examination of its application to a single case which is typical of others and a fair example of the unintended hardship," says the brief.

"Reuben H. Donnelley of Chicago died in February, 1929, owning among other assets, 88,000 shares of Montgomery Ward stock, which had a quoted market value on the date of his death of $130 per share. His estate, including this stock at quoted values on the date of death, comes within the 20 per cent bracket. Now 20 per cent of $130 per share is $26 per share as the government's transfer tax, notwithstanding that most of this Montgomery Ward stock is still on hand and is today selling at $8 per share.

"In other words, instead of being required to give one-fifth of this stock to the government as its toll the estate would be required, in effect, to sell the stock and give to the government the entire proceeds from the sale and $16 per share besides.

"In passing, it might be mentioned that this Montgomery Ward had been in the family for many years. The decedent's wife was the daughter of one of the founders of the company. It was the desire to keep the stock in the family. The decedent was in no way responsible for the inflated price of the stock. It was not a case of speculation. Upon no sound basis of reasoning was Montgomery Ward stock ever really worth $130 a share. Neither book value, dividends, nor corporate earnings ever justified even half that price and yet speculators, operating in the atmosphere of the 'new era' ran the price on the exchange to $130 and higher. Mr. Donnelley's only fault in this connection was to die, having the title to this family stock.

"We respectfully submit that to tax the transfer of that stock on the basis of $130 per share would be to tax it on a basis of value to which no one expects that it will ever again attain."

BABY DESERTED; SEEK MOTHER.

A mother who deserted her newly born baby boy in the County hospital is being sought by Juvenile court authorities. The child was born on Feb. 27 to a woman who gave her name and address as Mrs. Vivian Borman, 3901 Sheridan road. No Mrs. Borman is known at that address.

RANSOM LETTERS PUZZLE KIDNAPED YOUTH'S FAMILY

Various ransom demands which have reached the father of Gustave Miller of Joliet, who was kidnaped last Thursday, left the elder Miller in doubt yesterday as to what course to pursue. The father, Gus Miller, a dealer in malt and hops, said he was anxious to deal with the kidnapers without police assistance, but he felt impelled to consult Police Chief Nicholas Fornango at Joliet about the letters.

One letter directed him to go to an eastern city and insert an advertisement in newspapers announcing "Jake in here" and to have $25,000 ready. Another letter contained directions regarding the securing of $25,000 in bills of five, ten, and twenty dollar denominations, and to leave them under the Ruby street bridge in Joliet.

The kidnaped youth, who is 22, was seized when he was leaving his fiancée, Miss Catherine Meisrow. The ransom letters contained references to her.

SENATE ASSURES VOTE ON NAVY OF TREATY POWER

Defeat 'Wait for Geneva' Plea of Pacifists.

Washington, D. C., May 3.—[Special.]—Pacifist and little navy opposition to the Hale bill, authorizing construction of all ships needed to bring the American fleet up to the tonnage limits of the London and Washington naval treaties, were put to rout in the senate late today when that body by a vote of 46 to 25 made the naval bill the unfinished business.

FREDERICK HALE. [Assoc. Press Photo.]

As a result of the senate action today a vote on the Hale bill some time before congress adjourns seems assured. Indications are the measure will be shunted about considerably by advocates of other legislation and displaced temporarily on several occasions, but Chairman Frederick Hale [Rep., Me.] of the senate naval affairs committee expressed confidence that the measure will be passed.

Foes Look to Geneva.

Debate on the Hale motion paving the way for consideration of his bill revealed that American participation in the Geneva arms reduction conference and the one year naval construction truce will be the chief obstacles which the warship construction measure will have to hurdle before it can be approved. All indications tonight are that the pacifist and little navy groups, together with a group of Democratic and Republican supporters of President Hoover, will oppose immediate enactment of the bill on the ground its passage would embarrass the American delegation at Geneva and violate the spirit of the naval building truce.

Robinson Opposed.

That the opposition intends to utilize the Geneva conference and the Hoover-Mussolini inspired naval building truce as ammunition with which to oppose early passage of the Hale bill was disclosed today when Senator Joseph T. Robinson [Dem., Ark.], minority leader and a member of the American delegation to the London arms conference, urges his colleagues to hold up action on the Hale bill pending the outcome of the Geneva parley.

Although several of the radical Republican group opposed to the Hale bill fought the measure on pacifist grounds, Senator Robinson asserted his opposition to passage of the bill at this time solely due to a desire not to embarrass the American delegation at Geneva or to have the senate take any action which would violate the spirit of the naval building truce.

Favors Bill if Geneva Fails.

Once it was determined that the Geneva conference would get nowhere, he said he would favor enactment of a bill providing the ships needed to give the United States parity with Great Britain. He said also he felt that the senate should delay action until it was found whether the Geneva delegates could arrange for still further reduction in navies.

"Unless the Geneva conference shall reach an agreement which will make unnecessary that course," said Senator Robinson, "I shall favor building our navy to the standard contemplated by the London treaty. Many senators, however, agree with me that the present is an inopportune time to make the authorization carried in the bill of the senator from Maine.

"Early in the present year what is called an armament truce was entered into by the leading nations participating in the Geneva conference.

"I can see," he continued, "how it is possible that other nations who have entered into the truce referred to and who are participating in the conference might question the good faith of our proceedings if we went ahead at this time and authorized a big building program."

Lewis Challenges Leader.

Hardly had the Democratic leader taken his seat before Senator James Hamilton Lewis [Dem., Ill.] challenged the wisdom of the conclusions drawn by his party leader. The Illinois senator said he disagreed with the idea that this country must mark time until European powers decided what size of a navy we should build. He urged the senate to take up the naval bill at once and pass it, asserting that such a course would stimulate action at Geneva far more than a senate decision to hold up the naval bill until the conference was over. Senator Lewis asserted that the senate should make it plain to Europe that this country intended to provide for its national defense interests regardless of what happened abroad.

"Nothing would stimulate action at Geneva more quickly," said Senator Lewis, "than the receipt of word there that the United States has proceeded to arrange for the passage of legislation which would assure the building of all ships needed to bring the American fleet up to the limits permitted by the Washington and London treaties."

Hoover Silent on Bill.

Although no mention was made today as to the administration's attitude on the bill, it was disclosed that this far President Hoover has refused to permit the budget director to notify the naval affairs committee that passage of the bill has the approval of the administration. Whether President Hoover will urge Republican senators to fight the bill on the floor of the senate has not yet been disclosed.

In reply to Mr. Robinson's suggestion that action on the bill be delayed thirty days, Chairman Nye said he would agree if a unanimous consent agreement were reached assuring a vote before the session ended. Senator George W. Norris [Rep., Neb.], radical leader, objected to the consent agreement and a vote was taken.

COURT RULES FOR HER

MRS. ALICE MIRIAM HALL WALLER. [TRIBUNE Photo.]

WALLER DIVORCE SUIT IS LEGAL, JUDGE DECIDES

Judge Daniel P. Trude ruled yesterday that Chicago is the real residence of Edward C. Waller Jr., one of the city hall real estate "experts" of former years, and that the Circuit court has jurisdiction to hear the divorce suit of Mrs. Alice Miriam Hall Waller of Coronado Beach, Cal.

The jurisdiction of the court was attacked by Mrs. Mary Kirk Waller, mother of the defendant, and by the two banks which hold Waller's estate in trust. In her suit his wife seeks injunctions preventing disposal of any of the trust estate assets, so she may be able to collect possible alimony and support payments for their children, in the event she wins a decree. She charges desertion. The judge indicated this would be granted.

"I am going to use the word 'home' in a broad sense," said Judge Trude in ruling on Waller's residence, "meaning a place to which you go after you have been some place else. In the days when every one was on a financial debauch Mr. Waller went to California, Palm Beach, Canada, and Nantucket, here and there, but he always came back here."

In connecting the alleged desertion with Chicago Judge Trude referred to a deposition made by Waller in which he said he told his wife he was to leave her after she asked him to come and see her in the Blackstone hotel in November, 1929, and after she had revealed something "which he had not suspected before."

1st "International Humane League" Seeks Charter

An application for incorporation of an organization to be known as the International Humane league was sent to the secretary of state's office at Springfield yesterday by Mrs. E. C. Dow of Chicago. The papers were signed by Mrs. Dow, Mrs. Irene Castle McLaughlin, owner of Orphans of the Storm; Mrs. Charlotte L. Hunt, president of the Chicago Humane Education society, and Mrs. H. E. Joseph, president of the Taxpayers and Voters league. Mrs. Dow said it will be the first international humane league, with headquarters in Chicago and representatives in other countries.

Biologist Jailed; Called Jews a "Parasitic Race"

BUDAPEST, Hungary, May 3.—(AP)—Prof. Louis Mehly, a biologist, was sentenced to two weeks' imprisonment today for publicly calling the Jews a "parasitic race." He appealed. A few years ago Prof. Mehly offered a theory that the Jews have different blood than all the other races.

TAXI DANCE HALL SHOWN BREEDING PLACE OF VICE

Survey Bares Menace as Drive Closes Places.

The taxi dance hall is denounced as a breeding place of prostitution and crime in a sociological study of Chicago halls which is to be released by the University of Chicago press today. Paul G. Cressey, formerly a special investigator for the Juvenile Protective association, is the author. He spent several years investigating the dancing places, it was revealed.

In a 300 page book, Mr. Cressey tells of his researches during the years 1927 and 1928. The taxi dance hall of those days was considerably milder than at present, he reveals, such innovations as the brassiere-and-shorts dance costume being unknown then. However, the author declares that a majority of the taxi dance hall girls eventually found themselves in the black belt.

Drive Closes Dance Halls.

As a result of the drive recently initiated by Assistant Corporation Counsel Otto F. Weiner, practically all of the taxi dance halls are now closed, it was learned yesterday. Circuit Judge Stanley Klarkowski yesterday entered the final order dissolving the injunction protecting the Clark-Erie hall at 654 North Clark street.

Two other places also were put out of business yesterday. Wilhelmina Harris, proprietor of the hall at 29 East Seventh street, told Judge Freeman L. Fairbank that she would close after being fined $25 and costs for operating without a license. On a similar charge, Daniel Brennan, proprietor of a hall at 525 South State street, was given the same fine and also declared he would close.

Describes Typical Hall.

Mr. Cressey, in his book, describes a typical dance hall and a typical night spent by a patron there. He tells of the sensual dancing allowed in most of the places and the "dating" participated in by the girls and the men patrons after hours.

The first Chicago taxi dance hall was discovered in May, 1921, the author declares. It was opened by a Creek immigrant at Madison and Halsted streets. The system of ten cent tickets for each dance, the girl collecting five cents on each ticket, was first established there. A player piano furnished the music and seven girl "instructors" were present.

Trace Girls' Records.

From this humble beginning, the taxi-dance hall business grew to its present status, with 50 to 75 girl dancers and hundreds of men patrons.

Case histories of numbers of the girl dancers are given. They show that the girls, of whom there were more than 1,000 in Chicago before the drive started, drifted into the "profession" for various reasons. The girls are recruited mostly from the foreign neighborhoods, the book states.

"For a large proportion of the taxi dancers and for not a few patrons, the experiences in the Chicago taxi-dance halls are demoralizing," Mr. Cressey states.

Dancers Mostly Young.

Most of the dancers are young, from 16 to 19 years old, according to Mr. Cressey, and these girls are exposed to all sorts of contacts.

"Under the cloak of anonymity and with the form of social acceptability bought at the box office, any kind of man may have the opportunity to make his overtures to young women serving as taxi dancers. Thus dancers are exposed to approach from thieves, pickpockets, holdup men, bootleggers, and even procurers," the book adds.

Seaway Treaty Expected to Be Signed Within 2 Weeks

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

OTTAWA, Ont., May 3.—The St. Lawrence waterways treaty may be signed within two weeks if all goes well, it was stated here today following another conference between Prime Minister R. B. Bennett and George S. Henry, premier of Ontario. According to Premier Henry, such excellent progress has been made in the diplomatic negotiations with the United States that completion of the treaty and its submission to the senate in Washington, D. C., before May 10 is quite within the realm of possibility.

R. B. BENNETT. [Assoc. Press Photo.]

Canada has been represented in the diplomatic negotiations by William Duncan Herridge, Canadian minister to Washington, who has been in constant touch with Prime Minister Bennett. The United States government is reported to be anxious to have the proposed agreement concluded in order that its approval may be obtained in the senate before the presidential election next November.

United States to Act First.

That the treaty will be approved in the parliament of Canada at the present session is not likely, as the plan is to have it receive the sanction of the American senate before approval in Canada is sought.

Premier Henry was accompanied at the conference with Premier Bennett by John R. Cooke, chairman of the Ontario hydro-electric commission; Dr. Fred A. Gaby, chief engineer, and Dr. T. H. Hogg, chief hydraulic engineer.

This was Premier Henry's fourth or fifth conference with Mr. Bennett on the waterways question. The province of Ontario will secure from the international section of the St. Lawrence some 900,000 horsepower at a capital cost of about $115,000,000 plus the annual maintenance cost.

Satisfies Needs Until 1936.

With the delivery of power from the Beauharnois power project in the autumn and from the Chats falls development on the Ottawa river, the Ontario hydro-electric plant will have sufficient power to meet Ontario's requirements until 1936. No power will be available from the St. Lawrence for some years to come; completion of that undertaking probably will take ten years or more, but the power can be developed as the market for it warrants, it is stated.

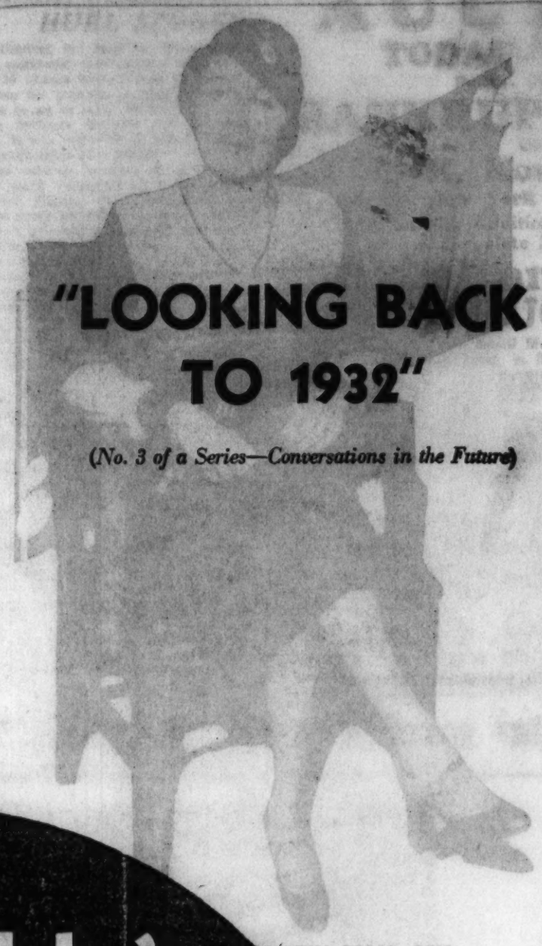
"LOOKING BACK TO 1932"

(No. 3 of a Series—Conversations in the Future)



"Folks didn't seem to appreciate those prices back in '32"

"You probably remember when women's fur trimmed coats were priced as low as $29.75—think of it! In 1932 it was possible for women to possess apparel at little more than the cost of manufacture, while the fabrics were products of the finest mills in the world.

"Of course you recall the bargains in dresses in 1932! Frocks for all occasions were down to a price that should have encouraged the women of America to buy freely : : : and in those days it was possible to buy two or three dresses at the ordinary price of one.

"What values in lingerie . . . silk underthings that women adore, selling daily at unbelievably low prices. I distinctly remember, however, that there were hundreds of women who bought lingerie in 1932 in sufficient quantity to provide for future needs.

"Footwear fashions in 1932 were superb and for the quality of the materials in those lovely creations, prices were amazingly low. Shoe manufacturers were producing footwear at prices to keep their organizations intact, and the public derived all the benefit of the lowered wholesale cost.

"Silk hosiery . . . my, oh my! What a dream of bygone days! Marvelously sheer, wonderfully serviceable silk hosiery for a few pennies more than cotton stockings cost 'way back when'.

"Of course you remember the marvelous values in millinery in 1932. Cunning little hats that sold at a trifle and permitted smart and thrifty women to own many. Hats for countless occasions at pin-money prices.

"Few women there were in 1932 who couldn't afford to look their best at all times—and certainly more women should have taken advantage of those phenomenal buying opportunities."

KELLY TAX PLAN LAUDED, BUT FEW TRIMS PROMISED

City Works on Plan to Cut Its Levy.

While officials of various tax spending bodies praised the Kelly committee's plan for reducing tax levies, few were prepared to say definitely yesterday that their governments will cut the 1931 levies, which in all cases were certified to the county clerk a year or more ago.

ALD. JOHN S. CLARK.

Exceptions to this were the city and the Lincoln park board. Ald. John S. Clark [30th], chairman of the council finance committee, said he believed it would be possible to pass an ordinance reducing the 1931 levy. Warren Wright, president of the Lincoln park board, pointed out that the board reduced its 1931 levy a week ago, from $3,200,000 to $2,650,000.

Tax Cut Certain, Says Mayor.

"There is no question but that there will be a reduction of 1931 taxes," said Mayor Cermak. "We'll have our big day on reduction of taxes at the council meeting tomorrow. I wonder if the taxpayers will be as much interested as are the opponents of retrenchment who usually crowd the galleries."

The Kelly committee said that the county's 1931 levy for all purposes should not exceed $13,477,000, and that its 1932 levy should not exceed $11,671,000. Michael J. O'Connor, assistant county controller, estimated that the best the county could do would be to cut its 1931 levy to $14,318,000 and its 1932 levy to $14,188,000. He asserted that the committee had overlooked the fact that this year the county will have to meet election expenses of $1,500,000 in addition to its regular expenditures.

He protested against the elimination of any appropriation for highway purposes in 1932, pointing out the likelihood of the legislature passing the second $20,000,000 poor relief bond issue this summer. If that is done gas tax receipts will be used to retire the bonds, and the county will have no funds for highway maintenance under the Kelly committee's financial setup, he said.

Protests Highway Fund Cut.

Hayden N. Bell, county attorney, said that there would be no legal difficulties in the way of the county commissioners passing a resolution cutting their tax levies. Taxpayers, he pointed out, cannot legally protest a reduction in taxes.

At a conference in Mayor Cermak's office yesterday a decision was made to change the retrenchment ordinance now pending before the council so as to give city employés two weeks' vacation with pay. It was the consensus at the session that the change will be satisfactory to the employés and remove objections voiced before the finance committee on Monday.

Won't Disturb Schedules.

Under the provisions of the ordinance the employés would have been docked a total of 78 days' pay, thirty days of which they would have had for a payless vacation. This has been changed so that while employés still will be docked 78 days' pay they will get a two weeks' vacation with pay. The twenty days paid vacation of the firemen will not be disturbed either.

"There will be no interference with paid vacations or basic salary rates," said Ald. Clark [30th], "as that might disturb the employés' pension rights. For most of the employés it means that they will be docked for the Sundays and Saturday afternoons they do not work. The police only have fifty-two days off a year and an effort will be made to reimburse them for time they work without pay."

The change will be drafted into ordinance form today and submitted to the council as a substitute for the pending ordinance. The substitute will be deferred and published to give the aldermen an opportunity to study it.

JOINS INSURGENTS

NANCY CARROLL.

On Way East

Hollywood, Cal., May 3.—[Special.]—Nancy Carroll, temperamental red headed motion picture star, is reported on her way from Hollywood to New York. At the Paramount studio, which holds her contract, it was stated that peppy Nancy is on the studio's suspended list and in all probability neither will make any more Paramount pictures nor receive any more salary from that studio.

The contract under which her acting services are bound to Paramount expires in the autumn and it may not be renewed.

YOUTH GROWING WISER, SCHOOL CONFERENCE TOLD

No Longer Deceived by Exaggerated Promises.

Representatives of correspondence schools—the men who tell you how to hit the boss for a raise after a six months' course—were told yesterday by one of their number that they must not make extravagant claims. The young people of today can see through any exaggerations, they were informed.

Outside of this one criticism, which was slightly depressing, members of the National Home Study council, meeting at the Medinah Athletic club, held a cheerful and buoyant session.

Three schools reported that business had been better in April than for the preceding eight months, and a note of optimism was evident.

Maxwell Droke, head of the Business Letters institute of Indianapolis, was the speaker who told the members that they must not make exaggerated claims.

"We must tone our letters to students down," he declared, "because the young people of today, educated by the depression and traveling the rocky road to recovery, see through any magnified assertions. Correspondence school students know what they are after and they are not to be fooled by big statements."

The business depression has made people turn to cultural pursuits, Mr. Droke declared. He said that hard times have been good for America, causing a spiritual renaissance, and expressed a confidence that an "economic sunrise" was near.

J. F. Noffsinger, executive director of the council, said that there are now more than 750,000 correspondence school students in the country. Fifty-three per cent of these are college graduates who have decided to specialize in some subject, he declared. Business subjects, such as accounting, administration, finance, and personnel management, are now the most popular subjects, he said, replacing the group of technical subjects which formerly were most popular.

CARLSTROM DECIDES PAUPERS IN ILLINOIS MAY BE CAR OWNERS

Springfield, Ill., May 3.—(AP)—Paupers obtaining aid from townships in Illinois may own and operate automobiles, Attorney General Oscar Carlstrom advised county officials today.

Mr. Carlstrom cautioned overseers of the poor, however, that automobiles owned by paupers should be used for the purpose of seeking employment or other necessary duties and not for pleasure.

"The matter is one for conscientious, wise action in each instance by the overseer of the poor," the attorney general said.

In the same opinion Carlstrom ruled that Illinois statutes do not require that the names of all paupers receiving township aid be published in newspapers.

RIOT AT OHIO MINE; STRIKERS HURL STONES

Columbus, O., May 3.—[Special.]—One workman was injured seriously and 20 others were routed by stones thrown by pickets as they were en route to go to work at the Goal Hill mine between Berholz and Amsterdam, it was reported to the adjutant general's office here today.

The rioting became so prevalent that work remained at a standstill.

Cisco Elliott, 22, miner, was injured when hit in the head by rocks thrown by striking miners, according to deputy sheriffs who restored order.

One auto was overturned and glass in several others was broken.

Sheriff W. J. Yost of Jefferson county said a continuation of the assaults upon workmen would result in a request from him for National Guard troops. The National Guard already has troops in Harrison county, nearby.

Alice in Wonderland Made Doctor of Letters by Butler

New York, May 3.—[U.P.]—Alice, who in the story book once "grew by degrees," got one today.

Capped and gowned and smiling, Mrs. Reginald Liddell Hargreaves received from Columbia university, through Dr. Nicholas Murray Butler, the degree of doctor of letters, along with an address complimenting her for being the original Alice who inspired Lewis Carroll's "Alice in Wonderland."

PREMIER TRICKS AUSTRALIA ON TAX "SURRENDER"

[Copyright: 1932: By the New York Times.]

SYDNEY, May 3.—All Australia is laughing at the trick Premier Lang played on commonwealth authorities yesterday, when he is supposed to have surrendered certain sources of New South Wales revenues to meet his government's default of interest on bonded debts.

It was disclosed today that the assessment forms which his commissioner of taxes handed to a commonwealth officer related merely to penniless persons.

Lang has until May 12 to deliver income tax documents necessary for seizing state government revenues, after which an attempt will probably be made by the federal government to attach his personal property.

COFFEE
The Original Vacuum Pack

As the accuracy of the hour-glass depends upon an even, continuous flow . . .

a little at a time

. . . so the uniform flavor of Hills Bros. Coffee is produced by Controlled Roasting—the patented process that roasts evenly, continuously . . . "a little at a time."

HILLS BROS MADE COFFEE-ROASTING AN EXACT SCIENCE WHEN THEY INVENTED CONTROLLED ROASTING

Under-roasting and over-roasting prevented by Hills Bros' patented continuous roasting process

Roasts "a little at a time," instead of in bulk . . . resulting flavor is simply superb

Under-cooking and over-cooking will certainly spoil the flavor of foods. So will under-roasting and over-roasting spoil the flavor of coffee. Only one exact degree of roast can develop perfect flavor.

Under-roasting and over-roasting easily occur in the ordinary, bulk method. That's why Hills Bros. determined to find a fool-proof process. After experimenting for many years, they invented and patented Controlled Roasting.

Instead of roasting in bulk, Hills Bros. roast a little at a time . . . as the coffee flows evenly, continuously through the roasters. A continuous flow of small quantities permits every berry to be perfectly done . . . roasted to the right degree required to bring out the finest flavor! The process never varies—neither does the flavor.

Hills Bros. Coffee is packed in vacuum cans, and can't go stale. The vacuum process of packing coffee is the only method that fully preserves coffee freshness—the air is removed from the can and kept out. It was originated by Hills Bros. over thirty years ago. There is no magic about a vacuum can—it will not make poor coffee good, but it will keep good coffee fresh.

The aroma from a cup of Hills Bros. Coffee quickens and stirs your appetite . . . promises a lot of pleasure . . . makes you really coffee-hungry! And the coffee lives up to the promise. Order some today. Ask for it by name, and look for the Arab trade-mark on the can.

"The newspaper is an institution developed by modern civilization to present the news of the day, to foster commerce and industry, to inform and mold public opinion, and to furnish that check upon government which no constitution has ever been able to provide."

THE DECISION IN THE PACKERS' CASE.

The United States Supreme court has refused to modify the anti-trust decree to which the packers consented in 1920. The court divided, 4 to 2. Three of the judges took no part in the deliberations because of previous connection, in one form or another, with the litigation.

The majority opinion, written by Mr. Justice Cardozo, was an affirmation of the sanctity of such decrees. The packers knew what they were doing when they signed the papers. If they gave up more than they need have surrendered that was their fault. They signed and the federal court sealed. "What was then solemnly adjudged as a final composition of an historic litigation will not lightly be undone at the suit of the offenders and the composition held for nothing."

There is no quarrel with the broad doctrine that the stability of society requires that agreements voluntarily entered upon be respected. But the question arises whether this agreement can, properly speaking, be regarded as voluntary. The packers have said, with a considerable showing of probability on their side, that they signed the decree not because they regarded it as fair but because of pressures which were exerted against them. If they had not consented, it is said, they faced the virtual certainty of legislation in congress which would have been even more costly to them than the decree. Further than that, their rights under the anti-trust act, rights which Mr. Cardozo feels they should have fought for at the time if they wanted to preserve them, were more than a little vague, thanks in part to the Supreme court itself. To this day business men do not know and their lawyers cannot tell them with much assurance what the courts will probably decide the Sherman and Clayton acts permit and what these laws forbid, but certainly since 1920 there has been a considerable tendency to approve practices which before then were regarded as probably against the law.

To say, under such circumstances, that the packers made their bed and must lie in it places a considerable strain on the facts. The packers made their bed under some coercion and were rather roughly pushed into it. Incidentally, many of the men who accepted the decree have since disappeared entirely from the packing industry. There is no longer an Armour in Armour & Co., and death and advancing years are rapidly completing the change in personnel.

It is a curious fact, worth noting, that the liberals of the court with their new ally, Mr. Cardozo, were the majority in this case. Liberalism, as the term is applied to Supreme court justices, may need a special definition to distinguish it from liberalism in the usual sense. A liberal, in contrast to a conservative, might be defined as one who believes that changing circumstances may require modifications of viewpoint and behavior. No such definition of a liberal can be applied to the justices who handed down the majority opinion in the packers' case. They gave little weight to the changes in personnel at the stockyards or to the well established fact that what the packers are forbidden to do other powerful business groups have since learned to do and are doing. If this is a recognition of the doctrine that nothing is immutable in a changing world it is a curious recognition, indeed.

THE IRONY OF LEGAL RIGHTS.

A gangster who had twice been freed in court when charged with carrying concealed weapons, the evidence being sufficient, has been released from a third charge. He had been picked up as a suspicious character near the scene of a crime and the gun was found when he was searched. His constitutional rights were invaded because he had been arrested without sufficient cause and consequently the incriminating evidence was obtained by the police illegally.

Probably the best test of the validity of constitutional rights is when they are held to prevail even in hard cases and when the lawless man is given their full protection, but frequently it appears that the lawless get a stricter construction of their rights than the average citizen can rely upon if he has not distinguished himself by doing something to the injury of the community. A gangster's legal rights might well be envied by citizens who find that they have a much harder time in finding what their own are and in making them good.

RESPECTING THE CONSTITUTION.

The Women's National Committee for Law Enforcement has passed resolutions opposing prohibition repeal or modification and declares that: "We deplore persistent attacks upon the constitution, the supreme law, by a minority in congress sworn to support and defend the law, who are acting in the interest of the return of the outlawed liquor traffic."

As a committee "for law enforcement" these ladies are doing their best to perpetuate laws which cannot be effectually enforced and they deplore persistent attacks upon the constitution while supporting the most demoralizing attack upon the constitution ever made in its history, not excepting the civil war.

Rebukes for attacks upon the constitution are not impressive from individuals who have no more respect for the constitution than prohibitionists have or which the Committee for Law Enforcement shows when it presents the theory that congressmen who are "sworn to support and defend the law" are thereby sworn not to criticize it, amend it, or move for its repeal. The Committee for Law Enforcement would do well to examine the constitution which they demand that others shall respect.

WILKERSON AND CAPONE.

Al Capone's last recourse against the sentence requiring eleven years of his time in the penitentiary was exhausted when the United States Supreme court refused to review the case. The sentence stands and the gangster is put away for a stretch which ought to mean the finish of his activities. When he has served it the conditions which produced him ought to have vanished. He needed the eighteenth amendment and the Volstead act. Without them he would have remained a minor Cicero bum.

It need not be said that this sentence, which removes the chief character of modern lawlessness from the freedom of the streets to the inclosure of the penitentiary, came out of the determination of Judge Wilkerson to expose the gangster to the full penalty of the law. The able part taken by District Attorney Johnson and his assistants in this and other cases is not overlooked, but the judicial conduct of Judge Wilkerson was what gave Capone the unexpected blow. He had hoped for something he could take in his stride.

In recognition of this service Judge Wilkerson was nominated by the President for the Circuit Court of Appeals, and the senate subcommittee which conducted hearings on the appointment recommended confirmation. Senator Borah stated the reasons for the recommendation admirably, giving all the weight deserved to the objections based on injunction proceedings in Judge Wilkerson's court. Senator Norris, chairman of the full committee, sent the question back for further hearing just when the Supreme court was finally disposing of Capone's appeal.

Senator Borah said that a rejection of this nomination would discourage the people of Chicago who had made a long, hard fight against seemingly impregnable crime. A rejection would hearten criminal elements who have relied upon political connections for immunity. That is an accurate statement of the case and delay in the senate only emphasizes it.

EMBARRASSMENTS IN THE LEAGUE.

Jay Allen, TRIBUNE correspondent at Geneva, says the league of nations faces a difficult situation when the assembly's committee of nineteen meets to find out whether its resolution demanding the immediate evacuation of Shanghai by Japanese forces was to be heeded.

The answer is not dubious. It will be, or has been, no. But if this is an embarrassment for the league it is one with which it will have to put up quite often. Meanwhile, it gives occasion for some reflection upon the possibilities of that institution. We do not know the makeup of the committee of nineteen, but it probably represents nations whose aggregate population and whose total economic interests in the far east are considerably less than that of the half dozen powers directly concerned. Yet they propose to dictate to Japan, to say nothing of the others directly involved, what shall be done. The basis of their mandate is generalizations upon national rights and international conduct which are, no doubt, theoretically plausible, but not yet pragmatically acceptable in international affairs, including affairs which cause conflict even among the so-called small nations. Fortunately for the survival of the league, its governing body is the council, which is composed of the greater powers and is not likely to be controlled in critical issues affecting them by the assembly or its committees.

But the possibilities for embarrassment to the highflown pretensions of the league, or of its idealistic champions, at any rate, are ironically presented by this committee of nineteen. Other committees, made up, say, of Liberia, Haiti, Paraguay, Ecuador, Nicaragua, San Marino, Monte Carlo, et id genus omne, may be foreseen presenting other embarrassments of irrefragable principle which, if one of the concerns of the league is to evolve a body of international law, definite, logical, and framed upon the broad considerations of equity, will call for all the skill in dialectic evasion which the league court can muster. In due time, under the influence of these little embarrassments, the league court should be able to evolve a system of international jurisprudence which will deserve the ironic applause of the cynic, the gratitude of international lawyers, and no doubt in America, at least, the trustful enthusiasm of our international devotees.

Editorial of the Day

[Toledo News-Bee.]

If the California grape growers adopt the report of their directors and declare for light wines through modification, they will do their nation a service. For thereby they will strike a blow at hypocrisy in high places and enroll their $300,000,000 industry on the side of reform.

Since 1920 the government has wet nursed this industry. Interpreting article 29 of the Volstead act as its authors intended, the government permitted the home making of wine. To save the grapemen from financial disaster the federal farm board made them loans of millions. When to save freightage and spoilage the grapemen decided to ship their juice in sirup form the government financed the change, encouraging the farmers to spend more than $100,000,000. It was after conferences with treasury, agriculture and justice officials that the farmers formed Grape Industries, Ltd.

Then Mrs. Mabel Walker Willebrandt, who previously as federal prosecutor had denounced and sent to jail erring wets, became the grape lawyer. With government aid and connivance the grapemen aided in the manufacture of 100,000,000 gallons of wine annually, a total, by the way, just 100 per cent greater than before prohibition.

Now, suddenly and on the eve of election campaigns, the government becomes moral. Adopting a single federal decision to outlaw grape concentrates, it orders that product from the market!

Whereupon the grapemen propose to go "wet." Tired of double dealing, they doubtless will join the 4,000 California grain farmers demanding legalized beer, and ask that the wine from their grapes be legalized.

That is the fair and effective method.

The Jefferson lads in convention assembled may go haywire and sidetrack Franklin and Al, to say nothing of Harry Byrd, Gov. Ritchie, Mr. Traylor, Mr. Baker, and others too numerous to mention, and nominate Hooey. Unless the G. O. P. start a whispering campaign to this effect—suppose Hooey is elected and lives in the White House and a lot of gilded foreign diplomats come around with silk hats and long tailed coats and medals and spats on and everything, and the President of all these United States comes out and says to 'em, "Hello, fellers, call me Kingfish." That will send Hooey right back to Louisiana.

Ere I ever knew the world,
And the ways men trod,
I sought the road to heaven
To catch a glimpse of God.

But heaven was a ways away,
And God had gone to bed,
And all I ever saw then
Were stars, way up ahead.

I called to God to guide me,
But he never seemed to hear.
I looked at every little star,
Which one was heaven near?

But now I know the world's ways;
I search no more for God;
I walk with quiet footsteps
In the ways all men have trod.

My eyes turn ever to the earth.
Leave heaven for the fools!

In all the muddy little pools.)

AGAIN WE ARE FORCED to beg the pardon of Cuthbert the Manatee at the Shedd aquarium. The director of the aquarium says very decisively that Cuthbert is a manatee, a male, and a sea cow, and that he never heard of a sea bull. And we called Cuthbert the bull, or rather a bull, which is much the same thing. And we also apologize for calling him Cuthbert, which is not his name. Cuthbert is merely our own idea; it was the name of a pet cockroach we once owned, who endeared himself to us with his cunning ways. Now he is dead and we would like to have his name perpetuated by the gentleman sea cow at the aquarium. All the best, Cuthbert, old dear, cheerio!

MR. AL CAPONE was due to leave our fair city last evening for his new residence in Atlanta. Which takes away what would have been a great drawing card for visitors from the hinterland to our great Century of Progress exposition next year. Of course, Al wouldn't have been visible exactly, but lots of people from out of town would have enjoyed being in Chicago while Al was here for the same reason that the chorus girl who was asked if she had ever drunk champagne responded shamefacedly she had not and then brightened up immediately as she said proudly, "But I've been where it was at."

PRIZE THE STARS.

We spend our hearts, our years, for opulence
That may be canceled momentarily;
For little triumphs whose impermanence
We know, and give them our idolatry;
We covet endlessly the things that pass
As quickly as a breath upon a glass.

O prize the stars! the sudden pearls that spill
Through silence when the April thrushes sing
At dusk, the gold behind a darkened hill
That hides the sunset; if some treasuring
Remain in death, what shall we still possess
But this—remembrance of earth's loveliness?

AN IMPROVED TREATMENT FOR WHITE SWELLING.

FOR those people who have white swelling, tuberculosis of bones, dead bones, old bone sinuses, and chronic osteomyelitis, the maggot treatment seems to be superior to all others. These diseases are either the same or else they belong to the same group. In all of them there is chronic infection of the bone, with some tendency to cause dead bone to come away from time to time. In some cases it is the tubercle bacillus which causes the infection; in others it is some one of the pus cocci.

Because the treatment has proved so satisfactory in bone sinuses, it is possible that it may have a place in the treatment of old and bad fistulæ. Since the days of legend and myth there has been a lingering tradition that badly infected wounds that got maggots in them tended to get well. Among the stories that have been told after wars was always one of soldiers badly wounded on the battlefield and so neglected afterward that flies laid eggs in the wounds until fly larvæ got into the wounds, causing them to heal promptly and well. It seemed against all science and logic, but the evidence was that somehow the presence of fly larvæ in a wound seemed to help healing.

In the world war a Johns Hopkins professor of surgery saw some evidence that supported these old stories. He decided to investigate. The result was that he came out in favor of the maggot treatment of infected wounds, particularly where there was an involvement of bone and when the infection had been going on for some time. Many surgeons have tried the method and have reported favorable results.

The medical staff of the Veterans' Service hospital near Chicago are of the opinion that they have improved the method. They prepare what they call an active principle or extract of the fly larvæ and they use that instead of the worms themselves. Sometimes they use the worms themselves for a few days to get the process of healing well started, and they use the active principle to finish up with.

The people who should be interested are those who have old discharging bone sinuses from which some pus flows most of the time and out of which a piece of bone works every now and then; the cases that have had many doctors and who are discouraged. If the active principle treatment works it will be found to have many practical advantages over the older maggot method.

ACIDITY.

J. K. writes: Will you please send me a list of the foods you consider cause acidity and which should be avoided by those troubled with acidity?

REPLY.

I presume you refer to that form of so-called acidosis in grown people in which there is a reduction of body alkali due to eating foods that are over-rich in acid ash.

Among the foods which are rich in acid ash and are, therefore, to be eaten in moderation by such a sufferer are: Cereals, breads, meats, and eggs.

Those foods which tend in the other direction are vegetables and fruits. Milk is about midway.

There are other kinds of acidity. Those who are subject to one of these other kinds should avoid fats and greases.

KEEP EVERLASTINGLY AT IT.

C. L. writes: I am suffering from diabetes and have seen many doctors who have not helped me much. I am suffering very much from the kidneys. Will you be kind enough to tell me what to do, what diet I can follow?

REPLY.

A person with diabetes should enlist for the war. Changing around from physician to physician is like instability in war and peace—unprofitable.

The only policy for you is to pick out one doctor and have him teach you in minute detail how to live. Perhaps he has a class in diabetes which you should join. When you have learned what you are to do you should follow the plan laid down for, say, fifty years. Otherwise the story is liable to terminate in fifty weeks.

WHERE DOCTORS DISAGREE.

B. I. writes:

1. What are the symptoms of ulcer of the stomach?
2. Does an ulcer tend to become cancerous?
3. What is the cause of ulcer?

REPLY.

1. Among the symptoms are uneasiness and pain coming on at certain times, peculiar uneasiness that is not pain, sour stomach, disturbed appetite, some tendency to bleeding, localized tenderness.
2. Yes.
3. That question is liable to start an argument among doctors. Nobody knows, though there are theories.

FROM THE TRIBUNE'S COLUMNS

16 YEARS AGO TODAY

MAY 4, 1916.

EL PASO, Tex.—[By Walter Noble Burns.]—Diplomacy is to finish the work the American army has begun in Mexico. Under the agreement reached at the second conference between Gen. Scott, chief of staff of the American army, and Gen. Obregon, Carranza minister of war, the American troops, it is understood, are to stay in Mexico for thirty or sixty days and then withdraw. Whatever remains to be done will be settled between Secretary of State Lansing and Ambassador Designate Arredondo at Washington. Thus is to be lifted the "war cloud" that threatened to prove the dilemma of the Wilson administration in the approaching campaign. It seems to be generally understood that the activity of the American troops in hunting down Villa and the bandit bands will cease immediately, and that the troops will be concentrated at Colonia Dublan, Gen. Pershing's original field base.

LONDON.—Premier Asquith at the opening of parliament announced that three Irish rebel leaders, all signers of the "declaration of freedom," were shot to death in the tower of London after a military trial for sedition. Those executed were Peter H. Pearse, who was proclaimed provisional president of the Irish republic; Thomas J. Clark, prominent in Fenian circles, and Thomas MacDonagh, master at arms of the National university of Ireland and poet of the rebellion. Premier Asquith also announced that Sir Roger Casement would be tried as soon as possible.

CHICAGO.—William Lorimer, former United States senator, was acquitted by a jury in Judge Dever's court on charges of conspiracy and embezzlement on which he was indicted as a result of the collapse of the La Salle Street Trust and Savings bank of which he was president.

LONDON.—Two German air raids on the northeast coast of England and the southeast coast of Scotland within the last twenty-four hours resulted in forty-nine persons being killed and thirty-one injured. The first raid was made by a number of Zeppelins and the second by German sea planes. The Zeppelins dropped about 100 bombs.

WASHINGTON, D. C.—President Wilson practically has concluded negotiations for the purchase of the Danish West Indies at a price tentatively agreed upon of 5 million dollars. A treaty between Denmark and the United States providing for the transfer of the islands in the Antilles has been drafted by Secretary of State Lansing and Constantin Brun, the Danish minister here. The Danish West Indies consist of the three small islands of St. Croix, St. Thomas, and St. John, aggregating 138 square miles, with a population of 27,086, mainly free Negroes. The islands are of strategic importance with relation to the Panama canal.

LONDON.—Reports received from several sources tell of food and peace riots in several cities in Germany. A Central News dispatch from Geneva says 25 persons were killed and several hundred injured in Berlin during a May day riot.

SARATOGA, N. Y.—President Wilson was made the subject of an attack at the Methodist general conference. He was criticized for serving wine at the White House and was appealed to as a "Christian gentleman" to banish the wine cup from all functions over which he has control.

CHICAGO.—Dr. Theodore B. Sachs' two chief aids in the management of the Municipal Tuberculosis sanitarium—Frank E. Wing and Dr. J. W. Coon—were ousted from the institution. Despite the fact that both are regarded as highly emicient, their fate had been predicted for several months, and reports that they were slated for removal were circulated for some time before Dr. Sachs' resignation and suicide.

Every Man's University

Questions and answers prepared by members of the faculty of the University of Chicago outline what they consider a well educated person ought to know. Today's instructor, Arthur Pearson Scott, associate professor of history.

TODAY'S QUESTION:

What elements of permanent value to later times were contributed by ancient Egypt, Mesopotamia, and the near east?

[This question will be repeated and answered in this space tomorrow.]

YESTERDAY'S QUESTION:

If we had to drop out of our present civilization all that was discovered or invented before 4000 B. C., or all that has been discovered or invented since the industrial revolution in the eighteenth century, which could we better spare?

ANSWER:

When we recall that human speech, the use of tools and fire, weaving, pottery, domestication of animals, agriculture, and settled life and the beginnings of art, religion, and organized government are among the achievements of men before 4000 B. C., it is clear that no existence above a purely animal level would be possible without these early discoveries and inventions. However little we should relish giving up our machinery and scientific knowledge and all that we owe to men like Galileo and Newton and Watt and Edison, we could spare it all better than we could give up what we owe to our unknown ancestors who, through forgotten centuries, slowly climbed from a barely human state and laid the foundations for all later civilizations.

MORTGAGES.

Chicago, April 24.—[Legal Friend of the People]—I have a bungalow on which there is a first and second mortgage. The first expired some time ago and had to be renewed. I also had to pay off some of it as at present all first mortgages must be reduced. This prevented us from paying off any on the second mortgage. 1. Can the holders of the second mortgage do anything about this? We are not in position at present to pay any money on the second as the main provider of the family is out of work. 2. We were told by the first mortgage holders not to pay the second as we must take care of the first mortgage when due again in August. A. C. R.

1. If you have not paid the amount that you agreed to pay on the second mortgage then the second mortgage holder can foreclose.
2. It is, of course, true that anything paid on the first mortgage improves the position of the second mortgage holder. Hence, it would be worth your while to try to persuade the second mortgage holder to be satisfied with the situation.

TAXEATERS VS. TAXPAYERS.

Chicago, April 29.—I am—or have been—a Republican, and live in the Ninth Illinois district, which is represented in congress by Fred A. Britten. It was reported in THE TRIBUNE on April 27 that Mr. Britten had got adopted an amendment to the economy bill to exempt from wage reductions all federal government employés receiving $2,500 or less. This, as I understand it, exempts from wage reductions 700,000 employés out of a total of 800,000.

In the business with which I am connected gross earnings have declined 60 per cent since two years ago and we have had to reduce by 25 per cent the pay of every employé, most of whom received less than $2,500 a year. We could not otherwise save the business and their employment. The same thing has been true of business concerns of all kinds throughout this country.

I have written to Mr. Britten asking him, in effect, to advise me why the employés of our and other business concerns who have had their pay cut should be directly and indirectly taxed out of their reduced incomes to maintain full employment and full wages for government employés. Every dollar in taxes taken from private business to pay government employés reduces by just $1 the amount that can be paid to employés of private business.

Apparently Mr. Britten belongs to that large class of politicians who believe that the poor should be helped by soaking the rich. The rich and well to do have suffered the most tremendous losses within the last three years ever suffered by the same classes in history. Is there a single poor man in America that has derived a penny's benefit from these losses of the rich and well to do?

If you are a voter in the Ninth congressional district do as I have done—write to Mr. Britten and tell him what you think of the stand he has taken for the taxeaters against the taxpayers—for government employés and against every man who is or wants to be employed by private business. S. O. D.

HOPEFUL.

Chicago, April 27.—Would I try the experiment of going back to the land? Can a fish swim? Yes. And there are thousands just like me who would welcome the idea with open arms if it could materialize. And what a blessing it would be. Relief organizations that are trying nobly to cope with a great problem would be relieved to an extent that would enable them to more adequately handle the cases that would be left to them, while thousands who are forced to ask for charity as a last resort would be lifted out of that pit of despair with courage to look the world in the face with the overwhelming satisfaction that they are self-sustaining.

As for myself, I am employed part time and am able to exist and keep my family intact on the paltry amount I am fortunate enough to earn in the one or two days a week that I work. However, being a railroad man with only a few years seniority, and what with the retrenchment programs the railroads are putting on now in keeping with their promise to stabilize employment if we took a wage cut, I have reasons to believe that I will be among the totally unemployed in a very short time, and what a joy it would be to know I could go to a little farm and there be able to make a living, however meager it might be. God knows it would help me to keep my chin up in the knowledge that I was not dependent on others for sustenance.

Come on, unemployed, think this over. Think what it would mean to you and your families, not only as a means of livelihood, but as a means of promoting health, happiness and peace of mind. Write your congressman—I mean write THE TRIBUNE today. Your congressman is busy making more taxes so there will be more in our ranks. A. P.

A NATIONAL 40 HOUR WEEK.

Chicago, April 27.—For some time the writer has been of the opinion that the only corrective measure that would quickly help bring us out of the present economic condition would be a 40-hour work week, i. e., that no one employed in any gainful pursuit except agriculture should be allowed to work over 40 hours in any one week—this to be for a temporary period—say, for about three years.

Congress could pass the necessary legislation which would apply to interstate business. The President should call a meeting of the governors of the various states, show them the seriousness of the present situation and the necessity for legislation, and have them call a special session of the legislatures of their respective states and pass similar legislation so that it would cover every line of endeavor—state or national.

The full advantage of the 40-hour work week could only be obtained by state coöperation, thereby including industries which do an interstate business and also those companies whose business is only intrastate, such as utility companies, local transportation companies, and other businesses that employ large numbers of people and operate within their own state.

This would quickly take up the slack of unemployment and in the course of months would create a scarcity of labor which would bring about an advance in the hourly pay so that in a short time the workers would be working less hours but would obtain very nearly the same wages they are now getting. Prices might advance a little, but this would be more than offset by the compensating benefit of creating employment for so many of our people who need work.

I have discussed this matter with Mr. Herbert H. Maass of New York City, one of New York's prominent attorneys, and in his opinion such legislation would be sound.

A drastic retrenchment in government expenses—national, state and municipal—with the enactment of the Glass-Steagall bill and the Reconstruction Finance corporation, plus the 40-hour work week, would relieve present distressing conditions, obviate the possibilty of a dole, avoid the necessity of collecting funds or having the government or the states or the cities appropriate money for unemployment relief. It would immediately provide employment for thousands of men and would very quickly tend to bring to an end the severity of the present crisis.

THE LOCUSTS.

Chicago, April 29.—Referring to your cartoon in this morning's TRIBUNE regarding the locust plague in Egypt and the tax spenders of the present day, I must say I never saw such a true comparison before. I believe the only way to "strafe" these congressmen and senators who obstruct the economy program of President Hoover to lighten the load of the American public is to publish their names all over the country so that next time, if they run for any office, they will be classed as "locust plagues" and as a detriment to the welfare of the American taxpayers. And we will vote only for those who will pledge to the voters to lighten the burden of the American public.

I fear that if the tax spenders do not mend their ways, it will not take so very long until all property will be confiscated for taxes, and we will all be serfs to his majesty the taxpayer.

GERMAN CABINET CRISIS AVERTED; MINISTER QUITS

Hindenburg and Bruening Make a Deal.

BY SIGRID SCHULTZ.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BERLIN, May 3.—A German cabinet crisis was averted today at a long conference between Chancellor Breuning and President von Hindenburg. It was indicated after the conference that Von Hindenburg was prepared to grant far reaching powers to the chancellor if necessary to keep him in control of the government.

In government circles it was said that Bruening and Von Hindenburg cleared away a misunderstanding which had arisen during the absence of the chancellor at the Geneva disarmament conference through the intrigues of friends of the Hitlerites and the Nationalists, who tried to create a rift between Bruening and the president.

Minister Warmbold Quits.

Earlier today the cabinet seemed to be tottering when Hermann Warmbold, minister of economics, resigned, and it was reported that the post of minister of war and the interior, held by Wilhelm Groener, was to be split into two portfolios.

Warmbold's resignation has not yet been officially accepted. Bruening presented it to Von Hindenburg, who is expected to accept it tomorrow.

Warmbold resigned because he opposed the government's plan for a forty hour week for labor and the plan for a national loan to provide work for the unemployed, to be financed by a lottery.

Reject Hitler's Complaints.

The national election board today rejected the complaint of Adolf Hitler, leader of the National Socialists [Fascists], that the election of Von Hindenburg was illegal. The board ruled that the elections were valid, since "the majority of 6,000,000 with which Hindenburg was elected was so overwhelming that whatever incidents might have happened could not have affected the election. Therefore Von Hindenburg was legally elected."

The objections of Hitler centered chiefly about allegations of police interference with the Fascist program. The Fascists complained that they were not allowed to use the radio, that 200 Nazi newspapers were suspended, and that pressure was exerted on civil servants to make them vote for Von Hindenburg. The Social Democrats countered with complaints of Nazi terrorism.

Oak Park Boy Arraigned on Charge of Extortion

Donald Imhoff, 17 years old, former Oak Park High school student, was arraigned yesterday before Chief Justice Harry M. Fisher of the Criminal court on a charge of attempted extortion. The case was continued until May 18 and Judge Fisher ordered a mental examination for young Imhoff, who is charged with demanding $10,000 from Fred P. Seymour, 21 North Linden avenue, Oak Park, father of a school chum, in a threatening letter.

TWO NATIONS VIE FOR CONTROL AT MEMEL ELECTION

Germans and Lithuanians Elect Diet Today.

KLAIPEDA, Memel, May 3.—(AP)—Elections for the Memel diet are slated to begin tomorrow.

They will mark another phase in the ceaseless warfare between Germany and Lithuania for the control of Memel-land, a strip of country three-quarters the size of Rhode Island, torn from Germany's eastern flank by the treaty of Versailles.

A new minorities problem was thus added to the long list of European interstate grievances. On the one hand are Lithuanian patriots, desirous of Lithuanizing the country to prepare it for final absorption, and on the other a big German or Germanic majority sturdily determined never to surrender to what they hold is a civilization inferior to their own.

German Head Is Fired.

The trouble came to a head last February, when Otto Boettcher, the president, a German, was dismissed from his post by the governor, Col. Antanas Merkys. Boettcher was given a vote of confidence by the Memel diet, but Edward Simaitis, a Lithuanian, was appointed in his stead.

Lithuania justified this action on the ground that Boettcher had been conducting certain commercial negotiations for Memel in Berlin without the foreknowledge of the Kaunas government.

The signatory powers of the Memel convention, England, France, Italy, and Japan, at Germany's request, submitted the dispute to arbitration. Gov. Merkys then dissolved the Memel diet for condemning the Lithuanian action.

364 Candidates in Race.

There are 364 candidates in tomorrow's election, although the population is only 147,000.

Exceptional facilities have been granted to Lithuanians to settle in Memel-land, in order to swell the Lithuanian vote. In the last month the Lithuanian population was increased by over 10,000, according to reports.

The situation is watched keenly in Germany, and it is further complicated by the fact that France, which was the occupying power in Memel-land prior to 1923, looks askance at any assertion of German influence beyond the present eastern boundaries of the reich.

PROTEST DISMISSAL OF GERMAN TEACHER FOR NUDIST ACTIVITY

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BERLIN, May 3.—Energetic protest has been voiced here by interested parents of school children and a section of the press concerning the case of Fräulein Marie Weid, formerly a popular teacher in the 292d district school. She has been peremptorily discharged because outside of school hours she participated in the exercises of one of the numerous German "free-body-culture" organizations—often lightly labeled the nudist movement.

The rector of the school in which the fräulein taught, in forcing the modern young instructress out of her place on his teaching staff, brought on himself the ire of his superior, the school counselor, who is responsible for educational goings-on in that district.

Many thousands of Germans, officially or actively participating in the free-body-culture movement, are also demanding the full and final reinstatement of the fräulein.

Meantime, on the ostensible grounds of economy, she has been forced out, to become one of about 20,000 German teachers with professional academic training who are jobless.

Personal intrigue figures in the background, of course, and differences of viewpoint and method between Fräulein Weid and the "before the war" teachers, who suit the principals' own tastes better.

The issue, however, is whether participation in the nude drills, exercises, and sports of physical culture institutes be officially penalized.

DRINKING PARTY SLAYING SOLVED BY BLOODSTAINS

New York, May 3.—[Special.]—A freshly scrubbed floor which still bore the trace of bloodstains enabled the police to solve the slaying of a woman whose bruised body was found today in a vacant second floor apartment on East 72d street.

The victim was identified as Helen Foley, 45 years old.

Within a few hours after the body had been "found" by Philip Darby, janitor of the East 72d street building, Darby and his common law wife, Minnie Miller, were arrested. The Miller woman was charged with homicide and Darby was held as a material witness. The woman confessed, the police announced, that while intoxicated she struck the Foley woman with a heavy candlestick, but had no intention of killing her.

The woman's death was the aftermath of an all night drinking party at the Darby apartment, the police said.

THE WHISPERER

By ROY VICKERS

SYNOPSIS.

"The 'Whisperer' Crimes" have held London terrorized for months. Numerous wealthy persons have been kidnaped and held for ransom. The ransom victim is sent a small wireless receiving set by means of which the "Whisperer" speaks, using his own short wave, and gives directions for delivering the ransom demanded. Police dare not interfere because death results for the captive if directions are not carried out.

Joyce Morrow, engaged to Roland Blatch, secretary to Sir Henry Glazeborough, M. P., a leading philanthropist, is taken captive. Roland is forced to steal jewels which are in his keeping for the bandit to insure the safe return of his beloved. When Joyce is again safely home, Roland decides to accept an offer from the bandit to join his band and try to recover the jewels. He is sent to an address where a woman named Connie gives him a facial treatment which alters his appearance. Roland reports every day to Connie, where the Whisperer talks to him through a telephone loud speaker, but remains hidden from view. He is sent to collect ransom from Lord Whiddon, and is involved in the killing of Lady Whiddon when her husband fails to meet the Whisperer's demands. Roland finds the Whisperer's hideout. He sees Sir Henry leaving and is faced with the staggering truth that the Whisperer is Sir Henry. Prowling through the house Roland becomes locked in the room used to imprison the captives. The Whisperer's next victim is the young daughter of Renbold Harner, minister of development in Australia, who is in London with special credit from his government to place orders for British made farm machinery. Harner refuses to use his government's money for ransom. Miss Harner is thrust into the room where Roland is also a captive. Roland fires at a masked figure who opens the door and saves Miss Harner's life.

INSTALLMENT XXI.

THE WHISPERER FAILS.

"You are, I take it, of opinion that this outlaw will—will—murder my daughter—that she is in all probability already dead?"

But for the slight hesitation the minister's voice was low and steady. Of the two it was the detective who showed the more emotion.

"I can only say I am extremely sorry for you, Mr. Harner," he faltered. "My department——" the detective could not continue.

"We must not let Mr. Larpent blame himself," said Sir Henry. "I fear he feels his position almost too acutely. Scotland Yard has done its wonderful best. It is not its fault that its best is not good enough."

Larpent turned to Sir Henry. The muscles of his jaw tightened and he said nothing.

"I confess that I would prefer to know the worst as soon as possible," said Mr. Harner. "How long does one usually have to wait?"

"In this case it will not be as long as usual, sir." The detective paused, then went on: "I will give you all the information we have—which is little enough. The Whisperer evidently had a spy posted outside this hotel. He must have known almost at once that Detective Sergeant Hendricks had taken the 'little box' instead of yourself. For within ten minutes he proclaimed his knowledge and—and uttered a threat, sir."

Sir Henry lay on the floor in a dead faint.

"I understand," said Mr. Harner grimly. "There is no possibility of a mistake, I suppose?"

Larpent shook his head.

"We always pick up the Whisperer's speech on a number of receivers—in the hope of tracking him down. The reports all agree. It is true that today there was an unusual feature—caused by the ether or by the Whisperer's transmitter. The voice sounded very differently—like the voice of a different man. But I'm afraid we can't attribute any importance to that. I——"

He broke off as the telephone rang from the hotel reception bureau.

Sir Henry, continuing in his rôle of protector of the afflicted, answered it.

"I'm speaking for Mr. Harner. . . . What!" There was a sharpness in Sir Henry's voice that startled both the others. "No, no! You have made a mistake! Yes, a mistake, I tell you! It was some unscrupulous young lady reporter and I shall complain to the management. Mr. Harner has been sufficiently distressed by this kind of thing already."

Sir Henry was annoyed and nothing more. He quite sincerely believed the reception bureau had been bluffed by a daring young reporter.

Larpent could hardly believe his eyes. He wanted to shout—to cry out his joy—to embrace the young lady and the Australian minister himself.

Then, behind him there came the sound of a chair falling, followed immediately by a heavy thud.

He turned. Sir Henry lay on the floor in a dead faint.

For a moment Larpent stared down at him and then:

"Quite so!" he muttered, but neither of the Harners heard him.

Larpent rang the bell, then bent down and unfastened Sir Henry's collar.

"This is simply amazing!" Mr. Harner was saying. "D'you really mean, dear child, that one of the Whisperer's gang rescued you?"

The detective wheeled round.

"Silence!" he rapped out and then: "I'm extremely sorry to have to shout at you like that, sir. I want to hear everything Miss Harner can tell me. But——" he pointed to the prostrate man—"on no account must any member of the public hear what she has to say."

Servants appeared and on Larpent's instructions carried Sir Henry to a bedroom outside the suite and sent for a doctor.

Then Larpent turned to the girl.

"Yes." The girl's voice was sharp and defiant. "And nothing you can do will make me say a word that will help you to catch him."

Larpent said, "That means you will not describe him. Let me do it for you. Tall, springy, athletic, a tanned skin that suggests he comes from the tropics. Looks about forty—until you look close. Has the voice and bearing of a young man. Well educated. Easy manner——"

"Stop! O, dear—he'll think I betrayed him after——"

"No, he won't. I'll make it quite clear to him that you didn't. Now, Miss Harner, as you can't do him any harm I'm sure you'll tell me everything."

Miss Harner capitulated. She proved a shrewd, observant witness. She had even noticed the name of the street as she left the Whisperer's house.

When he had seen Miss Harner turn the corner safely, Roland went back into the house, examined it thoroughly, then went to the garage.

Dick had been alone in the house—and Dick was dead and could bear no tales to the Whisperer.

The two seated car, in which he had seen Sir Henry Glazeborough drive off on the previous day, was not there. There were the two lorries and the saloon. As a gesture of contempt he sounded the horn of the lorry. The garage doors rolled open and he strutted out.

With no special cautiousness he walked away from the house of death. Then he took a bus to central London and had a shave and general cleanup—then a substantial meal to help him think over his position.

By four o'clock he was loafing along Oxford street, when a special edition of the Evening Record burst forth with flaring posters and yelling newsboys.

"WHISPERER. THE YARD WAKES UP," proclaimed a poster.

"Police kill bandit!" muttered Roland in perplexity, then began to read the account. From time to time he stopped and each time his amazement grew as he resumed reading. For the account in the paper was not true.

Scotland Yard had not exactly lied to the press. Larpent had obtained the name of the street from Miss Harner and found the house in a few minutes. Then he put in his men and informed the press of their presence. The reporters were allowed to see the dead body of Number Four and the gas masks and to draw their own conclusions.

They concluded that it was a detective who had been concealed in the room—who had killed Number Four and rescued Miss Harner.

The news instantly excited the public. Men bought the paper, then waved it like a flag and cheered.

"This is simply splendid!" Roland told himself. "The Whisperer himself will think it was a detective—if only I can manage to account for my absence since breakfast yesterday morning. Now where the dickens can I have been all that time?" He thought for a moment and then: "Jove! I have it. Simple as shelling peas!"

. . . . . .

It was from the same evening paper that Connie, waiting in the inner room at Maviste's, had her first intimation that the coup had failed.

She was no coward, but at sight of the headlines panic seized her. She had never thought it possible that the Whisperer should fail. Yet the police had apparently found their way into his chief stronghold. Perhaps the most terrifying thing of all was the positive knowledge that her own safety was utterly bound up with that of the Whisperer.

If he were dead she would rejoice. If he were arrested she feared he would drag her with him to the gallows.

At six o'clock he spoke on the loud speaker.

"Hello, chief!" She struggled to control her voice. "I've read the Record."

"Then you've read a lot of lies. The girl herself—I have it on unimpeachable authority—said she was rescued by one of our party. You know who that is?"

Midnight Is Deadline for Garden Entry

Hundreds Nominated for Honor Roll.

BY PAUL POTTER.

Final entries in THE TRIBUNE'S annual spring flower garden competition in which judges will select the amateur gardeners to be named on its Honor Roll of Outstanding Flower Gardeners, must be mailed by midnight tonight.

Hundreds of city and suburban gardeners already have either nominated their friends for the competition, or have been nominated by others. The judges will tour almost every community in the metropolitan area from South Bend and Crown Point, Ind., Joliet and Aurora, to Waukegan on the north shore.

The lateness of the spring season this year probably will delay the judging, which is scheduled the last week in May and early in June, whereas it has started by midMay in former years. Those gardeners who have developed annual gardens which show best in the fall will be invited to compete in a second competition to be announced in August.

Any member of a family which has developed the yard and garden without aid of skilled or professional persons is eligible for the competition. All that is necessary is to send your name and address, and to ask two neighbors to sign their names and addresses to your statement that no professional or paid help has been employed. Mail this information to the Tribune Garden Editor by midnight tonight.

GARDENS FOR ALL

Enlisting of Cook county's unemployed family heads in the subsistence gardening campaign got under way yesterday as Warner G. Baird, newly appointed chairman, began organizing civic and welfare agencies for the vegetable planting movement.

Every needy family in the county will have an opportunity to obtain a garden plot and aid in cultivating it, Mr. Baird declared. He has arranged for every welfare relief station in the county to have application blanks on which the relief workers familiar with needs of individual families may indicate their requirements. This county-wide canvass opens Thursday.

"In order that we may be sure the gardening is done with the least waste, the larger units of land of about 200 acres each will be used almost entirely," stated Mr. Baird. "They not only can be supervised personally, but will be policed as the crops mature. They also lend themselves to a competitive spirit among the workers. Soil on each tract will be tested before it is plowed."

A central garden project committee is to be named today, to include officers of garden clubs, welfare agencies, industrial concerns and agricultural groups coöperating with the Joint Emergency Relief fund which is conducting the movement. Plans for transporting workers and supplies also are being worked out.

Redfern Buttons Long Sleeves on Navy Blue Coat

BY BETTINA BEDWELL.

PARIS. — [Special.] — They say clothes do not the lady make, but it is an incontrovertible fact that sleeves the clothes do make, these days. You just can't get around it, sleeves are the salt of the earth in Paris fashions. Sleeve emphasis, sleeve concentration, and sleeve exaggeration are just a few of the exhausted phrases that tell the world that the sleeve is IT. There are leg-o'-mutton, peasant, balloon, elbow length, cap, and anything else that can fall into Mr. Webster's definition of what makes a sleeve. Even day coats have deserted the long sleeved ranks this season and defiantly proclaim themselves out for the unusual.

Of course the long sleeved coat is the most practical, but short sleeved coats this season are very chic. Voila! By looking at the accompanying two sketches you will see how one Paris creator, Redfern by name, combines the two. The large drawing shows the smooth navy woolen coat, with tiny revers, and balloon sleeves held in at the wrists by narrow bands. It is unbelted, rather fitted, and its double rows of buttons give it a reminiscent Directoire air. These buttons are used on the sleeve a little below the shoulder. They are no mere ornaments but fasten the lower and upper sections of the sleeve together.

If you will look at the small sketch you will see this same coat set out on a warmer day, minus its lower sleeves. The dress beneath is in a pale yellowy beige marocain. It has a floppy bow of the marocain at the neck and a black leather belt.

"I don't usually gossip, but—"

"I DON'T MEAN this unkindly—you know I rarely gossip—but can't you give her a hint? She is so strange about some things. The way she wears her lingerie two or three days without a change! Every one perspires a little—doesn't she realize how easy it is to offend?"

ALL DAY underthings absorb perspiration acids and odors. That penetrating hint is so noticeable to others, before you're aware of it yourself. Don't take chances that may cost you romance or a job.

There's one sure way to know you are fresh and sweet! Lux is made to remove these unpleasant acids and odors completely, yet gently, so that colors and fabrics are never harmed.

And it takes only 4 minutes or less. Don't take chances! Follow this dainty habit—Lux underthings and stockings after every wearing.

1 Wash this 4-minute way. One tablespoon of Lux does one day's undies . . . stockings, too! Use lukewarm water—Lux dissolves instantly in it. Squeeze suds through fabric, rinse twice.

Young America Takes Up Color in Grand Style

Here Are Fashion Hints for Baby Week.

BY RHEA SEEGER.

VERY young Americans are certainly being pampered and coddled this week . . . what with an entire week dedicated to their infantile apparel and nursery whatnots . . . breathtaking low prices . . . new gadgets and toys and anything that any spoiled or unspoiled youngster could demand, the various baby departments and shops in Chicago are prepared for the shopping excursions of proud parents as well as an admiring army of aunts and friends.

There isn't anything missing, from wee little French frocks and ravishing French bonnets to silk socks and the newest ideas in bootees and slippers. You can buy baby layettes that are just as complicated to assemble as the college wardrobe . . . you'll struggle over the temptation to buy too many dresses and coats . . . you will park your large or little budget outside and plunge with enthusiasm into the delightful task of buying baby clothes that are priced lower than they have been for years.

The newest little dresses for the smallest little babies are in color . . . quite a departure from the rather inevitable white which seemed to be the only proper thing to wear in other years . . . pale pink, and blue, and buttercup yellow . . . hand made affairs with cunning little dabs of embroidery and smockings . . . each tiny stitch made by clever fingers . . . make the most adorable dresses for fashionable folk who begin to dress for admiring ohs and ahs at the tender age of one month. These little frocks of color are available for cooing babes up to 6 and 7 months of infantile wisdom.

Up and coming and clothes conscious toddlers will wear color this year likewise . . . all pastel shades of maize, pink, delectable shades of blues and lavender.

Babes in arms will be as ga-ga over the new sweaters as their older relations . . . sweaters that are perfect, downy dreams of soft yarns and warmth . . . tiny turnover collars . . . wee little rosebuds wandering around the chest . . . waddling yellow ducks . . . cunning little blue dogs and pink kitties and childish scenes of gardens with pale green trees and topsy turvy houses . . . supply the decorative interest for fashion wise sweater collectors.

Other woollies to wrap around your young presidential candidates are the new blankets . . . blankets for carriage and the daily promenade . . . great fuzzy-wuzzy squares and oblongs to snuggle into when the wind sweeps across the lake . . . and these, too, go into animal pictures for border interest . . . gamboling lambs, gayly marching dogs and cats that almost seem to purr.

Real swanky carriage queens and kings coo and gurgle under silken padded robes with an occasional bow or two and a few yards of fine featherstitchings.

You can buy bibs without any reserves . . . you'll find them for strictly utilitarian purposes and for gala festivities . . . bibs of washable pique, plain or embroidered . . . bibs of fine lawn and sheer linen with coy little edgings of real lace for the feminine milk drinker and sturdily embroidered for the masculine spinach hater . . . long bibs, short bibs, and medium sized bibs for each and any of your offspring.

Because modern infants are clothed with stern simplicity there isn't much to tell about the under layers but what few necessities you need you will find them arrayed with the rest of the nursery apparel and priced as comfortingly low as the outside decorative things that delightfully clothe the ruler of your nursery.

Girl Describes Courier Work in Mountains

Miss Trowbridge Writes of Her Experiences.

BY JUDITH CASS.

EVERYBODY who's been waiting to hear tales of Katherine Trowbridge's experiences as a courier in the Kentucky hills for the Frontier Nursing society can find out all about her job in the spring bulletin of the nursing service.

Miss Trowbridge, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Cornelius M. Trowbridge of Lake Forest, is to arrive home soon from a two months' period of service for the society, which devotes itself to the mothers and babies of remote mountainous areas of Kentucky.

Courier jobs call for skilled horsemanship and a predilection for hard work. Eastern debutantes fight to get on the waiting list of girls who enter their applications long before they reach the required age.

As to Miss Trowbridge's success at the job, we quote the Frontier Nursing Service bulletin, which is printed at Lexington, Ky.: "Miss Trowbridge of Lake Forest, Ill., has just left us, after spending more than two months in our late winter courier service. As our first Chicago courier she is so good that we look forward with enthusiasm to the next representative of that city."

As to the job itself—the bulletin contains a six page story written by Miss Trowbridge. Her story is a vivid piece of reporting entitled "A Courier Looks at Life." It is a stirring tale of furious rides over the mountains at all hours, with nurses bent on bringing new citizens into the world. It is a tale of service and medical care for mountain mothers who otherwise would have no scientific assistance.

A Night in a Cottage.

To quote some paragraphs from a story of two nights spent in a mountaineer's cottage awaiting a birth: "Dougall [the nurse] suddenly said, 'I think I will lie down for a bit.' And she stretched out on the home made bed with its gunny sack mattress filled with corn shucks. Knowing this was her second night out, I thought the only sporting thing to do was to play the part of hot water bottle. We put newspapers over the mattress.

"Again the same system as at the fire—warm one side and freeze the other—then when the frozen side was thoroughly congealed, turn with much tearing of newspapers and jabbing of springs and repeat the process on the other side. The rubber sheet formed a splendid windbreak for the gusts of wind and snow that blew in from the hole in the ceiling right over us. We lay there listening to Susie's [the mother's] heavy breathing and Darky's snorting outside. As the snowflakes blew onto the bed and tickled my face I pulled my beret on tighter, gloves still on, and thought of the song, 'O Wert Thou in the Cauld, Cauld Blast.'

"At 10 o'clock the next morning I started for a relief nurse. . . . The world was white as I left for Wendover, and it was still snowing. Half way home another horse and rider appeared and there was Lucille with more provisions and the good news that McConnell, the relief nurse, was on the way. Soon I met McConnell [a new nurse] with Minnie showing her the way to Susie's cottage. Later in the day when Dougall returned with all three of them, she said Susie's baby came just as they arrived at the cabin.

"As might be expected, the coming of her baby under such circumstances didn't improve Susie's general condition and for several days she kept us all anxious. The care given to her mother seemed to inspire Susie's 14 year old daughter with a desire to improve the home conditions. Each day we noticed some improvement in the cabin. Later in the spring Susie's husband came to Wendover [the nursing center] to plow in order to pay the midwifery fee."

Lecture for Cradle Benefit.

Mrs. Frederick H. Scott will open her residence at 175 Sheridan road, Winnetka, this morning at 11 o'clock for the third of four lectures for the benefit of the Cradle by Dr. Horace J. Bridges. His subject will be "The Art of Willa Cather."

The Originalists and some of their friends are to meet tonight at the Goodman Studio theater for an intimate dance concert arranged for them by Diana Huebert. A ballet, "Play of Words," with music by David Van Vactor, choreography by Mark Turbyfill, and danced by Miss Huebert, Mr. Turbyfill and group will be given, as well as solo and group dances. The program will start at 9:30 o'clock. Mr. and Mrs. Carey Orr are entertaining the forty Originalists at dinner at the Tavern before the program.

In yesterday's mail was an announcement for three performances at the Goodman theater by the Tatterman Marionettes of "The Legend of the Lightning" sponsored by the Junior League theater, the first to be next Sunday at 3 o'clock and the other two on Saturday, May 14, at 10:30 and at 3 o'clock.

Also in yesterday's mail was a notice of the next meeting of the Friends of Opera guarantee fund committee on Wednesday, May 11, from 4 to 5 o'clock at Mrs. Waller Borden's residence, 1020 Lake Shore drive.

Mme. Barthelemy to Visit Here.

Mr. and Mrs. Eames MacVeagh had expected to go to Paris this spring for a visit with Mrs. MacVeagh's parents, M. and Mme. Antonin Barthelemy, but when they found that they could not go just now they persuaded Mme. Barthelemy to come here. She is landing in New York about the 11th of this month, and Mrs. MacVeagh is going east to meet her. The Barthelemys were great favorites when they lived here some years ago and he was the French consul to Chicago.

Miss Cornelia Fairbanks, who has been visiting Miss Emeline Bush for several days, left yesterday afternoon for Indianapolis to join her parents,

John Riddell Pens Parodies on 1931 Books

Follows the Terry-Shaw Letters Style.

BY FANNY BUTCHER.

"In the Worst Possible Taste" by John Riddell. [Scribners.]

JOHN RIDDELL [whose real name is Corey Ford] is our most brilliant parody-monger. He has a knack, which is a real art, of writing about books so in the manner of their authors that, added to his natural wit, is the allurement of caricature. He takes the literary mechanical toy apart and shows how it ticks and travels by the mere process of hoisting it with its own petard.

"In the Worst Possible Taste" is a collection of seventeen parodies in the manner of popular volumes of 1931. Its title comes from a comment in the Naples [Iowa] Bee that "John Riddell's parodies are in the worst possible taste," a newspaper and a town which incidentally do not exist any more than Mr. Riddell actually exists.

To appreciate the parodies to their full the reader must have read the volumes which they joust, but most of the books and authors mentioned are the small talk of any "literary" gathering. The mention of that word "literary" reminds me of one of my favorite stories, about the chorus girl who, on waking up on the eleventh morning of her honeymoon and finding her husband reading a newspaper exclaimed "My God, I've married a literary man." Many books are called by their first names by a "literary" public, even if few are chosen for actual reading. There isn't a volume mentioned in Mr. Riddell's ribaldry whose name has not become a household word in the last year.

Preface, Then Postscript to Preface.

The book begins with a preface and a postscript to the preface after the manner of Frank Harris' life of Bernard Shaw and Mr. Shaw's explanations in that volume about his own part in the biography.

The book proper (or improper, according to the point of view) takes its form from the famous Terry-Shaw correspondence. Each chapter is treated as a letter from Mr. Riddell to an author, and it is preceded with the same kind of explanatory paragraphs that preceded each one of the Shaw-Terry billets doux.

The first letter is addressed to C. G. N. and K. N., and is, according to the explanatory paragraph, "a daring treatment of the most important and absorbing problem of contemporary writing: book control. Aroused by the frank discussion of birth control in Mr. Charles G. Norris' tract entitled "Seed" as well as by mention of the same subject in Mrs. Kathleen Norris' "Passion Flower" and other novels, the young and impressionable Mr. Riddell attempted in the following letter to try his own hand at the all important theme of limiting our excess productivity in America." And how Mr. Riddell does it! It is one of the most side splitting pieces in the book, and one of the cruelest, for he slays a great many of the writers of the popular favorites in it. He proves that by the practice of "Literary Contraception," as he calls it, many good literary reputations might have been preserved. It is a doctrine which any literary editor would endorse thoroughly. Too many bad books are being written! "In order to save the decent novelists from bringing about a complete suicide of American literature," Riddell says, "not only must they publish more, but the fecundity of the illiterate writers must be curtailed." Mr. Riddell makes his observations in language amusingly alternating between the sweetly sentimental of Mrs. Norris and the pseudo-profound of Mr. Norris.

Dreiser Gets Walloping.

Theodore Dreiser is walloped to a stuffed adjective in "Dawn Jawn" occasioned by his "Dawn." The looting of American history for popular novels is whipped into stinging paragraphs in a letter to Edna Ferber on the subject, which ends with a phrase purporting to be from Miss Ferber's lips about Connecticut—to wit: "It is, I may say, a new kind of booty. A kind of American booty."

"The Literary Black Chamber" parodies Major Yardley's "The American Black Chamber" and discovers the secrets of E. E. Cummings, Gertrude Stein et al., but gives up James "Jerce" as hopeless. Mr. Riddell calls E. E. Cummings "a typographical error of the late '20's," [that's a sample of his method.

A. A. Milne, Warwick Deeping and J. B. Priestley visit William Faulkner in "Popeye the Pooh." They were sent by John Riddell. "We've been doing people good for so long" Milne said [as spokesman]. "Now we want to have a little fun of our own. We want a little unpleasantness for a change."

And in that situation you have Mr Riddell cavorting something elegant.

All of the other "letters" are grand, too. They are destined for those who know what all the shootin's about, but to them "In the Worst Possible Taste" will be the literary joke book of the year.

Covarrubias has added to the joy of jaded readers with caricatures of some of our best [literary] people.

Manage Child Who Stutters with Calmness

BY GLADYS HUNTINGTON BEVANS.

We have two questions and answers today.

Question: "I have a child of 6 and am interested in doing things and telling her the right way. Does your Sex Education booklet tell the way to explain to the child and tell the names of the different organs of the body in the correct way?"

Answer: Yes, it does.

Question: "My son, aged 2½, has recently begun to stutter quite badly. Short sentences which theretofore he has said with no difficulty have suddenly become almost incomprehensible. I realize that this may be only a passing phase, but due to the fact that he has two relatives who stutter slightly I feel it best to get as much available information on the subject as possible. Can you suggest anything yourself—or any books?"

Answer: Yes, we have excellent reading suggestion which I am sending you. The stuttering may be partly imitative, if your little boy has much association with the relatives you mention.

But many young children go through the phase. It is sometimes due to the gaining of so many skills and coördinations at the same time, occuring at about this age. It is also due to a child's ideas and desire for speech being greater than his capacity at that time to express himself.

It is advisable not to focus his attention on the habit. Also, he should be managed with calm and friendly ease and not be hurried in his various activities. I would refrain from requiring any fine muscle use that seems a strain, like buttoning clothes or lacing shoes. Lots of vigorous outdoor play and plenty of sleep are stabilizing factors. Perhaps very occasionally you might experiment with the effect of a quieting or slowing up word when he stutters, giving him the feeling that's there's all the time in the world.

Wise Birth Control Held Only Remedy for Ills of World

New York, May 3.—(AP)—Solution of the world's economic distress lies in "some wise and judicious means of limiting the number of births," Prof. Henry Fairfield Osborn, president of the American Museum of Natural History, said today after a 28,000 mile trip around the globe.

Whether his cruising ship stopped in Tahiti, Samoa, Fiji, New Guinea, or Ceylon, he found the same overpopulation, he said, and, although the problem was balanced in part by overproduction, nevertheless he believed widespread unemployment can be diminished only by regulating births.

"I return more impressed than ever," he said, "with the principle of 'not more but better and finer representatives of every race.' I hold that for the American nation as well as for foreign stocks."

Lecture on Reds.

The Midland Boosters will hold a weekly meeting at 12:15 o'clock today in the lounge of the Midland club at 172 West Adams street. Lieut. Nelson E. Hewitt of the naval intelligence department, statistician for the American Vigilant Intelligence association, will speak on "How Communism Operates."

This Plan Avoids Any Reducing by Women Opera Stars

New York, May 3.—[U. P.]—Singerless opera, in which a voice of ethereal beauty will not contrast with a buxom prima donna, is being planned by Leopold Stokowski, conductor of the Philadelphia Symphony orchestra.

In the singerless opera, voices of the singers will be played on disks, synchronized to the pantomime of actors and actresses whose appearance will not destroy the illusions of the audience. The new entertainment, according to Stokowski, is being used already in Philadelphia.

"Opera today," Stokowski explained, "while pleasing to the ear, is often a sore trial to the eye. Take Tannhäuser, for example. Venus, the most beautiful woman in the world, is using her charms to tempt Tannhäuser from the narrow path of virtue. But unfortunately, the lady who plays the part happens to have eaten too much.

"Could we ask the lady to eat less? That may be asking too much. But this is not necessary. Electricity will change her. We can take her voice and record it on a disk. Then we can select a beautiful young lady."

'Tis with our judgments as our watches, none
Go just alike, yet each believes his own.—Pope.

By Mae Tinée.

Good Morning!

A pretty German girl loaded down with suitcases and bundles made her appearance! And I got that prickly sensation that assails you when something occurs which you feel you've experienced before—when or where, for the life of you, you don't know.

"I—have—seen—this—picture," muttered I to me. And waited! Sure enough! Pretty soon I placed the thing. "Office Girls" is "Die Privatsegreteaerin" [the private secretary], which showed at the Punch and Judy about a year ago. In a way, however, it's an entirely new picture, because it's been all done over in English, and, with the exception of the heroine, sports an entirely different cast from the original. It remains a charming musical comedy.

Renate Mueller, the heroine, has the same gift of ecstasy which is so strong and alluring a characteristic of Dolores Del Rio. She is full to the brim and running over with the joy of life—and the music just bubbles from her.

Susie [it was Vilma in the German version] comes to Vienna to find work, and, through the aid of a crotchety old bank something or other—guardian, I guess—who is also conductor of the bank's male singing society, secures a position.

The manager of the department where she labors gets, as we say, fresh. Susie, for refusing to go out with him, is forced to work overtime.

Somebody stops by her desk. Believing him to be a clerk, Susie inveigles him into helping her, and later goes to dinner with him at the garden where the singing society is singing. For on every Wednesday night Herr Hasel and his melody makers are a feature on this beer garden's entertainment program. When the conductor sees with whom his protégée has come, he throws a fit, or actions to that effect.

No more here.

"Office Girl" has laughter, music, good acting. Personally I consider it slick entertainment.

See you tomorrow!

Two Historic Stones Remain in Church Here

Plymouth Rock a Loss of Chicago Fire.

BY RUTH DE YOUNG.

Conversation at the Tavern club got down to bedrock recently. A dinner guest, concerned with the construction of some of our city's skyscrapers, declared among other things that part of the big stone our forefathers set foot on when they stepped from the Mayflower in 1620 is right here in Chicago. Another disagreed. Still another agreed.

The second Tavern guest wins!

For this discussion prompted a bit of investigation, with the following results: Years ago there was a sizable chunk of historic Plymouth Rock at the old New England Congregational church at Dearborn street and Delaware place, but it has been lost—for at least six decades. The fire of '71 that burned out every one on the near north side carried with it most of this church edifice, including "Plymouth Rock." At least the stone has never been seen since, and, for purposes of preservation, custodians of the bowlder down on the New England shore have never granted the church fathers here a duplicate.

There still are two stones at the New England church, however, worth talking about—not because they are old, but because they portray, with the missing piece of Plymouth Rock, the three chief epochs in the history of the Pilgrim Fathers. These rocks are imbedded in the front wall that remained standing through the fire—much the same as 31 historic stones stud the façade of the Tribune Tower.

One of the stones at the New England church is inscribed "Scrooby Manor, A. D. 1606." The other is marked "Delft Haven, A. D. 1620." Both were obtained for the church in 1867 by E. W. Blatchford, then secretary and treasurer of the congregation. In the files of the church there is in Mr. Blatchford's own handwriting a record of the receipt of the stones.

"We have often questioned," commented Edward P. Storrs, clerk of the New England church, "whether this church kept its promise to the Delft Haven [Holland] congregation. For in these same records is a request that we send back a stone to replace the one sent here. There is no account of our having filled this request, so there may still be an empty niche in the pavement at Delft Haven where the Puritans last worshiped before sailing for America."

The Scrooby Manor stone comes from the original church in Scrooby, England, where many of the Puritans worshiped before fleeing to Holland—among them William and Mary Brewster and their five children. In fact, it was at Scrooby that the Puritans formed a separate and independent church with Mr. Brewster as the elder. You remember the story, how they separated from the Church of England, established churches at Gainsborough and at Scrooby, and then because of persecution, fled to Holland, where they established themselves at Amsterdam, then at Leyden, and finally in America.

It was at Delft Haven in July, 1620, that the Puritans last worshiped in Holland before embarking for this country, so the second stone at the New England church tells the story of the second epoch in the Puritans' struggle. When a piece of Plymouth Rock was imbedded in the church façade, it represented the third epoch, the arrival of the Pilgrim Fathers in America.

It is told that the New England church obtained the third stone as the result of the splitting in two of Plymouth Rock in 1774 when it was raised to be consecrated to liberty—an incident then regarded as an omen of the separation of the colonies from England.

Speaking of stones and relics, the New England church further memorializes Scrooby with the heavy stone font used by these same Puritans in the 16th and 17th centuries. From this, it is told, the Brewster children were baptized. The font, said to date from the 14th century, was brought to this country by William H. Bradley when the Scrooby church installed one more modern. Mr. Bradley placed it in the New England church as a memorial to his daughter-in-law, Mrs. William H. Bradley Jr., and her two infant sons. It represents the earliest type of font, that which came into use for baptismal purposes in the 9th century.

Old Alibi About Lack of Makeup Shot to Pieces

BY ANTOINETTE DONNELLY.

We used to be of the opinion that when a woman used the alibi that her husband did not approve of makeup she was pretty smug about her mate holding power, or else she thought she'd done enough for him when she cooked his meals.

It seems, however, that when the little woman tells you that her husband doesn't approve of makeup there are two conclusions from which you may take your choice. Either the woman is lazy, or her husband distrusts her makeup discretion and would rather discourage the darling than have to spend his life telling her that she has too much paint or powder on. So we learn from a male commentator, the moral being that makeup is something to use to prove that you're not lazy and to use artistically so that Mister will have no technical concern with the job.

It may come as a surprise that there are women who offer any alibi for not using makeup, that there are women who have no interest in the illusion it creates. Truth is that there are any number of women whose dressing table [or, more likely, bathroom cabinet shelf] boasts no more of the artifices than a jar of cold cream and a box of powder.

This minimum dedication to the goddess of pulchritude may get a lady to first base, possibly to second—but for the home run cheers she'd better not overestimate her natural charms quite so highly. For after all, we live in an age and under circumstances that leave the feminine face in need of artificial tinting. Not too strong coloring, but some coloring, nevertheless.

The idea that a man does not approve of makeup is fiction, since he only recognizes makeup when lips and cheeks are gaudy, or when powder smudges his coat. Where makeup is artfully applied he never stops to ask the reason why, or how come. The question of scenic display as drawn from rouge pots and eyeshadow jars simply does not occur to his lordship.

So, from now on if any woman tries to sell you the idea that she won't put on lipstick or a bit of cheek coloring because her husband doesn't approve, you interrupt her midway in her story and remind her that the truth is out now and she mustn't tell that one any more.

The charm of the pies "mother used to make" was the result of long and constant experience. Today, while we have less time to practice the art, we actually have something which is better—an opportunity to learn the whys and wherefores of good and bad pastry making, and a chance to beat grandmother at her own game!

First of all, a good pie must have a good crust, but there's the sticker. A crust which is considered good by one may not one bit please another. But food experts give us a solution to that which I believe will please everybody. It consists of one recipe which may be made into three entirely different kinds of pie crusts by just a variation in the method of mixing. Here is the recipe:

THREE PURPOSE PASTRY.

4 tablespoons ice water.
3 tablespoons lard.
½ teaspoon salt.

From this recipe we may make a very short, mealy crust, a decidedly flaky crust, or a short flaky variety—a cross between the first and the second types.

For the short mealy crust, warm the lard [do not melt] until it can be easily worked with a wooden spoon or the fingers. Combine it with the flour and salt, working it in until the flour has reached the consistency of fine meal. The water [in this case used at room temperature] is then cut in quickly with a knife, and the dough rolled out immediately.

The flaky crust, on the other hand, is made in just the opposite manner. For this type, keep the room, hands, and equipment cool. Chop in the lard only until the mixture is very coarse and granular in appearance. Then work in the water lightly with a knife until little balls of dough hold together in a large ball, the mixture being as stiff as possible. Chill the pastry until very cold and roll out lightly, fill and bake immediately.

For the short flaky pie crust—the third type—follow the second method, but chop in only one-half of the fat to be used. Place the remaining fat in small pieces on top of the dough after it has been rolled to one-half inch thickness. Then fold the dough in thirds and roll out again to fit the pie tin.

Pie crust troubles aren't alone a matter of finding the right method to suit a pernickity family. I sometimes wish that they were. But sometimes, even though you are certain you put in just the correct cups and spoonfuls of everything, and chilled the ingredients for all you were worth, pies still go their own tough way with no explanation at all to their maker.

And here again we have put one over on grandmother, for today we know something about the chemistry and physics [if you'll pardon the terms] of our pies, that even our mothers merely guessed at. That "paper plate" toughness of your pie crust is likely, first of all, to be due to too much enthusiasm on your part in mixing the flour and liquid. Long manipulation is bound to develop the gulten in the flour and toughen the crust. Or, if you are attempting to make up several crusts at once, you may also get into difficulty. Best combine each recipe separately, for the more flour there is, the harder it is to incorporate the water, and the more mixing it takes. And, as before, mixing leads to toughness.

Buster Keaton Does Things in Great Big Way

BY GEORGE SHAFFER.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Hollywood, Cal., May 3.—When Buster Keaton sets out to square himself with the little women he does it in a big way. To celebrate the adjustment of the family tiff which caused all the commotion a couple of weeks ago and to celebrate the birthday of his wife, the former Natalie Talmadge, as well, Buster gave her a huge new limousine, all done up like a three ton box of bonbons with fancy paper, ribbons, etc. It made an impressive spectacle in the driveway by the Keaton home.

They regard Wally Beery as the mascot of better times at M. G. M. studio. Six of Wally's featured pictures, "Min and Bill," "Big House," "Hell Divers," "The Champ," "The Secret Six," and now "Grand Hotel," are this studio's biggest money-makers.

Hamilton Club Chorus Charms at 2d Concert

Gives Entertaining Songs of Musical Value.

BY EDWARD MOORE.

The Hamilton club chorus is a thoroughly alive organization, so much so that it gives new meaning to the thought of male choral singing. Only recently has it given thought to public appearances, although it has been in existence a number of years, and its second annual concert at Orchestra hall last night showed it in a brilliant light.

It numbers about ninety singers, many of them in the professional class, and these ninety good voices, its conductor, Harry S. Walsh, has trained and developed into a highly efficient ensemble, capable of booming out into bursts of tone, also of singing words rapidly and trippingly on the tongue. At present it goes in for songs rather than extended works, but songs carefully selected for their entertaining as well as musical values.

An American group, for example, was not only of spirituals, but went to the folk music of the Kentucky mountaineers. "Sourwood Mountain" was the name of an uncommonly good one. Folk music of other nations appeared, there were several sacred works, also a number of art songs written for this department of choral singing. The soloists were Walter Pontius, tenor, and Leslie Arnold, baritone, both members of the chorus, and both well known professional singers.

Emily Boettcher, pianist, and Anthony Guerrera, cellist, appeared in a joint recital at Kimball hall last night under the auspices of the Society of American Musicians. The program, one of several, came as the result of a contest held earlier in the season by the society, under the terms of which winners of all classes were to be given public appearances.

Miss Boettcher is a brilliant pianist, and at her best an imaginative and persuasive one. Her part of the program began with a group of Bach transcribed by various later musicians, and in an arrangement made by Myra Hess of the chorale, "Jesu, Joy of Man's Desiring," she gave a charming performance. Her tone became rather hard later in the group, but she kept a good view of the structural line.

Mr. Guerrera plays with a fine tone and a well developed technic. He, too, began with the ancients among composers, coming down to later works after the elders had been introduced. He has a talent for phrasing in a persuasive manner and his ideas of interpretation are excellent.

Doris Advises Boy to Avoid Selfish Friend

BY DORIS BLAKE.

The boy managed to muster up enough money to give the girl a friendship ring for her birthday. That just about exhausted his roll, which for six months has been undergoing a process of depletion, discouraging enough in itself and due to a couple of wage slashes.

Low on money and lower still in spirits, the boy arrived at the girl's house the Sunday following the birthday for a quiet evening at her home. He reported to the girl his state of finances, which was exactly carfare to her place and back home, and humbly expressed his regret that he could not take her anywhere.

"She was peeved and nasty during the entire evening," the boy reports. "I told her that she had no reason to feel that way. She replied: 'Well, I want a good time and if you can't give it to me there are others who will.'"

"Still she tells me that she loves me," the boy adds, "and I believe her and forget everything she says. At times she is very mean and selfish. She has a nasty disposition when she gets mad and doesn't know what she is saying.

"She is very nervous and always wants her own way. I let her have it for a time. Too long, in fact. Now I can't say a thing to her. PAUL."

Of such is the kingdom of Reno, Paul! That, or the Gallery of Henpecked Husbands! You take your choice, Paul, and blame nobody but yourself later. Yours will be the fault for not seeing the brambles for the occasional roses thrown your way. Don't expect marriage to remake that kind of character. It never does. A girl mean enough to kick a man when he is down, financially, isn't worth the price of the marriage license.

There is one good feature about this depression era of ours. It is giving the girls of fine character a chance to disprove much that has been attributed to our modern young women. They're buckling down to the necessary entertainment budget without any martyr's ado. It's their job to see the boy through his bad days as he saw them through good days, when he had it.

And some of them are getting more fun out of the enforced economies in entertainment style than they ever knew before. Some are learning the trite old fact that simple pleasures may be awfully good fun.

Princess Goes a-Shopping

as told to DONNE

Five words give you the tempo of this story. Spoken by the attractive young Russian, Princess Rostislav, they embody her eager interest in American customs and living. "I like your American stores," she emphatically told me when I asked about her preferences here.

"Why," she continued, "just the other night at a dinner party some of the men were talking about business and American advertising. One of the young men commented on the beautiful Chesterfield Furniture now being advertised by The Fair.

"I wanted to see this furniture; much of it is French period, you know. So I went specially to The Fair to look it over. It was beautiful and exquisitely made, but the great surprise to me was that, just like wearing apparel at The Fair, this better furniture is priced much lower than you'd ever expect. There seems to be sound logic in the statement, 'You save when you shop at The Fair.'"

RESTFUL SLEEP for FRETFUL, FEVERISH CHILD

... with Castoria's regulation

When your child tosses and cries out in his sleep, it means he is not comfortable. It may be an overloaded stomach, a starting cold, a little fever.

More often than not the trouble is that poisonous waste matter is not being carried off as it should be. Bowels need help—mild, gentle help—but effective. Just the kind Castoria gives.

Castoria, you know, is a pure vegetable preparation made specially for children's ailments. It contains no harsh, harmful drugs, no narcotics. And children take it without coaxing. They like its taste.

Don't let your child's rest—and your own—be interrupted. A prompt dose of Castoria will urge stubborn little bowels to act. Then come relaxed comfort and restful sleep! You'll know genuine Castoria—by the name Chas. H. Fletcher on the package.

NOTED DOCTOR WARNS MOTHERS ABOUT CHILD NEGLECT

Claims "Guessing" may Lead to Serious Infantile Disorders

"Urea Irritation, painful enough in itself," says Dr. Chas. I. Hyde, of Brooklyn, N. Y., "is frequently a condition disposing to more serious infantile disorders. Discomfort, severe enough to interfere with a baby's sleep may set up nervous reactions for which, later in life, the child's 'disposition' is blamed . . . Many mothers fail to realize that the mere dampness of a diaper does not cause an infant's skin to become raw and painful. Urea Irritation is caused by a chemical action which requires specific counteraction."

"Guessing" is dangerous when your infant's welfare is concerned. So often, babies are allowed to suffer needless torment because mothers do not understand.

The next time your little one cries—listen carefully! Behind that plaintive wail may be some cruel irritation which he is pleading with you to remove. Stop this irritation and your child develops normally. Neglect it and his whole disposition may be permanently altered.

Science Tells Us This

Physicians now tell us that at least 60% of infant fretfulness is caused by Urea Irritation. Do not think that it is enough merely to change the baby's diapers. The stinging acids in the urine crystallize almost immediately into tiny, gritty particles—so small they are invisible, yet so harsh as to turn an infant's sensitive skin into a raw, inflamed surface.

The only positive preventive of Urea Irritation is to keep these tiny crystals from contact with the body.

New Method of Relief

A remarkable powder has now been perfected for exactly this type of irritation. Whereas ordinary talcums dust off almost as soon as applied, Z. B. T. contains a special ingredient which adheres so closely to the skin as to make it almost completely moisture-proof. Thus, a delicate protective coating is formed against dangerous acids, irritation and chafing. Yet the powder does not "cake," and allows the free, normal flow of perspiration.

In addition, Z. B. T. contains a mild antiseptic that counteracts the slightest infection and soothes the skin back to a healthy, velvet-like texture.

CUBS DEFEAT PIRATES IN 26-HIT GAME, 8 TO 6

LET'S SIT DOWN, SOX FANS, AND TALK OF TEAM

Who Are Cabbages and Who Kings?

BY EDWARD BURNS.

(Picture on page 21.)

Rain helped out the White Sox yesterday by causing a postponement of the second scheduled games of the Chicago series with the Detroit Tigers. Weather now has put over three of the six scheduled games between the two teams and this cannot be considered anything but a break for the Sox. They can't go any worse than they have gone in their last 13 games, and they stand a good show to be much better a little later on.

RALPH KRESS.

And now that the weather matter is out of the way we are going to settle right down and slap ourself in the face with a questionnaire which is more or less of a composite of the questions we have been asked since we sneaked back into town with the Sox Monday morning. Here we are:

Q.—Is J. Louis Comiskey, new owner of the White Sox, a tightwad, a man who won't encourage the players with dough, and a fellow who doesn't know what it's all about?

A.—J. Louis Comiskey is a generous owner and will pay well to those who deliver, as he now is paying some who are not delivering. He is much more alert in baseball matters than those who have met him casually suppose. He is in no way at fault for the poor showing of his team to date.

All About Mr. Fonseca.

Q.—Is Lew Fonseca a good manager?

A.—Yes. And he'll be a better one when some of the newness of being a manager wears off. Before he took the field he managed from the bench and made some of his players a little weary with his scorecard waving à la Connie Mack; and some of his inspired hunches on strategy didn't pan out. Lew is a smart baseball man and will improve after the "executive" thrill becomes old stuff.

Q.—While Comiskey was trading in wholesale lots shouldn't he have included Vice President-Secretary Harry Grabiner in one of the deals?

A.—Mr. Grabiner is a tireless, loyal official and employé. It is not Mr. Grabiner's fault that he cannot knock out base hits with runners on the bases or relieve wilting pitchers in the ninth inning. Mr. Garbiner's gurgling optimism before an audience often is laughable. But lock him up by himself with his statistics books and he is a rather hardheaded baseball official.

How About Those Trades?

Q.—Did the recent trades help or hurt the Sox? Wasn't it a mistake to trade off a pitcher like Hadley?

A.—Without exception the trades should turn out helpful to the Sox. The Sox got a star in Red Kress as a result of the Hadley deal. You can't trade spavined mules for Twenty Grands, you know.

Q.—Are the Sox off to a worse start this year than they were last year when they finished last?

A.—Yes. On the morning of May 4 a year ago they were fourth to Cleveland, New York and Philadelphia with eight wins and seven losses. This morning they are seventh with five wins and 13 losses.

The Mystery of Lyons.

Q.—How about all these games Ted Lyons was going to win? Is there any truth in the rumor that Lyons' great arm is gone? What has Thomas ever done to warrant his repeated listing among the best pitchers in baseball?

A.—More or less secretly, there is grave concern about the condition of Lyons' arm. He can pitch ordinary stuff without pain, but when he bears down for that great stuff of other days he suffers considerably. Thomas, when in a pitching mood, is one of the best right handers in the business. He is in his seventh year as a major league pitcher and this season might be able to bring his percentage up to .500. With one win this season and one loss as a relief performer, Tommy as a major leaguer has won 81 games while losing 90. His best year in the majors was 1927, when he won 12 out of his first 14 games and finished for a fifth place team with 19 victories and 16 defeats.

Q.—How did the Sox come out last year with the teams they meet on the impending eastern invasion?

A.—Against Washington: Won, 7; lost, 15. Against Philadelphia: Won, 3; lost, 19. Against New York: Won, 6; lost, 15. Against Boston: Won, 10; lost, 12.

Play Tigers Today.

The Sox will play the Tigers this afternoon. It will be a special Ladies' day. After the game both teams will start east, the Sox bound for Washington, and the Tigers for New York.

P. S.—A man just phoned in with the report that the Sox are trying to trade Thomas to the Yankees for Outfielder Earl Combs.

FEEDBOX DOPE.

LOUISVILLE, Ky., May 3.—[Special.]—Universe, a bay colt by Infinite-Plaid, the latter by Wrack, was the Kentucky Derby candidate of Wake solicitude early this morning at Churchill Downs. It was Universe in the Wood Memorial last Saturday which spelled finis to the prospects of Top Flight.

It was from this Wood Memorial stakes of 1 mile and 70 yards, won by Gallant Fox in 1930 and by Twenty Grand last year, that these two colts came west to repeat their success in the Derby, eventually becoming age champions of their respective years.

Even before our arrival Universe had finished his morning exercise and was lingering over his breakfast.

As we approached the Cassidy colt lifted his head from the nosebag to greet us with "Good morning, Harve; I'm unusually glad to see you."

Emphasis of this remark puzzled us a bit and we glanced at him more closely. There was almost a frown and we fancied he looked worried. Naturally we ascribed it to depression or default in interest on so-called gilt edged bonds, but we countered with "Well, what's on your mind; you don't look as happy as should a colt which beat Top Flight."

"It's just this," Universe answered, "I don't understand why my victory Saturday is belittled. You've been fair enough, but here I am still fourth choice in the betting, with Tick On favorite. You remember what Gallant Fox and Twenty Grand did.

"Tick On started once this week and was beaten by Springsteel. Yet that defeat proved him a great race horse, experts say. I start once, beat Top Flight and a good field, and still am placed behind Tick On. How do they get that way?

"Take this chart of the Wood Memorial," and Universe picked up a form sheet which he evidently had been studying. "You see, I went right out from the start and you know how important it is in the Derby to keep in the first flight out of jams. We ran six furlongs in 1:12 and the mile in 1:38. While Top Flight was stopping I had to outlast Economic in the stretch and won by a half length.

"That disposes of that race. Now let's take the other argument. They say Tick On is a stayer and will come at the finish. They admit he has been a slow beginner. It is true that I did not go beyond six furlongs as a 2 year old, but I did not race after Aug. 3. Thus, I had plenty of time to develop and grow. I started nine times with three brackets, was only twice out of the money, and won $20,000. Tick On did finish third while I was fifth to Mortair at Saratoga, but I was giving him nine pounds.

"So if I had no chance last year to prove route going ability I certainly did Saturday at my first opportunity. Take that with my early pace and I look good anyway to Owner Cassidy and Trainer Bauer."

"What about the Bradley pair?"

"I don't know them personally," Universe responded. "Seem like nice fellows. They came over to make a friendly call and welcome me to my first western trip. Mighty decent of them. I know Burgoo King was good last fall. Brother Joe didn't do much, but trainers tell me he has improved unbelievably. As I told you, this is a mighty hard game and I respect all the colts in it. I think it's an open race. I feel fine and I'm trying—that's about all one can do or say."

Turf Depression.

Louisville racing thus far reflects the prevailing business depression. Soon the advance guard of Derby followers will stimulate attendance and speculation, but the present atmosphere is a bit funereal compared with the banner seasons.

Col. Winn, masterful figure in western racing for 35 years, has not entirely lost his usual smile, but he is resigned to an attendance and mutuel decrease of aproximately 30 per cent.

Mutuel play on the opening day was off over 40 per cent. That is hardly a fair criterion, however, as the informal charity opening took away the usual first day glamour. Play yesterday and today decreased slightly more than 25 per cent compared with a year ago. Big bettors are scarce. One Chicagoan, who once wagered about $500 per race, bought $100 worth of tickets this afternoon and was told by the seller it was the only wager of that amount he had taken on the race.

Turfmen were relieved to hear that the senate would not press the 10 per cent tax on mutuel tickets, which would just about put racing out of business.

ADOBE POST WINS DERBY TEST; WILL START IN CLASSIC

Chicago Colt Comes from Behind; Pays $23.56.

BY HARVEY WOODRUFF.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Louisville, Ky., May 3.—Adobe Post, owned by Knebelkamp and Morris, with Dick Morris, the Chicago member of the confederacy, qualified for the Kentucky Derby at Churchill Downs this afternoon and now becomes an almost certain starter.

This change of plans on the part of his stable, which had declared less than a week ago Adobe Post was not of Derby caliber, came as a result of the Derby preparation stakes at a mile out of the chute. Adobe Post, away well and running in the middle of the pack until the stretch, came away handily on the outside when called upon by Jockey Landolt and won easily by two and one-half lengths.

Behind the Cherokee-Ruth gelding was Prince Hotspur, which had shared favoritism with Sazerac. A head back in third place was Cold Check. Then following in order came Crystal Prince, Indian Runner, Gallant Sir, Our Fancy, Cee Tee, Sazerac, Cabezo, and I Pass.

Adobe Pays Well.

Adobe Post rewarded backers with $23.65 for $2 to win, $11.80 to place, and $5.32 to show. Prince Hotspur was $5.62 for place and Cold Check $4.18 to show.

Except to put Adobe Post back among the probable starters, this race added little to the already confused dope. The time, 1:38 4-5 for a mile from the chute, was not impressive. The winner survived better than the others, which was about all that could be said for the outfit.

Prince Hotspur, although easily beaten, ran almost as good a race as the winner. He was in trouble just after the start, and Jockey Anderson had to pull up and go around his field on the back stretch to get into the first flight. Then he brought Prince Hotspur through on the rail, but the earlier effort was all the son of Dunlin had, and while outgaming the others, he could make up no ground on Adobe Post.

Results Disappoint.

To dopesters seeking long shots, or one to "drop from the moon," as the turf expression goes, the result was disappointing. Had the winner turned up in Cold Check, Indian Runner, just shipped from the east, Gallant Sir, which has been sulking in works, or even Sazerac, there would have been new arguments to weave about the chances for Saturday.

Adobe Post, however, is not accepted by turfmen as a real Derby prospect, no matter what the future may prove. It confirms the impression that the Derby field of 1932 may be lacking in class. Owner Knebelkamp, however, was enthusiastic after the finish and pointed to the easy manner in which his charge performed his task.

Cabezo, Our Fancy, and Gallant Sir were prominent in the early running, but none figured when the real test came. Indian Runner possibly was not quite ready.

Tick On Works Today.

Other Derby candidates indulged in only light work this morning, with several, including Tick On, the Bradley pair, Universe and Economic, scheduled to take full and perhaps final workouts tomorrow.

Lucky Tom and Brandon Mint arrived from the east to be included among the possible starters, which still stands at twenty. Here are the survivors, several of which must be considered very doubtful: Tick On, Universe, Economic, Burgoo King, Brother Joe, Cabezo, Brandon Mint, Cee Tee, Cathop, Big Beau, Indian Runner, Prince Hotspur, Gallant Sir, Cold Check, Lucky Tom, Rowdy Boy, Liberty Limited, Stepenfetchit, Over Time, Adobe Post.

Indianapolis, Ind., May 3.—(AP)—Receipt of the entry of Harold Brooks of Chicago today increased the number of would-be starters in the 500 mile automobile race here May 3 to sixty-nine. Only the forty fastest will be permitted to start.

Two Horses Fall to Thrill 4,500 Regulars.

BY FRENCH LANE.

There couldn't have been more than a few of the folks in yesterday's crowd of 4,500 at Sportsman's Park, Chicago's new Tom Thumb horse race track, who wagered a bob or two on Top Cloud to win the third race.

But when Top Cloud, a 7 year old, wheeled around the short turns as if they were tailor made for him and a mutuel figure calling for $83.74 for each $2 investment was hung out, everybody gave a mighty cheer. That's the way it goes at the horse race tracks. Everybody loves a winner.

Old Top Cloud, bred as fashionably as any horse in America, wasn't overlaid. He's been the biggest sort of plow-puller for a long time despite the fact that he is a son of the fast running High Cloud.

He's Been Slumming.

He has been galloping in the cheapest kind of company and finishing up at the eighth pole. But yesterday was another day. There were plunges on Peralta, American Thunder and on two or three other horses; Peralta took the lead early as if he might be going to make a runaway of it. Then Top Cloud suddenly fell into a running mood. He pulled up from behind, ran past Peralta at the head of the stretch and won by two lengths.

Peralta hung on to be second and John Speed, another nag from back in the snow bird days, began running over horses in the stretch to be third. The longshot victory seemed to have made it a perfect day for the crowd, even though only a few could show a profit on Top Cloud's triumph.

How about this half mile track racing? It was put to a severe test as the eight races were run off. The weather was cold and rain fell at intervals. The track was damp on top, but the time indicated it was good all afternoon.

They Run to Form.

There were a lot of regulars from all around Chicago stalking up and down the lawns seeking a windbreak here and there in an effort to keep warm. They had their dope books out, they studied them religiously, and didn't seem to be doing badly as the races were run off.

They also had money in their pockets to visit the pari-mutuel windows just as often as the races came along.

So-called wise players passed out the word to bet on the horse with the most early speed. But those tips frequently went awry. Horses with reputations for swiftness were often beaten to the first turn. And if they didn't know how to make the other sharp turns they were like so many babes lost in the woods.

Plenty of Thrills.

Thrills came every now and then, always on the turn where a horse stumbled or fell. Racketeer went to his knees on the clubhouse turn in the fifth race and tossed Jockey J. Pierce over his head. Pierce was unconscious when picked up but was soon revived. Then in the sixth race Reservation went down and spilled Jockey E. Buck all over the track. He wasn't hurt. Neither was the horse.

It all served to keep the crowd excited. Thrills and excitement do not come often these days.

FOXX AND CRITZ RETAIN PLACES AT TOP OF BIG 6

Jimmie Foxx and Hughey Critz held up a trifle better than their rivals yesterday in an afternoon of weak hitting among the batting leaders, and retained the top places in the two major leagues. They each made one hit in three times at bat.

Paul Waner of Pittsburgh and Bill Dickey of the Yankees were newcomers in the Big Six, Dickey through idleness that allowed Lou Gehrig to drop below him and Waner by making two hits in three times up to tie Pinkey Whitney for second place in the National league. Whitney dropped from first with one hit in four tries. The standing:

Senators Win, 5-4; Yankees Get 16 Walks

Washington, D. C., May 3.—(AP)—A two bagger by Sam Rice in the eighth inning gave the Senators their third straight victory over the New York Yankees, 5 to 4, today, after erratic Washington pitching had seemingly tossed away the game. The game was filled with passes. Each team was able to gather only six hits. New York used four pitchers and Washington three. Pennock, Allen Rhodes, and Andrews, for the Yankees, granted seven walks. Burke, Weaver, and Crowder for Washington allowed sixteen.

A'S WHIP RED SOX, 6-1.

Boston, Mass., May 3.—(AP)—Connie Mack's pitchers returned to winning ways today and George Earnshaw pitched the Philadelphians to a 6 to 1 win over the Red Sox. Earnshaw let the Sox down with only four hits. The Athletics' victory gave them the final game of their series here. Jimmie Dykes' single, scoring Cramer from first in the fourth inning, gave the Athletics their winning run, but Al Simmons' homer with two mates on bases in the ninth sewed up the game.

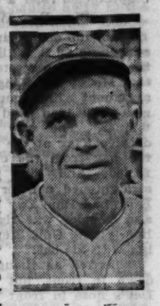
HACK'S SPEED BRINGS HOMER INSIDE OF PARK

Herman Gets Four Safe Wallops.

BY IRVING VAUGHAN.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Pittsburgh, Pa., May 3.—The Cubs were in distress at various times this afternoon, but eventually settled down to quantity production of base hits and defeated the Pirates, 8 to 6, in a battle which will not go into the record books as a 24 karat exhibition of baseball.



BOB SMITH.

Not a little of the distress was occasioned by Danny Taylor, who started in right field but finished on the bench. Danny went completely loco under a shower of base hits in the sixth and his performance let the Pirates steal the lead from Bob Smith. Danny was yanked before the inning closed and the Cubs stepped out with a five run seventh round rally which proved enough to tide Smith over the finish line. Without Taylor's regrettable antics Smith could have won in a romp.

Listen to Those Hits!

For the first time in several days the Chicagoans rolled up enough hits to squash the argument that they are not adept at using their bats. They showed no favoritism against the three pitchers who faced them. It took them a long time to start, their only productive efforts in four innings being one of those rare inside the park homers of which Stanley Hack was the author. It wasn't long after that before extra base drives and singles began to whistle around the premises, the climax coming when four singles, a double, a pass, and an error clinched the argument at the expense of Bill Swift and Glen Spencer in the seventh.

The homer by Hack must have been a signal for the other Cubs youngsters to step out and do things. Billy Herman wasn't satisfied with anything less than three singles and a two bagger. Bill Jurges figured in two scoring episodes with a triple and double. And Marvin Gudat, who went to the assistance of the floundering Taylor, made himself valuable by driving in three runs on a single and long fly.

Just so the youngsters couldn't claim all the credit, Grimm contributed a pair of hits and Smith singled twice to score three teammates. Each team, incidentally, collected 13 hits.

Hack Gives Waners Some Work.

Until Hack's homer in the third started the run getting the Cubs had perpetrated nothing of a startling nature against Swift. Herman singled to center with one gone in the opening inning and that was all the hitting until Hack burst into the home run club. The drive, coming with two out in the third, sailed to the fence in right center and the Waner boys went in pursuit. One of them picked up the ball and threw it to another fellow, who relayed it to the plate, but the speedy Hack was there ahead of the ball.

Smith probably felt that he got away lucky when the Pirates scored only one run against him in the fourth. That is all they could collect after enjoying a full house with none out. Paul Waner led off with a drive which bounced off Stephenson's shirt front for a double. Piet walked and Traynor filled the bases with a single which Dan Taylor almost caught. An infield fly ended Suhr. Dugas bounced out to Grimm, and this gave the senior Waner a chance to run home. Vaughan flied to Taylor.

Smith Drives In Jurges.

Both factions made threatening gestures in the fifth. The Pirates got nothing, whereas the Cubs grabbed a run. A single by Lloyd Waner and a

BLUE DAY MAKES IT GOOD DAY FOR AURORA BACKERS

BY CHARLES BARTLETT.

Jimmy McCoy, who made glasses the vogue among jockeys a few years ago and thereby earned himself the name of Goggles, yesterday was in a fair way of having another handsome day for himself at the Aurora race meeting until the Ladies' day purse, the fifth and best event on the program, came along.

Goggles, whose horsemanship is quite unorthodox, proved that he can still boot 'em home his own way by winning the third and fourth races, after having taken three on Monday. Then came the Ladies' day purse, and with it a horse called Blue Day and Gene King, a young rider from California. Goggles' mount was Gold Step, a perennial favorite with Aurora betters, and by the time they went to the post, the crowd of nearly 6,000 had made Gold Step and his bespectacled rider a 9 to 10 choice.

Blue Day Wins Rail.

Outbound dashed into the lead early and clung to it until the field neared the top of the stretch. Then it was that McCoy and King put on the little argument which wound up with Goggles outridden and Blue Day the winner. The wily McCoy tried to deceive King at the stretch turn, but the boy from the coast wouldn't be fooled, and by the time they straightened out for the dash home, King had Blue Day hugging the rail, and Goggles was right along side of him, giving Gold Step a smart spanking with his bat.

It looked as though he would get down in front, but King kept Blue Day's nose in front to the wire. He paid $11.20 to win in the $2 mutuels, while Gold Step was at $2.96 to place. Old Martie Flynn came up in the stretch to take the show money.

King's victory was his first in some time, since he was put out of action by an injury in the recent meeting at Tanforan. He was developed by the rotund Charley Irwin and is now under contract to J. D. Mikel.

Eight Twenty Pays $17.54.

McCoy put on a rousing ride to win the fourth with the Superior stable's Eight Twenty. He caught Dollar Princess in the stretch, and they came down the line head and head until it appeared that they might finish that way. Goggles went to work on Eight Twenty, however, and his mount's nose was in front just enough when they crossed the finish line. Eight Twenty paid $17.54, while Dollar Princess' place price was $5.86. Chief's Challenger, which ran third, paid $5.90.

Dusky Dame and Bag o' Gold were the victors in the Daily Double bracket, the former winning the second race, while McCoy brought Bag o' Gold, overlooked in the betting, home in the third event. Dusky Dame was the choice in the second and paid $6.44, while Bag o' Gold returned $29.98, so that the Daily Double players who had chosen the pair received $88.82 for $2. Forty-two betters held tickets on the combination.

McCoy rode Essential into the show money in the first, but was out of it with Ogee in the second. Then he came back with a great ride on Bag o' Gold in the third, overtaking Jargon, the early pacemaker, in the last sixteenth, and winning by a neck. Jargon took the place from Anne L.

On Tap Ends Ha Ha's Long Victory String

New York, May 3.—[Special.]—On Tap, carrying the colors of William N. Adrian, her new owner, snapped the winning streak of Ha Ha when the On Watch mare scored a length triumph in the six furlongs featured Olympic claiming stakes at Jamaica today. Ha Ha, the odds choice, was second, a length in advance of Judge Schilling.

Jockey Mills had the Adrian colorbearer off in front at the rise of the barrier, quickly followed by Ha Ha. Judge Schilling and Dark Seeker brought up the rear. On the turn into the home lane On Tap was showing the way by a length and, with both boys whipping, the mare held on well in the stretch drive to earn $2,400 by her brilliant victory.

Ha Ha, ridden by Apprentice Knapp, had to be extended to the limit to withstand the last minute rush of Judge Schilling to save the place. The winner closed at 3 to 1 and stepped the three-quarter mile distance in 1:12 flat.

Clipper Ship, making his first start under silks, carried the Greentree stable's colors to a hard earned victory over Ipral in the five furlongs of the fifth event.

Veteran Relieves Seibold; Lee Hits Home Run.

Philadelphia, Pa., May 3.—[Special.]—Old Tom Zachary starred in a relief role today as the league leading Boston Braves upset the Phillies, 9 to 4.

Zachary was rushed in after Socks Seibold had been driven to cover. Ray Benge, who started for the Phils, was no puzzle and his task was made more difficult by ragged support. Hal Lee hit his first home run of the year in the third inning. Score:

CARDS BLANK REDS, 9 TO 0.

St. Louis, Mo., May 3.—(AP)—The Cardinals' talkative hurler, Jerome Herman [Dizzy] Dean, who won 26 games last season for Houston, won his first game this year when he pitched St. Louis to a 9 to 0 victory over the Cincinnati Reds today.

Dean kept Cincinnati's eight hits well scattered.

BROWNS' 16 HITS END INDIANS' STREAK, 11 TO 8

Cleveland, O., May 3.—(AP)—The St. Louis Browns stole a trick or two of the Indians' stuff today and pounded the tribe into submission, 11 to 8, under a barrage of 16 base hits. The defeat halted Cleveland's winning streak at nine games. The Browns sent Hudlin to the showers in the sixth after collecting 10 hits off him, while the tribe in turn downed Walter Stewart. Cubs Pound 3 Pitchers, Beat Pirates, 8-6 pass to Brother Paul comprised the Pirate menace. Two were out at the time and Smith escaped unscratched when Moore took in Piet's fly. In the Cubs' half Jurges stepped up with two gone and whacked a triple over Lloyd Waner's head. Smith scored him with a single through short, after which Hack popped out.

The rumpus that put the Pirates ahead for a few minutes in the sixth and also caused Dan Taylor such untold grief didn't get under way until two were out. Dugas lined to right and Taylor, instead of playing it for a single, attempted a diving catch. That gave Dugas a triple. Vaughan hit a triple to right that gave Dan some more exercise, Dugas scoring. Brenzel lined in the same direction and this one bounced away from Danny for a double, Vaughan running home. This was where Gudat went to Danny's relief and the inning closed without further excitement.

Aha, a Run Parade.

Hartnett walked to start the seventh and the Cubs immediately went into action in a big way. Grimm singled to center, putting Gabby on third. Jurges doubled down the left field line, Gabby scoring and Grimm halting at third. Spencer went in to pitch and Smith welcomed him with a single through short, Grimm and Jurges scoring. Hack survived on an error by Vaughan and Herman beat out a bunt to fill the bases. Smith was forced at the plate on Moore's bounder, but Gudat bounced a single over Spencer to score Hack and Herman.

Two runs were gouged from Smith's comfortable lead in the home seventh. Lloyd Waner singled and so did Piet. The former scored on a hit by Piet. Brother Paul hiked to third on Traynor's fly to center, and home when Suhr was retired in the same way. The bases were filled when Dugas walked and Vaughan scratched a hit to Herman, but Gudat grabbed Brenzel's liner and the disturbance ceased. Then Barbee, batting for Spencer, reduced Smith's lead to one run by smacking a homer over the left field fence in the eighth.

The Cubs broke in with another run in the ninth off Brame. Herman set this in motion with a double to left, his fourth hit of the afternoon. A passed ball put him on third. Moore fanned, but Gudat was good for a long fly to right and Herman scored after the catch.

Warneke to Go After His Fourth Victory Today

Pittsburgh, Pa., May 3.—[Special]—Lon Warneke, the sensational youngster who has already collected two wins over the Reds and one from the Cardinals this season, will have a chance to try his skill against the Pirates in the third and final of the Cubs' series here tomorrow. Southpaw Larry French will oppose him.

The Cubs will start for home tomorrow night and if the weather is suitable on Thursday they'll doll up in their giddy new uniforms so as to look prosperous before the famous Hack Wilson and other members of the Brooklyn ensemble.

Membership in the Cubs 1932 home run club is growing gradually. Hack's homer today was the seventh. The six others were hit by Moore, Malone, Richbourg, Grimm, Stephenson and Barton, who is now with the Reading team.

Hal Finney, young Pittsburgh catcher, will be lost to the Pirates for probably a month, physicians said today. Finney injured his throwing arm in the game with the Cubs yesterday when he stopped one of Pat Malone's fast ones with his elbow. X-ray photographs disclose a fracture that will require probably four weeks to mend.

The day was fairly comfortable but the attendance still was down in the 3,500 neighborhood. The local citizens haven't displayed much interest in the Pirates since the late Barney Dreyfuss aroused their enmity a couple of years ago.

Gudat's appearance today was his first in two weeks. He had been bothered by a muscular kink in his back. The eminent Doc Lotshaw reports the difficulty has been ironed out.

Grimm's single and double weren't all he should have had. He whacked two handsome flies to right and Paul Waner flagged both, one being a glove handed pluck off the right field wall. Both would have been homers in many parks.

Big Rainbow Trout Back in Circulation

BY BOB BECKER.

Hundreds of big rainbow trout that joined in the big parade from Lake Michigan up the Muskegon river in Michigan never will see the wide open spaces again, because the Michigan conservation department has netted these big fellows and lifted them over the dams and dropped them in open fishing waters.

This activity on the part of the conservation department represents a tip to fishermen who want a delightful river trip and trout fishing; don't overlook the rainbow trout of the Muskegon, and just for good measure, take your small mouth bass tackle with you.

The transfer of the rainbow trout started some time ago. One of the boys who manned a net at the Newaygo dam wrote us how the state was lifting the big trout from the stream so that they could be gedunked in the Muskegon above the dam, there to live the rest of their lives or until some fly fishermen come along and capture them.

Resembles Salmon Run.

Recently the march of rainbows up the Muskegon has taken on the appearance of a northern salmon run. It has been possible to stand on the banks of the stream and see the big fish [accompanied by wall-eyes lying in the stream. As a rule both rainbows and wall-eyes stage their spawning runs and then move back into Lake Michigan. This spring many of the big fellows are loafing in the deep pools of the stream before returning to big water.

During the last few weeks upwards of 3,900 good sized fish have been lifted over the Muskegon river dams and placed in the river above them. The largest weighed close to 22 pounds. This whopper is in the stream waiting for somebody to come along and fool him with a lure. In view of this excellent stocking of the Muskegon fishermen ought to be able to get in some fine days with rainbow trout this summer. Last season we know of three rainbows taken at the foot of Bigelow creek which weighed 39 pounds.

Here's Great Fishing Spot.

When THE TRIBUNE canoe cruise traveled down the Muskegon river a couple of summers ago we saw a wonderful stretch of fishing water from the Croton dam down stream to a few miles above Newaygo. This stretch can be recommended to any one who wants a combination float and fishing jaunt.

It offers both rainbow and small mouth bass fishing and is fly fishing water made to order. The stunt is to get a good river man and a flat boat for the trip. You need the man, as sometimes he has to hold the boat with a pipe pole in water that is running like a millrace, so that a certain pool or spot can be fished. The best time for a float would be after the opening of the bass season in June.

BUCKEYE WITH MILLS.

Gob Buckeye probably will pitch for the Chicago Mills of the Wisconsin-Illinois Semi-Pro league when they meet the House of David in the first of a two game series at Mills Stadium, Lake street and Kilpatrick avenue, Sunday afternoon.

Need One Man Track Team? Just Send for John Brooks

BY WILFRID SMITH.

[This is the thirteenth of a series of sketches of university track and field stars in the central west.]

When John Brooks, Negro athlete now in his first year of competition at the University of Chicago, broad jumped 24 feet 8¾ inches at the Drake relays last week, he served notice he would be on hand this summer when the trials for the United States Olympic team are held. Brooks also proved by winning the Drake championship that he will be out in front in the Western conference outdoor meet this month.

JOHN BROOKS.

The broad jump is Brooks' best event at this time. But he is almost a track team by himself except when confronted by class A stars in other events.

Brooks' winning jump at Drake also established a record for the 23 years of competition, a record that Ed Gordon, former Iowa star, could not break. Prior to the Drake relays Brooks won the National A. A. U. junior meet last summer, jumping 24 feet 8¾ inches. His mark was better than the winning jump in the senior A. A. U. meet.

Scores One-Third of Points.

This season Brooks has been the mainstay of the Maroon track team. He has accounted for nearly one-third of all the points Chicago has scored in dual meets and this despite the fact that the broad jump and 220 yard low hurdles, his best events, were not included in indoor competition.

In the Armour relay carnival last winter Brooks was timed in 7 6-10 seconds for the 70 yard hurdles. Against Michigan State Normal in an outdoor meet, April 23, Brooks ran the low hurdles in 23 5-10 seconds, indicating he will place in the Big Ten meet. Brooks' best times for the sprints have been 100 yards in 9 9-10 seconds; 220 yards in 22 seconds, and 440 yards in 52 seconds.

Attended Hyde Park.

Brooks attended Hyde Park High school. He also has competed for Chase park of the South Parks system. It is a coincidence that he graduated from Hyde Park the same year that Ralph Metcalfe, Marquette university's Negro star, graduated from Tilden, another of Chicago's south side high schools.

Brooks is 21 years of age. He weighs 142 pounds and is 5 feet 8½ inches tall. He resides at 5212 South Park. Young Brooks is above the average in his university studies and is particularly interested in political science. He expects to teach after receiving his degree.

Already Brooks is being compared to Binga Dismond, Chicago's greatest Negro athlete, who for years shared the world record for the quarter mile. Coach Ned Merriam of Chicago predicts Brooks will clear 25 feet in the broad jump this year. With two more years of competition at Chicago he should be well on the way to threaten the world record of 26 feet 2 inches.

Tilden Tech and Lindblom Meet Today

Baseball teams in the Chicago Public High School league are entering the stretch in the sectional races which will end a week from today. Seven games are scheduled in the four divisions today, the most important contest involving Tilden Tech and Lindblom at Fuller park.

Tilden and Lindblom are two of the five unbeaten teams in the league. They have met before, but no decision was reached, when the game was called off in the fourth inning because of an unruly crowd which surged on the field.

Bowe.. Meets Fenger.

Another undefeated squad, Bowen, leader in the south division and one of the strongest teams expected to compete in the semi-finals, will seek its sixth consecutive victory when it meets Fenger at West Pullman park. Fenger has lost only one of the four games in the first half of the schedule.

Two other sectional leaders—Lane Tech in the north, and Harrison in the west—are not scheduled today. Lane will seek its fifth victory of the season against Senn at Logan Square park Saturday, while Harrison meets McKinley next Monday.

Morton Defeats Oak Park.

Morton, last year's Suburban league champion, scored its third straight league triumph yesterday by defeating Oak Park, 3 to 0, at Cicero. Haiz, star Morton hurler, held Oak Park to only two hits. Score.

PURDUE ENTERS FOUR IN LEGION BOXING TOURNEY

Apple, Heavyweight, Leads Strong Team.

The first entrants in the intercollegiate amateur boxing championships, sponsored by the American Legion, will arrive tomorrow. They will work out at Loyola university gymnasium in preparation for the bouts Friday night at the Chicago Stadium. Titles in eight weight divisions will be determined Friday and Saturday.

Seven Big Ten universities have entered boxing squads. In addition there are Creighton, Armour Tech of Chicago, and Loyola university.

Purdue Enters Four.

Purdue will have four entries. And these boys undoubtedly form one of the most colorful units if not the most dangerous. Topping the list is Elmer Apple, a heavyweight, who holds the distinction of knocking out the university champion, although in so doing he eliminated himself from competition. It happened in this manner:

Apple met Dick Sandefur in the all-university boxing tournament. In the first round Apple swung, one of those King Levinsky swings, and connected. Down and out went Mr. Sandefur, but Apple himself was hauled away to the infirmary with a broken hand. Sandefur was revived and went on through the tournament to win the title. Apple reports his hand is healed and he's seeking the intercollegiate title.

Hawaiian on Team.

Jackie Fields, welterweight champion, will leave Chicago today for Louisville, Ky., where he boxes Henry Firpo in a non-title ten round encounter Friday night. Fields sparred nine rounds yesterday at the Arcade gymnasium. He boxed two rounds with Tom Petros, middleweight; three rounds with Roy Williams, light heavyweight, and two rounds each against Sammy Levine and Joey Palazzola, featherweights.

Henry Lenard, South Chicago featherweight, will seek his third straight victory when he fights Johnny Ryan of Milwaukee in an eight round bout at White City Monday. If Lenard is successful against Ryan, he will attempt to obtain matches with leaders of his class. Pete Wistort and Les Marriner, who meet in the ten round windup at White City, each boxed four rounds yesterday. Wistort sparred two rounds each with Paul Pantaleo and Jack Robinson. Marriner boxed with Freddy Jones and Joe Merar.

Tommy Paul and Johnny Pena are reported to be matched for the National Boxing association featherweight title at Detroit May 23 . . . James J. Braddock will replace Tom Heeney against Charley Retzlaff at Boston May 13 . . . King Tut and Micky O'Neil have been matched for a ten round combat at Green Bay, Wis., May 19 . . . Jack Moran yesterday had five stitches removed from a face cut, acquired against Sammy Slaughter, at the Chicago Stadium last week.

Sammy Mandell, former lightweight titleholder, is scheduled to arrive in the loop from Daytona Beach, Fla., tomorrow . . . John Duffy today will seek a sanction to stage shows at Shewridge field every Thursday night during the outdoor season, starting May 19 . . . Kid Leonard has signed to battle Millio Milliti, Omaha middleweight, at Davenport, Ia., May 19.

FINISH FIGHT FOR DRY LAWS VOTED BY METHODISTS

Told Prohibition Faces Serious Crisis.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Atlantic City, N. J., May 3.—[Special.]—American Methodism definitely set itself yesterday for a last stand against the near victorious hosts of rum. The 31st session of the quadrennial general conference of the Methodist Episcopal church after opening in a dull fashion Monday came to life today when Bishop William F. Anderson of the Boston area inveighed against recent wet gains. He delivered an official message known as the address of the college of bishops.

BISHOP W. F. ANDERSON.

This address is regarded the keynote of the conference. The message, 60 pages in length, was unanimously adopted by the conference as the Methodist platform. Among many other matters the address dealt at length with the necessity of economic and industrial organization.

Says Prohibition at Crisis.

After admitting an impending prohibition crisis which he described as "the most serious in our work for a sober world," Bishop Anderson declared that the wets "have lost their legal strongholds and have lost control of the federal government," and have "now turned to state rights."

To the suggestion of state control Bishop Anderson turned with sarcasm. "Leave it to the 'sidewalks of New York' and the slums of Chicago," he said. This was signal for prolonged applause.

When he trained his rhetoric on the "conscienceless and vast propaganda" of the wet metropolitan press, which, said Bishop Anderson, "with rare exceptions has written one of the most shameless chapters in the history of the republic," the entire conference rose to its feet in approval.

Other effective wet propagandists were cited as a "small but understanding group of rich men who are seeking the repeal of the 18th amendment in order "to shift the burden of taxation from their own shoulders to the backs of the poor."

Saves Dry Lobby.

The address is said to have completely smothered the rumblings of opposition, especially among the lay members of the church, to the Methodist board of temperance, prohibition and public morals, at Washington.

LITTLE ORPHAN ANNIE: This and That

GEN. JO LANE STERN, CIVIL WAR AID OF LEE, PASSES AWAY AT 83

Richmond, Va., May 3.—(AP)—Gen. Jo Lane Stern, confederate veteran, lawyer and former adjutant general of Virginia, died early today at his home here.

He was 83 years old and had been seriously ill for four weeks, following several months of failing health.

Gen. Stern, long prominent in the social life of Richmond, was one of the best known confederate veterans in Virginia. Entering the southern army in his early teens, he was first a telegrapher and later was attached to the headquarters of Gen. Robert E. Lee.

Subsequently he studied law at Washington and Lee university (then Washington college) under Gen. Lee's presidency, and was one of the few students who could boast of having been allowed to ride Traveler, the confederate chieftain's favorite mount.

Starting the practice of law in 1871 Gen. Stern was actively connected at the same time with the military forces of Virginia, holding several state offices, including that of adjutant general, which he held until 1922.

He was identified with a number of social clubs and at one time held the office of knight commander of the Kappa Alpha (southern) fraternity, of which he was one of the earliest members.

YANK, DEPRIVED OF HIS WAGES BY SOVIETS, DIES

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BERLIN, May 3. — A penniless American died in Berlin this week, the victim of efforts to secure pay for a job he did for the soviets. He was George Castleman Breckenridge, a relative of the former assistant secretary of state, Breckenridge Long. His widow and three children live in Glendale, Cal.

Breckenridge accepted an engineer's job in Russia. The soviets were to pay him in kind, in Russian currency and in American dollars to enable him to support his family and have money when he left Russia. The Russians suddenly stopped paying foreign currency to their engineers. Breckenridge attempted to secure his money in Moscow until his funds were gone. On the verge of starvation, he contracted pneumonia and managed to reach Berlin where he died of pneumonia and pleurisy.

Body of Matthiesen, Store Executive, Brought Home

The body of Walter Matthiesen, vice president and director of the National Tea company, who died Sunday at his summer home in Eagle River, Wis., following a stroke, was returned to Chicago yesterday, but funeral arrangements have not been completed. Mr. Matthiesen was 56 years old and resided at 824 Castlewood terrace. He is survived by a sister, Katherine, who lives in Skive, Denmark.

SENATE GROUP EASES PROPOSED TAX ON STOCKS

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., May 3.—[Special.]—Continuing its consideration of the new billion dollar tax bill today, the senate finance committee balanced the interests of living buyers and sellers of stocks against the interests of the heirs of wealthy decedents and decided in favor of the former.

It struck out the one-fourth of 1 per cent minimum from the tax or stock transactions as carried in the house bill and made the tax a flat 4 cents a share. By its action the committee eliminated an estimated 42 millions of revenue.

Put Millions Back in Bill.

Then it put into the bill virtually the same amount by taking out the house provision giving the executors of persons who died between Sept. 1, 1928, and Jan. 1, 1932, the privilege of computing the value of the estate as of a date eighteen months after the decedent's death. The house had placed that provision in the bill upon the strength of evidence showing that the estates of persons who died during the boom period had depreciated to a point where a tax levied on value at time of death sometimes wiped out the whole estate.

The committee took up the postal increases in the house bill, heard Postmaster General Brown testify, and not only approved the proposed increase of from 2 to 3 cents on first class mail, including local matter, but voted to raise the second class rates, applying to newspapers and periodicals, approximately to the 1921 level.

Increase in Postal Rates.

Under the 1921 rate second class reading matter would pay 1½ cents per pound, while advertising matter would pay as follows: 1st and 2d zones, 2 cents; 3d zone, 3 cents; 4th zone, 5 cents; 5th zone, 6 cents; 6th zone, 7 cents; 7th zone, 9 cents, and 8th zone, 10 cents.

According to postoffice figures an additional 134 millions is expected from the 3 cent first class rate, and an additional 5 millions from the higher second class rate.

The committee revised the proposed taxes on telegrams, fixing flat rate of 5 per cent, and on radios and cables fixing a rate of 10 cents per message.

The tax on chewing gum was cut from 5 per cent to 3 per cent, and that on carbonated water to 2 cents per gallon.

DRY DRINKS TOO MUCH 'EVIDENCE'; AROUSES JUDGE

A dry sleuth who purchased fourteen drinks of liquor at 50 cents a drink to obtain evidence against a druggist was reprimanded yesterday by Federal Judge George A. Carpenter and urged to be more economical. The agent is Charles J. Wallett.

He testified that he and three acquaintances, only one of whom he knew by name, entered the pharmacy of Morris Cannon, 20 South Canal street, and had three drinks each at 50 cents a drink. Then, Wallett testified, he treated a fourth man to two drinks. Judge Carpenter frowned, fined Druggist Cannon $200 and sentenced him to 60 days in jail. Then he turned to Agent Wallett.

"In these days of depression when the government is trying to cut expenses, you should economize," he reprimanded. "Get your evidence more cheaply. One drink will do as well as fourteen."

FARM BOARD TO BEGIN SELLING COTTON HOLDINGS

Washington, D. C., May 3.—[U. P.]—The federal farm board in August will begin to sell the stabilization cotton it has held since September, 1930.

The board announced that it would authorize the Cotton Stabilization corporation — its holding subsidiary — to sell "not to exceed" 650,000 bales during the year beginning Aug. 1. The liquidation will be gradual.

The maximum amount to be sold represents about one-fifth of all stabilization cotton. The government itself owns 1,310,000 bales. Through loans it has enabled the cotton coöperatives to hold 2,100,000 bales more.

AKRON'S BROOD OF PLANES TESTS AERIAL HANGAR

Leave "Nest" and Return Fifteen Times.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Lakehurst, N. J., May 3.—[Special.]—Two tiny "spider" planes buzzed about the giant dirigible Akron at noon today as the great airship soared lazily along the Atlantic coast. The world's largest lighter than air craft was trying out her mended ribs in anticipation of her flight to California on May 7 and at the same time giving the first of her brood of fighting "spiders" their initial trapeze exercises.

Spectators on the ground 3,000 feet below saw the tiny planes dive under their mother ship like minnows under a whale, hang mysteriously suspended as if by magic for minutes, and then vanish into the belly of the gigantic silver bag.

Plane's First Dirigible Ride.

Today's tests marked the first time an airplane had ever been carried aloft inside a dirigible, launched and picked up in midair. Soon five of these machine gun equipped midgets will nest in the interior of the Akron, ready to drop out and speed away at 180 miles an hour on a fighting or scouting mission. Previously airplanes have been able to hook on to the dirigible Los Angeles, deliver messages, and drop away, but no plane has ever before been able to call the maw of a dirigible home.

The "spider" ships were flown by Lieuts. D. W. Harrigan and H. L. Young, naval pilots. Fifteen hookons and fifteen takeoffs were made without a bobble at altitudes of 3,000 and 4,000 feet while speeding along at 50 knots.

Planes Weigh 3,000 Pounds.

A Curtiss midget plane, only 14 feet long, built especially for the Akron, and powered with a supercharged Wright Whirlwind motor of 420 horsepower, slid down a monorail inside the Akron to the very bottom of the ship with the pilot in its single seat. The plane weighed less than 3,000 pounds.

Mechanics quickly hooked the top of the plane onto a retraceable trapezelike bar, two doors swung open in the Akron's belly, and the plane was lowered 14 feet beneath the airship. The pilot opened his throttle, pulled a release lever, and dived away. It was said the planes could be launched, one every three minutes, and drawn into the ship almost as rapidly.

Checked by Inspectors.

While the Akron and her fighting planes were being put through their tests members of the naval board of inspection and survey checked on her movements and officials of the Goodyear Zeppelin corporation which built the ship watched pridefully.

The hookons were made with apparent ease, the airship and plane throttling down to approximately the same speed, while the pilot eased up under the Akron until the hooks engaged the trapeze bar.

The Akron's fighting planes are the smallest in either the navy or army air services. Everything about them is compact and space saving. The plane's wingspread is about 25 feet.

Do you know that a "run-down" condition—headaches—loss of energy—incapacity to work—may indicate a seriously clogged condition of your intestines?

Constipation is serious. But it can be corrected! As the famous Dr. Bochetti, of Rome, Italy, says:—

"Fresh yeast, I consider, is the most adequate treatment for constipation . . . It gives back tone to the intestinal muscles . . . Its effect is tonic, stimulating, corrective.

"By all means," he adds, "try it, if you are . . . run-down."

Fleischmann's Yeast acts two ways. It softens the accumulated food wastes and actually strengthens the intestines so they can function normally. Gradually normal bowel movements are restored. Relief!

The whole system responds. Headaches and tiredness disappear. And in their place . . . vitality, "pep"!

Fleischmann's Yeast is a food. It is exceptionally rich in three vitamins—B, G and D.

You simply add it to your ordinary diet—3 cakes every day—and eat it long enough to get real results. You can get Fleischmann's Yeast at grocers, restaurants, and soda fountains, and directions are on the label. Start today.

MRS. M. L. STORER OF DEAR MARIA LETTERS IS DEAD

Cincinnati, O., May 3.—[Special.]—Mrs. Maria Longworth Storer, 83, founder of Rookwood Pottery and aunt of the late Nicholas Longworth, speaker of the house of representatives, died at her home in Paris on Saturday. Mrs. Storer had made her home with her daughter, Margaret, wife of the Comte de Chambrun, in Paris since the death of her husband, Bellamy Storer, ten years ago. Burial will be in Cincinnati.

To the public Mrs. Storer probably is best remembered as the "Dear Maria" of President Roosevelt's letters in the famous Storer controversy concerning the President's removal in 1906 of her husband, Bellamy Storer, as ambassador to Austria. The President acted on the ground that he had misused his office by seeking to influence the pope to designate Archbishop Ireland of St. Paul a cardinal.

Both Mr. and Mrs. Storer had been converted to the Catholic church by the archbishop. They insisted that their efforts in his behalf had been privately encouraged, but Mr. Roosevelt emphatically denied this statement.

CREDIT SCHEME FACES SENATE DOOM OR VETO

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., May 3.—A drive to kill the Goldsborough currency inflation bill in the senate was begun by administration forces today following the overwhelming approval given that measure yesterday in the house. Should this opposition move fail a White House veto looms, officials close to the President said tonight.

While officials in close touch with the government's financial policy declined to discuss the measure for publication it was learned that members of congress have been informed by the President's financial advisers that the administration is unalterably opposed to the bill, because of the belief it would cause a new wave of fear to sweep the country at a time when a return of business confidence is considered the country's greatest need.

Believe Tasks Impossible.

Administration spokesmen also have made it known that they consider that the bill assigns to the treasury and the federal reserve board tasks impossible of fulfillment. In this connection it was made clear that the government had reference to provisions in the bill which direct the treasury and the reserve board to raise the present commodity prices to approximately the 1926 average and stabilize them at that level. No human agency can stabilize commodity prices at fixed levels, it was said.

"Section 31. It is hereby declared to be the policy of the United States that the average purchasing power of the dollar as ascertained by the department of labor in the wholesale commodity markets for the period covering the years 1921 to 1929 shall be restored and maintained by the control of the volume of credit and currency.

"Section 2. The federal reserve board and the federal reserve banks and the secretary of the treasury are hereby charged with the duty of making effective this policy."

While the treasury and the reserve board would be given wide latitude in carrying out the provisions of the bill, its sponsors assumed that the board would expand its open market operations and purchase government securities at an even greater rate than has characterized its purchases during the last eight weeks, when more than $300,000,000 have been expended for this purpose.

Sponsors of the bill asserted today that the federal reserve board, in attempting to expand credit and ease the money situation by open market operations, was doing on a limited scale what the bill directs it to do in a more vigorous way. On its face the purpose of the measure is to boost prices and deflate the 1932 dollar.

Cite Foreign Reactions.

In pointing out the dangers inherent in the bill to members of congress, administration spokesmen called attention to the drop in value of the dollar on the foreign exchanges today as word was circulated abroad that the house had approved the Goldsborough bill. One member of the federal reserve board asserted this disclosed the danger that lurked in the measure due to the fact that its approval might be interpreted abroad as an intention on the part of this country to embark on a ruinous inflation policy. Currency for such a report, it was said, might cause new withdrawals of foreign deposits as well as a fresh epidemic of hoarding in this country.

In the main, however, administration officials attacked the bill as one which directed the treasury and the federal reserve board to perform the impossible task of boosting and stabilizing prices.

In this connection attention was called to a recent statement by Eugene Meyer, governor of the federal reserve board, to the effect that the bill contemplated as he read it "that a small group of men must always be responsible for remedying conditions which thus far no one in the world has ever been able to do."

Advocates Boost for Bill.

While congressional and administration opponents of the bill continued today to attack it as a wild inflationist scheme, its advocates surged ahead at full steam in an attempt to drive the bill through the senate before the talked of June 12 adjournment. In some quarters the view was expressed that the movement was gaining strength.

Administration leaders are counting, it was learned tonight, on the opposition of Senator Carter Glass [Dem., Va.], former secretary of the treasury, for the needed support to defeat the bill or at least to develop such strength it cannot be passed over a White House veto.

To get a first hand idea of what officials of the administration think of the Goldsborough bill it is necessary to examine the records of testimony given by Eugene Meyer, governor of the federal reserve board, and George L. Harrison, governor of the Federal Reserve bank of New York, before the house banking and currency committee. Attacks on the bill made by members of the house throw light on the possibilities of this legislation.

Both Mr. Meyer and Mr. Harrison told the committee that they did not believe that announcement by the government of a definite program of restoring the price level of 1926 would be wise. Both said, however, that they believed it to be the function of the federal reserve system to do what it can in the way of stimulating credit and prices. The board, they

EUROPE SELLING DOLLARS IN FEAR U. S. WILL INFLATE

New York, May 3.—(AP)—Foreign money markets, which have shown evidences of nervous chills whenever the suggestion of possible inflation of American currency is mentioned, today began selling dollars and putting their dollar balances into other currencies.

Foreign exchange authorities stated that the movement, which was widespread, began in Europe and later extended to the American markets. They said the shifting of international funds from America to foreign centers was the distinct reaction of the world to the passage of the Goldsborough bill by the house of representatives, directing the federal reserve to restore commodity prices to the level of about 1926 by manipulation of currency and credit. While assurances were cabled to foreign centers that no unbridled currency inflation plan was contemplated, selling of the dollar continued. Some of the selling was regarded as speculative.

The American dollar wobbled in France, Belgium, Switzerland, and Holland. As a result the currencies of all those nations were quoted above the gold export point—or that price at which it is cheaper to ship gold from New York in payment of foreign obligations than to buy the currencies of those nations with American money.

The currencies of Belgium and Holland went to new high prices for the year. The Dutch guilder, a gold currency, was conspicuously strong and exchange dealers reported heavy shifting of balances to Holland. The guilder closed at 40.58 cents for cable transfer.

Other foreign currencies which are well cemented to a gold standard showed strength at the cost of the dollar. Belgian francs advanced .03 of a cent to 14.05 cents. French francs were up 7-16 point to 3.94¾ cents, reversing the franc's recent down trend and again putting it above the gold point. Swiss francs also joined the upward procession.

Only in London did the dollar appear to have steadfast friends who declined to harbor thoughts of inflation. The dollar and the pound sterling closed the day at prices unchanged from the previous close. Sterling was still quoted at $3.66½ for cable transfers. Private banking advices indicated that the British government, which recently created a large stabilization fund for sterling, had been liberal sellers of sterling throughout the day.

In Mexico and in South America, alike, the native currencies did well in transactions involving the dollar. But a break in the long list of gains against the dollar was reported from the far east. The Chinese tael fell to a new 1932 low, with cable prices quoted at 30¼ cents.

Bankers did not attach great importance to the chilliness which ran through the world markets, but emphasized that it showed how many nations, particularly Eropean, shy at the suggestion of possible inflation. Their own past difficulties with inflated currencies, one authority said, had given their nationals much the same reactions that a child with burned fingers gets when he looks into a fire.

QUIZ REVEALS KREUGER'S EASY PATH TO CASH

Yankees Put Faith in His Claims.

New York, May 3.—First testimony here on the collapse of the $1,000,000,000 match empire established by Ivar Kreuger before his suicide in Paris revealed today that Lee, Higginson & Co., who handled the American financing, did so without ever seeing the papers creating the foreign concessions Krueger claimed as assets.

Further revelations, made as the affairs of the International Match corporation came before Oscar W. Ehrhorn, federal referee in bankruptcy, were that one of the alleged concessions—that in Spain—is now understood to be nonexistent and that, except in the case of Turkey, the Irving Trust company, receiver, has been unable to obtain any evidence of the others.

Believed in Krueger.

Directors of the Lee, Higginson firm largely took Krueger's word for his holdings, and accepted auditors' statements on the financial condition of his companies, said F. W. Allen, a Lee, Higginson director and president of the International company since Krueger's death. This method was followed because of implicit confidence in the integrity of the Swedish match monopolist, Mr. Allen said. Donald Durant, a Lee, Higginson partner and also a director of the International Match corporation, gave similar testimony.

Both men were questioned by James A. Rosenberg of counsel for the receiver. The hearings may continue for several weeks. Prominent financiers, including Percy A. Rockefeller, who were International directors, may be called later as witnesses.

Auditors' Report Awaited.

The results of an exhaustive investigation of the International corporation's finances, made by the accounting firm of Klein, Hainds & Finke for the Irving Trust company, are yet to be presented as evidence, today's examination having been confined principally to two specific subjects, the attempts to obtain a German monopoly and Krueger's relations with his New York brokers.

Mr. Allen testified that he had met the Swedish industrialist when he visited this country in 1922, and had been greatly impressed by him. A few weeks later Kreuger became acquainted in London with a partner of Higginson & Co. of that city, a firm affiliated with Lee, Higginson & Co., and the London concern subsequently floated an issue of Swedish Match company stock. This issue brought Lee, Higginson & Co. into closer contact with the Kreuger interests, and in the following year Kreuger asked the New York firm to undertake American financing for the International Match corporation.

It's Holding Company.

The International corporation had been formed primarily as a holding company, Mr. Allen testified, the subsidiary companies being other Kreuger interests.

At this point Mr. Rosenberg brought out that foreign concessions formed an integral part of the Kreuger assets and asked if Mr. Allen had

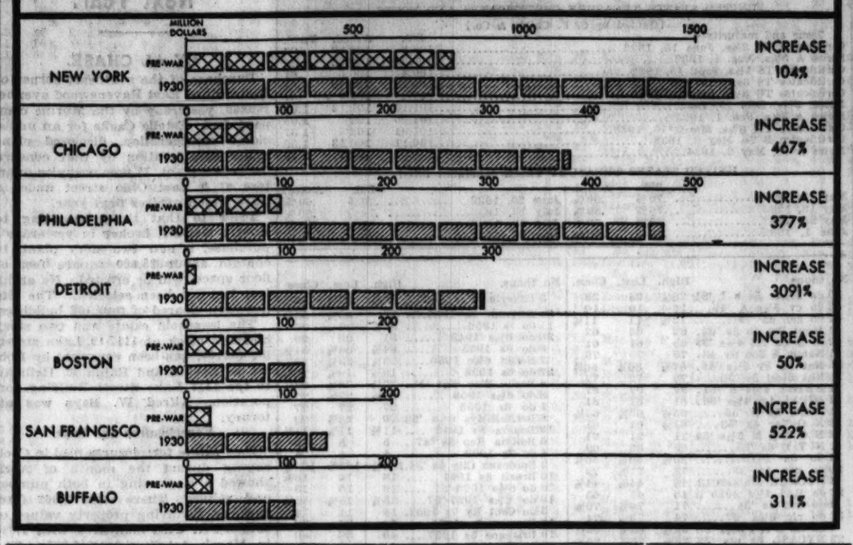
How Big City Borrowing Has Increased Since the War



Martin Insull, Middle West Chief, Retires

BY THOMAS FURLONG.

The resignation of Martin J. Insull as president of the Middle West Utilities company and Charles A. McCulloch as chairman of the John R. Thompson company were announced simultaneously yesterday.

Mr. McCulloch is co-receiver of Middle West Utilities. His resignation from the restaurant company, he stated, was to enable him to devote more of his time to working out the affairs of the Insull holding company. At the special meeting of directors called to accept Mr. McCulloch's resignation, Earl F. Swain, general manager of Thompson, was elected to the post of executive vice president.

Retirement Expected.

The retirement of Mr. Insull from the post of president of the Middle West system had been expected in financial circles. He relinquished active direction of the company several months ago, because of illness. For several weeks prior to the receivership the affairs of the company had been in direct charge of Samuel Insull and Samuel Insull Jr. Under receivership the company is being managed by Mr. McCulloch, Edward N. Hurley, and Samuel Insull.

Martin Insull is the younger brother of Samuel Insull. He became senior vice president of Middle West in 1912 and succeeded to the presidency in 1924. He is 62 years old.

Judge Walter C. Lindley of the federal district court, who appointed the receivers for Middle West, yesterday continued until June 7 the hearing on a stockholders' motion for leave to intervene in the equity receivership proceedings.

TO SELL PLEDGES

The initial step in foreclosing on securities of various Insull companies pledged by Insull Utility Investments and the Corporation Securities company was taken yesterday by four New York banks which are members of the Chicago-New York banking group that made the principal loans to the two big Insull investment trusts.

The Chase National bank, Guaranty Trust company, Commercial National Bank and Trust company, and the Central Hanover Bank and Trust company announced that they will offer at auction tomorrow for a minimum bid of $10,325,000 substantial blocks of stocks of the Commonwealth Edison company, Peoples Gas Light and Coke company, and Public Service Company of Northern Illinois. The banks hold 77,516 shares of Peoples Gas, 50,981 shares of Commonwealth Edison, and 24,554 common shares of Public Service.

It is assumed that the banks will bid in the shares on their own behalf, as minimum prices set range from $68.25 to $70.40 for Commonwealth Edison, $67.25 to $68.02 for Peoples Gas, and $54.50 to $55.06 for Public Service. It is regarded unlikely that these prices could be secured in public bidding or through selling in the regular markets.

Chicago Bankers Explain.

Chicago bankers for the Insull trusts explained that the auction sale by the New York banks was merely a legal means of securing ownership of the stocks held as collateral for demand loans, which have been in default since the Insull trusts went into receiverships. However, the Chicago banks believe either an auction or a private sale is legal; therefore they can foreclose on collateral held by them through either method. Altogether the two Insull trusts have pledged with the New York and Chicago banks a total of 242,449 shares of Commonwealth Edison, 155,755 shares of Peoples Gas and 57,987 common shares of Public Service.

FIND HOPEFUL TRADE FACTORS IN CLEVELAND

Cleveland, May 3.—(AP)—Financial conditions, coal production and shoe factories provided the most favorable business spots in the fourth federal reserve district last month, the Cleveland Federal Reserve bank reported today. Indexes of industry and trade in general declined to lower levels in March and early April, however, the bank said.

The decline in bank deposits was at a much lower rate than in many preceding months and bank suspensions were few, the reserve survey found. Many industries of the district suffered in March and April from the delayed introduction of new automobile models, with the result that employment indexes worked downward.

U. S. TREASURY FACES $2,334,105,142 DEFICIT; INCOME TAXES SLUMP

Washington, D. C., May 3.—(AP)—A deficit of $2,334,105,142 confronts the government at the conclusion of ten months of the 1932 fiscal year. The treasury statement on the condition of its finances at the end of April, made public today, showed it had collected from all sources $1,685,666,525 and had spent $4,019,771,677.

The chief cause of the decline in government collections, which for the same period last year amounted to $2,569,730,513, was caused by a slump in income tax. This form of the governments' income in the ten months of the present year amounted to $873,303,905 compared with $1,535,928,202 in the same period last year. Miscellaneous internal revenue fell off $50,000,000 to $420,738,151, while customs receipts declined nearly $30,000,000 to $292,375,894.

Meantime government expenditures were $663,000,000 greater than for the same period last year. The Reconstruction corporation to date has required $341,420,924, while the additional subscription to stocks of federal land banks has amounted to $74,243,740. General expenditures of government, which include the public works program, amounted to $2,125,159,919 as compared to $1,863,560,691 last year.

The public debt increased $90,000,000 in April, amounting to $18,596,695,430 at the end of the month. In the last year the gross debt has increased $1,941,000,000.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, May 3.—The stock market looked a little more dilapidated than usual, if anything, at the close of today's humdrum trading session. Issues in a slippery mood had slipped still further into the mire, some of them on net losses of as much as 3 or 4 points. The usual flock of new lows was registered.

Investment trust selling on a somewhat livelier scale was suggested by the marked declines in such issues as General Foods, J. C. Penney, National Dairy Products and others which have figured conspicuously in the revealed portfolios of such organizations.

Rail Shares Fare Better.

Railroad shares enjoyed something of a respite from the heavy pressure which has been weighing on them for the last few days, although the weekly carloadings figures showing a slight drop from last week should have counted against them.

So-called pivotals were heavy at intervals but made an acceptable showing, all things considered.

Trading was again a modest volume, considerably less than a million shares changing hands during the five hours of business.

Eyes of the trading fraternity were still glued on Washington and the phraseology of brokerage house letters of appraisal and advice was as heavily redolent as ever with the conviction that the market cannot be expected to do its stuff until congress does something about taxes and the budget.

Doubt Congress' Efficiency.

Judging from the comment heard, many brokers still are hoping that the nation's lawmakers will yet lay aside their political log rolling long enough to fix things up in behalf of the nation's credit, but many more are plainly and outspokenly resigned to the worse. Hence the utter failure of all efforts at a rally, no matter how Herculean, at the moment.

Of news from the industrial centers which were wont in the good old days to cut such a figure in the day's Wall street happenings, there was none.

DIRECTORS CUT DIVIDENDS ON STOCK TRUST

Continental - Chicago Co. Rate Now $2.

Directors of the Continental Chicago corporation yesterday voted to reduce the dividend rate on the preferred stock of the investment trust from $3 to $2 through the declaration of a quarterly dividend of 50 cents a share. The action was considered favorable in the financial community because some fears had been entertained that the dividend would be dropped altogether.

Merges Investment Trusts.

The firm is a consolidation of two investment trusts formed in 1929 by Field, Glore & Co. and the Continental Illinois company. Income has been drastically curtailed by the reductions and omissions of dividends by companies in which it has large stock holdings. The three largest common stock investment on the basis of the number of shares are 300,300 shares of Willys-Overland, 88,733 shares of Marshall Field, and 50,000 shares of Middle West Utilities. The principal preferred stock holdings are 5,000 shares of Skelly Oil and 4,700 shares of Rollins Hosiery.

The preferred stock of the company was quoted lower at 12 on the Chicago exchange yesterday, reflecting uncertainty over the probable action of the board. Announcement of the directors' action was made after the close of the market.

Swift & Co. Lower.

Swift & Co. lost a point on the heaviest turnover in several weeks and stock of its South American affiliate, Swift International, slipped 2 points to 16½.

During the day a statement was issued by L. A. Carton, treasurer of Swift & Co., explaining the present financial position of the company. The firm is in a strong position financially and operating results for the first six months were substantially better than in the comparable period last year, it was stated.

Mr. Carton stated that tonnage sales are running 20 per cent ahead of last year, but dollar sales are off approximately 5 per cent.

NAME 3 RECEIVERS FOR APPALACHIAN GAS, UTILITY HOLDING FIRM

Wilmington, Del., May 3.—(AP)—Three receivers were appointed in Chancery court today for the Appalachian Gas corporation, a holding concern controlling numerous public utilities. The receivership bill was filed by Theodore W. Hauer, of Drexel Hill, Pa., owner of 500 shares of the corporation's common stock. The corporation filed an answer admitting insolvency and consenting to the appointment of receivers.

The corporation has an authorized capital of 500,000 shares of preferred stock and 10,000,000 shares of common. It has outstanding convertible 6 per cent debentures in the principal amount of $13,029,500.

The business of the corporation consists of owning stock and other securities of other corporations. It owns 100 per cent of the common stock of Texas Gas Utilities company, Monroe Consolidated Gas, Commonwealth Gas corporation, Carbon Black Production corporation, and Appalachian Management and Engineering corporation.

The corporation also has large stock interests in the West Virginia Gas corporation, Wayne United Gas company, Ohio Valley Gas corporation, the Empire corporation, the Memphis Natural Gas corporation, and the Allegheny Gas corporation.

The bill of complaint states that the corporation will not have available funds to meet and discharge the semi-annual interest payment on its debentures, the principal amount of $818,000 on a note and accounts payable, all falling due this month.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., May 3.—Common carrier property owned and used by the Pullman company was valued at $119,750,000 as of June 30, 1919, in a final valuation report issued today by the interstate commerce commission. Property owned but not used was valued at $237,786 and property used but not owned was valued at $44,710.

The commission said the investment of the company in sleeping car property, including land, on June 30, 1919, was stated in its books as $144,522,062, which it said would be reduced to $137,513,561 if readjusted to conform to the commission's accounting classification.

Estimates of cost of reproduction which were considered by the commission in fixing the final values were based on the 1914 level of prices. The carrier protested the use of the 1914 price level and asserted that prices as of the date of valuation should be used, but the commission overruled it. The valuation will be brought up to date later, unless congress repeals the law requiring the commission to do that.

QUIZ REVEALS KREUGER'S EASY PATH TO CASH

Bankers' Faith Won by His Story.

ever seen a file containing the original concessions held by the International Match corporation. The witness replied that he had not.

"I see no clear evidence of the existence of concessions, except in Turkey," said Mr. Rosenberg. "How did you learn of the existence of such concessions?"

"As far as I remember, I depended on the auditor's statements and on the statements of Mr. Kreuger," the witness replied, adding that as far as he knew the directors of Lee, Higginson & Co. had depended likewise on the reports of European auditors for their knowledge of the European subsidiaries.

In connection with obtaining of concessions, Mr. Allen continued, the purchase of foreign bonds had played a prominent part in the building up of the proposed match monopoly.

Arrangements were made to establish a sales monopoly in which the Kreuger interests and Germany would have participated equally, the witness said, and a loan of $125,000,000 to the German government agreed upon to bind the project.

"Match" Obtains Millions.

Funds to help take care of the first installment of this loan, $50,000,000, were obtained by a $50,000,000 issue of debenture bonds by the International Match corporation in January, 1931, the yield to the company being $46,000,000. Not all of this sum went out of the United States, however, $15,000,000 being used in February, 1931, to meet an obligation of the firm of Kreuger & Toll, a separate corporation, to Lee, Higginson & Co. in other financing.

The manner in which this $15,000,000 was paid, as brought out by Mr. Rosenberg, was that the money was transferred by the International Match corporation to the Continental Investment A. G., which transferred the sum to the Swedish Match company, which in turn transferred it to Kreuger & Toll, which in turn passed it on to Lee, Higginson & Co.

All Done Same Day.

All the transfers took place on the same day, so that the money never left the United States, and, it was explained, all the firms involved, except Lee, Higginson & Co., were Kreuger interests.

Mr. Rosenberg did not attempt to explain why he had gone into this involved financial transaction, but it was understood that the receiver plans to show that all of the $50,000,000 raised by the sale of International Match debentures in 1931 was taken out of the treasury of that company, so that it is not now available as assets.

Hearing on Friday.

STOCKHOLM, May 3. — (AP) — Six business associates of the late Ivar Kreuger, Swedish industrialist who committed suicide in Paris recently, will receive their initial hearing next Friday on charges of assisting him in financial irregularities. Police investigators have been working night and day to assemble evidence against the men. The investigation has gone into charges that various Kreuger companies carried on their books credits which did not exist.

The banking committee of the riksdag censured the management of the National bank, in a majority report today, for what it said were enormous credits granted in 1931 to Kreuger.

The report revealed that Kreuger was summoned from the United States to appear before representatives of the Riksbank, or National bank of Sweden, and other banks in Berlin on March 15. He committed suicide in Paris on March 12.

Sweden's monetary policy for the immediate future, involving neither inflation nor deflation, but a return to "reasonable" commodity prices, was outlined in the report.

RAIL STOCKS FARE BETTER IN WALL STREET

rails, group movements of the day were without significance. Some of the utilities fared a little better than usual, although the performance of the group as a whole was no great shakes. Peoples Gas once more drew a modest plus sign and such issues as Public Service, Consolidated Gas, American Telephone and the like finished within fractions of their Monday closing figures.

A feature of the late afternoon was a flurry of heavy selling in International Shoe. The stock has been pretty widely recognized as a "pegged" issue, repeated efforts to break it below 36 having been made since last fall. Every attack, however, has brought out sufficient buying support to hold the line. It was so today. Selling orders came fast and furious for a spell, but they were snapped up as fast as they fell and the issue closed at 37, up a half point on the day. International Shoe has long commanded a premium on the loan market.

The oil shares bore up bravely and friends of theirs said they were encouraged by the approaching international oil conference, which will undertake to arrive at some means for stabilizing the industry.

Columbian Carbon took another header for 3 points or so in the face of reports that liquidation in the issue had about run its course.

DRY GOODS.

NEW YORK, May 3.—(AP)—Print cloth manufacturers were willing in some instances to consider tenders of orders for standard 38½ inch 64x60s at 3c a yard of 5½ below the prices quoted a week ago. No new business is developing in volume. Finished goods orders continued slow. Burlaps were steadier after the weakness of Monday. Rayon orders are lessening. Silk goods are selling slowly. A few new lines of women's wear coatings for fall are being shown.

SUGAR.

NEW YORK, May 3.—(AP)—SUGAR—Raw, was quiet and unchanged today at 2.60c for spots. Refiners were believed to be interested at last paid prices of 2.60c, but holders were generally asking from 2.62c to 2.63c. The only sale reported was 28,000 bags of Cuban from store by a local trade operator to the United Kingdom to load Thursday at around 4s 3d C. I. R. U. K., which is said to net the seller a party of 2.67c delivered to refinery at New York. It was replaced by a purchase of 28,000 bags of Philippines for October, November shipment at 2.70c delivered. The day's business aggregated only 12,700 tons. Prices follow:

	Open.	High.	Low.	Close.	Prev. close.
May	53	53	52	52	53
July	62	62	61	61	62
Sept.	69	69	67	67	69

Jan.	78	78	76	76	78
March	82	82	81	81	82
May '33	86	87	86	86	88

The only change in the refined situation locally was the announcement by refiners that the 2¼ per hundred allowance in lieu of the four payment plan would be continued until tomorrow. Prices locally were listed at 3.80 for fine granulated and while there was a fair inquiry reported, it was only for nearby requirements.

RAW SILK.

NEW YORK, May 3.—SILK—Raw futures closed steady; sales, 70 bales. May, $1.33@1.35; July, $1.30@1.38; September, $1.40. Open market quotations (sixty day basis). Shanghai steam extra B, $2.60; Canton double extra A, 14-16s, $1.80; Japanese crack double extra, $1.85.

Ward Baking Corp.

I would thank you for any information you may be able to furnish me regarding Ward Baking ? per cent preferred stock.—F. W.

Ward Baking corporation is one of the four largest bakers of bread and cake in the United States. Expansion has been mainly through growth of its own business rather than acquisition of going concerns. The company operates about twenty plants in the east and middle west.

Cake is a luxury product and consumption is largely dependent on consumer buying power. The demand for bread is comparatively stable, but competition is keen. In this field the company has to contend with sharp competition from low priced brands of chain stores.

For the thirteen weeks ended March 26, 1932, net was $163,000, which was only about one-third of preferred dividend requirements, against $196,000, which was about two-fifths of preferred dividend requirements, for the corresponding 1931 period.

For the full 1931 year net income was $1,989,000, against $2,059,000 for 1930. Preferred dividends were earned 1.03 times in 1931 and 1.06 times in 1930. Net income for 1929 was $3,124,000, against $3,294,000 for 1928.

On Dec. 26, 1931, current assets were $5,277,000 and current liabilities were $1,449,000. Cash was $3,020,000, against $2,572,000 the year before. Working capital was $3,828,000, against $3,808,000 on Dec. 27, 1930.

Funded debt consists of $4,546,000 Ward Baking company first 6s, due 1937, assumed by Ward Baking corporation. There are outstanding 277,013 shares of 7 per cent preferred [par $100], 86,275 shares of no par class A and 500,000 shares of no par class B.

Early in 1931 dissension among stockholders, the result of steadily decreasing earnings, was responsible for the passing of control to the Morrow interests. The new management has instituted economies. A substantial improvement in earnings, however, seems to depend on improvement of conditions in the trade.

Dividends on the preferred have been paid regularly.

Edison Electric Illuminating.

Will you please give me an opinion on the new Edison Electric Illuminating notes?—A. M. J.

Edison Electric Illuminating company of Boston furnishes electricity to Boston and thirty-nine neighboring communities without competition. Fixed charges have been covered by wide margins, the smallest in the last ten years being 3.15 times in 1922. In 1931 fixed charges were earned 3.23 times, against 3.16 times in 1930. The company's notes, all issues, are sound.

FINANCE PALL HANGING OVER WHEAT MARKET

Curbs Bullish Effect of Crop Estimates.

BY CHARLES MICHAELS.

Action of wheat thoroughly demonstrated to the trade whether crop or business conditions are the dominating factor as a price making influence. The private estimates on the winter wheat yield of 461 million bu were construed as sensationally bullish, being only 3 million bu above the government April returns and 316 million bu less than harvested in 1931.

Scattered buying developed when the wheat reports were given out, but the July only advanced ¾c over Monday's finish, and immediately started downward again and the decline was not checked until the price had touched 55¾c, or 1¾c below Monday's finish, with the close at the bottom.

Under normal conditions the wheat market would have proved a runaway bull affair, according to traders, in commenting on the failure of outside buying to develop on the crop reports. Under existing conditions, however, they feel that the failure of congress to curtail expenses and other financial conditions more than offset the bullish influences.

Scattered liquidation was in evidence on the way down, with prices dropping to the lowest levels since late in March and the finish was at net losses of 1⅛@1¼c. May wheat closed at 53⅜@53½c; old July, 55⅜@55½c; old September, 57⅜@57⅝c, and December, 61⅛@61¼c.

New Influences Needed.

According to pit observers the selling of wheat futures during the day was by longs, who bought in anticipation of the private crop reports making a bullish showing. The failure of the market to advance following their issuance was said to have convinced them that other factors were of much more importance as a price making influence and they went out of their lines. At the inside figure the May at 53¼c was only 4½c above the low of last October.

Selling against offers was in evidence in wheat on the early bulge, while buying against bids checked the decline. Routine news had little effect throughout the day. Liverpool finished unchanged to ¼d lower, with May at 56½d, or 1¾d above Chicago, while Winnipeg was off ⅛@1c, with May at 59⅝c in Canadian funds. A marked improvement was claimed in the export trade, with some estimates placing the day's total as high as 1,250,000 bu. A cargo of hard winter was reported as having been sold to Greece.

Corn Lowest Since 1897.

Liquidation was on in corn at the start, with all deliveries dropping to a new low for the season. The lowest figures of the day were made at the close, with the May at 27⅞@28c, a price that has not been witnessed since May, 1897, when the range for the month was 23@25½c. Final trades were at net losses of 1@1½c, with July at 31¾@31½c; September, 33⅞c, and December, 34c. According to local cash handlers a car of sample grade corn from Iowa which arrived in a heating condition was sold on Monday at 15c per bu, while the freight rate was 11½c per bu.

Deliveries of 1,732,000 bu cash corn on May contracts had some effect on sentiment, which was generally bearish. According to leading cash handlers, there has been no export demand of consequence for American corn so far, despite the low price and the fact that May in Chicago has dropped to a discount of over 1½c, as compared with the same future in Buenos Aires, Argentine. Country offerings to arrive were limited, while shipping sales aggregated 29,000 bu, and charters were made for 360,000 bu to Buffalo.

May Oats Strong.

May oats showed independent strength and closed ⅝c higher on scattered buying, which found offerings limited. Charters were made for 500,000 bu to eastern ports. Distant futures were off ¼@½c for the day, but failed to get into new ground. May closed at 22⅝c; July, 21⅞c, and September, 22¼c. Crop reports were generally favorable.

Liquidation was on again in rye, with all deliveries declining to a new low for the season, and the close was at the bottom, with net losses of 1⅛@1⅜c. May finished at 35c; July, 38c; September, 40c, and December, 42⅜c. The selling movement was in the face of reports of further sales of Canadian for export.

WINTER WHEAT REPORT

Recent rains over the winter wheat belt failed to improve the outlook for the new crop to the extent expected. Chicago statisticians in their May reports estimated the prospective yield at 461,000,000 bu, or only 3,500,000 bu in excess of the sensationally low government April returns of 458,000,000 bu, and compares with last year's bumper crop of 787,000,000 bu. The abandoned acreage was nearly 2 per cent in excess of the average.

Indications are that the spring wheat acreage will fall around 1,000,000 acres below what was expected earlier in the year due to the delay in government seed loans and also the backward season. Returns suggest that between 19,000,000 and 20,000,000 acres may be seeded, compared with 13,940,000 acres harvested last year, and 21,629,000 acres in 1930. R. O. Cromwell estimates the acreage in the three Canadian provinces at 24,591,000, or 750,000 acres less than last year.

A rye crop of around 44,000,000 bu, or 11,000,000 bu in excess of last year was suggested by the reports. Snow estimated the oats acreage at 41,527,000 acres, or 4.4 per cent in excess of last year, while Donovan looked for as much as 109,000,000 acres to be planted to corn. The latter would be 4,000,000 acres in excess of 1931. Details on winter wheat follow, last six ciphers omitted in the yield and the last three ciphers in the acreage:

$2.93 is the average Monthly Cost of a $225 loan under COMMONWEALTH'S Reduced Rate. This allows 25 months for repayment. There is no lower cost than this in Chicago.

THE personal property which nearly every family owns and the signatures of husband and wife enable one to secure any amount up to $300 quickly and easily.

NO FEES. You get full amount of the loan and up to 25 months to repay. Interest at the Reduced Rate is charged only while you keep the money.
